[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 22. — Crossing from ocean to ocean you see interesting men and things. Among others an old-fashioned railroad conductor on the Santa Fe and an old-fashioned Christian in Los Angeles.

The conductor is W. D. VanBergen, as able, active and keen a railroad man as ever protected a fast express train.

"Railroading" more than 50 years, he talks of passenger cars that were 40 feet long, had seats that hit you in the middle of the back, windows with four small panes of glass in each, lighted with candles.

"Retire?" Certainly not. Railroading is more interesting than retirement.

The old-fashioned Los Angeles Christian has painted on the back of his Ford touring car top, in white letters, a foot high, "Tell the world Jesus saves." He drives slowly about the street, and some undoubtedly repent.

E. F. HUTTON'S Los Angeles branches tell you that such comforting information was needed yesterday by bears that have ignored good advice printed in this column for months past. They had a little bear panic of their own, while stocks went up. General Motors and Atchison, well managed companies, went to "new high prices for all time." And some dejected bear covered 10,400 shares of General Motors in one transaction of nearly $2,000,000.

Don't gamble, for you will surely lose. And especially, don't sell "short," That's like running in front of an express train.

In England, where you can borrow money cheaper than here, generally speaking, the bank rate is cut from five to four and one-half. And here, money will be much cheaper. It's no time to be a bear. Best news of all, cotton went climbing; but, unfortunately, that was due to flood drowing out vast cotton areas.

PAUL KELLY, movie actor in a small way, is held for murder. The usual roar about moving picture immorality will follow. It would be better to roar about the Snyder case, with the husband in case brained with a cashweight as he slept.

Paul Kelly of the movies killed his man, husband of the lady he admired, in a fist fight, and probably had no intentions of killing.

If guilty, Kelly probably will go to jail for at l esat 10i, tshtraoshrdln jail for at least 10 years, to prove that even husbands have a right to live. But the incident does not justify any particular outcry against the movies.

IT IS summer wearther out here with a nice breeze from the Pacific ocean; potato plants standing two feet high in front of many little bungalows, active building everywhere fruit trees heavily loaded and every citizen ready to prove that "California has only started."

One hundred and fifty thousand years ago our ancestors struggled with levers made of a tree to turn over the half-devoured carcass of a mammoth. No possibility of dragging it home; it

$25,000 SUIT AFTERMATH OF CRASH OF WALL

Nellis Company and Midland Man Named in Action.

DAMAGE CLAIM

Court Fight Follows Near Collapse of Building.

As the result of the near collapse of the Leech building, Midland avenue, Midland, about six weeks ago, the D. F. Nellis & Sons' company, of East Liverpool, and Morris Pearlman, of Midland, were named defendants in a suit for $25,000 damages filed today in the Beaver county court at Beaver, Pa., by Morris Resnick and Morris Weinbern, proprietors of the Star Furniture company.

The Nellis company was excavating for a new structure being erected by Pearlman on the lot adjoining the Leech building alleged to have been damaged. The petition charges that when the excavation reached a depth of more than two feet below the foundation of the Leech building, the structure partially collapsed. A portion of one wall next to the proposed new building fell.

The furniture company claims that much of their merchandise was damaged, their business was suspended for several days and they were put to much expense in preserving their stock.

The petition also alleges that Pearlman and the contractors were negligent in failing to take precautions necessary to preserve the Leech building.

Pittsburgh contractors moved the structure back to its original position and replaced the damaged wall. Foundation of the Pearlman building, in the meantime, was completed.

Explosion Believed to Have Been Caused by Spontaneous Combustion Occurs Early in Morning—City's Entire Fire Fighting Force Fight Flames as They Spread to Adjoining Property.

Entire East Side of City Wrecked by Force of Blast—200 Girls and Women Employed on Fifth Floor Rescued Through Foreman's Presence of Mind—Loss May Reach $5,000,000.

DETROIT, April 23.—More than 50 employes were injured and ten others are unaccounted for today in a series of explosions at the Briggs Manufacturing company plant.

Ambulances were rushed to the secene of the blast and fire which followed. Thirty-two persons have been taken to hospitals for treatment. Many are not expected to live, physicians said.

Several persons were trapped on the fifth floor of the building and are believed to have met death. Four alarms were turned in in rapid succession placing most of the central district fire apparatus at the plant. Huge throngs of spectators were augmented by thousands of the factory workers.

Firemen described the fire as the worst in years.

Firemen Have Narrow Escape.

With half of the factory, a new section built five years ago, given over to the blaze, firemen directed their efforts to saving nearby structures. Despite their heroic attempts, however, flames spread to the American Blower company building across the street shortly after 11 o'clock.

Twenty firemen narrowly escaped death when one of the explosions caused a wall of the plant to cave in.

Two hundred men were working in the building when the explosion occurred. Approximately 50 injured were rescued from the burning building.

Others are believed to have been caught in the debris. Many of the injured are not expected to live, physicians said.

The Briggs Manufacturing company makes bodies for a number of leading automobile companies.

An entire section of the plant, built five years ago over an area of almost three acres apparently was doomed as firemen from all the city stations conducted a losing battle at 11 o'clock. The damage was variously estimated from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Plan Check of Workers.

Otto P. Artue, an official of the company said:

"We do not know the exact cause of the explosion but believe it was due to spontaneous combustion.

"We removed about fifty men from the building. Some were seriously injured."

The exact number who died in the explosion and fire will not be definitely known until a check of workmen can be made, Artue said.

"About 8:15 the neighborhood was rocked by a terrific blast followed by

NEW YORK, April 23.—Little Roberta Jane Pratt, aged 6, whose foster mother, Mrs. Everett S. Pratt, of Des Moines, Iowa, was acquitted of burning and otherwise mistreating the child, will again be in the legal limelight on Monday.

Roberta is still in the custody of the children's society. Monday morning she will appear in children's court at 10 o'clock when final disposition will be made of her future custody and guardianship.

In all probability she will be held here until an officer from the juvenile court of Des Moines, Iowa, arrives to return her to her half-brother, who is living in that city, and who is her legal guardian.

WINTER RETURNS TO OHIO TODAY

COLUMBUS, April 23.—Winter was playing a return engagement in Ohio today, with frost, snow, rain and freezing temperatures reported from various sections of the state, but the weather bureau promised that the frigid weather would be of short duration, with warmer weather in prospect for the week-end.

Snow flurries fell in Columbus, Toledo and Sidney, while near-freezing temperatures and cold winds were the rule in the central and lake sections of the state.

Some records of years of standing were shattered by the unseasonably low mercury, but experts said that fruit and garden products were little damaged by the cold snap.

Entire East Side of City Wrecked by Force of Blast—200 Girls and Women Employed on Fifth Floor Rescued Through Foreman's Presence of Mind—Loss May Reach $5,000,000.

DETROIT, April 23.—More than 50 employes were injured and ten others are unaccounted for today in a series of explosions at the Briggs Manufacturing company plant.

Ambulances were rushed to the secene of the blast and fire which followed. Thirty-two persons have been taken to hospitals for treatment. Many are not expected to live, physicians said.

[illegible] persons were trapped on the fifth floor of the building and are believed to have met death. Four alarms were turned in in rapid succession placing most of the central district fire apparatus at the plant. Huge throngs of spectators were augmented by thousands of the factory workers.

Firemen described the fire as the worst in years.

Firemen Have Narrow Escape.

With half of the factory, a new section built five years ago, given over to the blaze, firemen directed their efforts to saving nearby structures. Despite their heroic attempts, however, flames spread to the American Blower company building across the street shortly after 11 o'clock.

Twenty firemen narrowly escaped death when one of the explosions caused a wall of the plant to cave in.

Two hundred men were working in the building when the explosion occurred. Approximately 50 injured were rescued from the burning building.

Others are believed to have been caught in the debris. Many of the injured are not expected to live, physicians said.

The Briggs Manufacturing company makes bodies for a number of leading automobile companies.

An entire section of the plant, built five years ago over an area of almost three acres apparently was doomed as firemen from all the city stations conducted a losing battle at 11 o'clock. The damage was variously estimated from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Plan Check of Workers.

Otto P. Artue, an official of the company said:

"We do not know the exact cause of the explosion but believe it was due to spontaneous combustion.

"We removed about fifty men from the building. Some were seriously injured."

The exact number who died in the explosion and fire will not be definitely known until a check of workmen can be made, Artue said.

"About 8:15 the neighborhood was rocked by a terrific blast followed by

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture, "Bagdad." With her go

GRANDMA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man, although she is fascinated by the director. De Brissac wants her to go with him on his yacht for a week's cruise, when the picture is finished, but Hattie refuses and leaves the Earthwide studio to work for Plantagenet. She finds she cannot work without De Brissac, however. She meets Lucille who advises her to go back to De Brissac. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, has deserted her several years before but he comes back and adds himself to Hattie's responsibilities. Hattie and Henry go to a private showing of the finished picture which is a great success. De Brissac is to form his own company and wants her to work with him.

He offers her a contract at $1,000 a week.

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a little home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

CHAPTER THIRTY.

The fortnight occupied in closing with "De Brissac, Incorporated," was a period of intense activity. The lawyers came and went, debating clauses of the long contract. The telephone bell rang and rang. Arthur, with a new suit and a bustling manner was everywhere, raising objections, as he kept explaining to Hattie in her interest, and contributing expansively to the family discussions.

Every smallest event in the world of motion pictures is celebrated with a great amount of photographing, and it seemed natural enough that Hattie should be pictured alone in many poses and as one of the family group. The publicity men thought it would be effective to show her in a grown-up little dress playing at doll's housekeeping with Emily. And it occurred to one of them to picture her pushing Gran'ma in the new wheel chair.

The family agreed with Arthur that a move to more comfortable quarters was desirable, even necessary when you took Hattie's position into account. He succeeded within a second fortnight in subletting the apartment over the grocery store, and after many days of driving them about Beverly in a hired automobile rented a large bungalow that was set apart in its own grounds with pipes and sprinklers in the lawn and a two-car garage. Inevitably, then, he selected an automobile for Hattie; one that would, he felt, accord modestly with her growing importance. It was bright blue in color, with a great deal of nickelware about it and much extra glass. And he taught her to drive it. Alice remarked more than once that Hattie needed a business manager now that she was a successful star, and that Arthur's appearance was providential, really, when you stopped to think about it.

Reporters came to interview her, pleasant enough men and women. At first she felt timid and upset. The failure at Plantagenet Town was still vividly in her mind and it was hard to avoid dwelling morbidly on it. Hard it was, as well, to avoid speaking eagerly, emotionally of De Brissac. He possessed her now, filled her imagination. She had given herself to him. Over and over she told herself that she was a woman now and that everyone must know. She studied her face in the mirror for evidences of change. Surely the terribly stirring fact could n't long be hid. And those reporters were such keen persons. But always afraid, with the shrewd admonitions of her lover ever in her ears, she contrived to talk as she knew picture stars always talked to reporters. She would sit very still, a listless wan little thing, and say that she loved her work and that it was wonderful to have her dear family always about her, it meant so much to Gran-ma to make her last years bright and happy; that she was indeed fortunate in having her career shaped by so great a director and that the only message she could send to the thousands of girls who admired her art was to work very hard and fix their faith on great ideals.

When the interviews appeared she would read them fearfully at first, and then reread them, over and over, exultant, bewildered, unable to ever to believe that the charming little person in the illustrations could be her miserably confused self. For she was walking a dangerous way, more than ever with the sense of being dragged along faster than she could think, never quite believing that the facts could be the truth, turning inward to the little white flame fo her girlhood that miraculously seemed still to be burning behind the ugly shadows.

It began to seem incredible that the family shouldn't suspect; that were so close to the situation, as to herself. In a curiously aloof way they appeared to be taking De Brissac for granted. As the weeks and then the months passed she perceived that they were taking for granted her frequent evenings with her director. There was a sometimes almost breathless tendency to explain away his personal demands on her. They were give now to dwelling on the importance of her career and of every contributing phase of it. De Brissac was really her career; no getting away from that. They gladly accepted the fact. It was during this phase that Arthur persuaded them all to call her Harriet instead of Hattie. He felt it to be better suited to her position.

Her own attitude toward De Brissac was in part an admiration that bordered on hero worship and in part a fear [illegible] and that at times became terror. Her secretiveness, she knew, puzzled and piqued him. He gave her costly presents—a wrist watch of platinum, richly jeweled, a locket, a bracelet, a string of pearls—all of which she had under lock and key at home. He really couldn't understand that. What was the difference? She couldn't explain. Nor could she tell him why she refused flatly to accept rich gowns and wraps, refused even to buy them for herself; always she appeared as the simple little Hattie of her earlier days in Beverly. . . . And during all the summer he kept urging her to slip away with him on his yacht. They had two or three nervous little quarrels about that. She couldn't go. Indeed not once did she stay away from home over night. Even when Arthur and Alice planned their trip to San Francisco, after Gran'ma went permanently to the sanatorium in the mountains, she fought the idea. Closely she held them about her. . . . Doubtless this often capricious resistance held De Brissac the more firmly. But Hattie would hardly have thought of that. There was, even now, nothing of the coquette in her; there was only a series of profound disturbances of the spirit . . . bitterness, fear, sudden uncontrolable longings followed by repulsions that were quite as strong, and shot through the whole devastating experience a sense of dark wild beauty that at moments was a flame and at other times was only an ache . . . nights of crying herself to sleep (she clung, secretly, to the doll) . . . [illegible] and desires, this along in the autumn, in which [illegible] figured not at all.

Henry O'Malley, until he went to New York in September, was a constant problem. She met him on a late afternoon in Los Angeles and told him . . . summoning all her courage, a whitely firm slip of a girl . . . that the engagement must be broken. It was difficult. He pled, argued, questioned; he telephoned—she had to forbid him calling up the lot—and wrote heartbreaking letters. In August she saw him driving another girl in the roadster. For a few weeks after that she heard nothing from him, but then he began again. There was, he cried out, no one else who understood him who nerved him to the struggle. That would be becaue she had sat very still during so many of her hours with him and listened or tried to listen while he talked and talked of himself. But then most men did that. Even Brissac. . . . She couldn't tell him about Henry. She couldn't tell anybody. She found herself, indeed, a frightened little person about whom adult passions raged. And she was herself fairly caught. There was no guessing the course of events. Tragedy seemed, and for that matter was, momentarily possible.

Miniature Dragon Found.

A lizzard that has the appearance of a dragon in miniature has been found in Australia. Natives have named it the bearded dragon or Jew lizard. Another lizard found has around its neck a frill which lies perfectly flat when the creature is at peace, but is raised like a shield around its head in times of danger.

Visits Graveyard in Boat

To inspect an old graveyard, Lord Craigavon, premier to Ireland, recently had to make the journey in a "cot," the primitive boat still used by the people of Galloon Island, in Upper Lough Erne. During the trip his lordship was told that the only industry that the island had ever had was the making of illicit whiskey, but the police had destroyed it.

A railway to connect Aleppo and Bagdad is under construction.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture, "Bagdad." With her go

GRANDMA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man, although she is fascinated by the director. De Brissac wants her to go with him on his yacht for a week's cruise, when the picture is finished, but Hattie refuses and leaves the Earthwide studio to work for Plantagenet. She finds she cannot work without De Brissac, however. She meets Lucille who advises her to go back to De Brissac. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, has deserted her several years before but he comes back and adds himself to Hattie's responsibilities. Hattie and Henry go to a private showing of the finished picture which is a great success. De Brissac is to form his own company and wants her to work with him.

He offers her a contract at $1,000 a week.

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a little home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

CHAPTER THIRTY.

The fortnight occupied in closing with "De Brissac, Incorporated," was a period of intense activity. The lawyers came and went, debating clauses of the long contract. The telephone bell rang and rang. Arthur, with a new suit and a bustling manner was everywhere, raising objections, as he kept explaining to Hattie in her interest, and contributing expansively to the family discussions.

Every smallest event in the world of motion pictures is celebrated with a great amount of photographing, and it seemed natural enough that Hattie should be pictured alone in many poses and as one of the family group. The publicity men thought it would be effective to show her in a grown little dress playing at doll's housekeeping with Emily. And it occurred to one of them to picture her pushing Gran'ma in the new wheel chair.

The family agreed with Arthur that a move to more comfortable quarters was desirable, even necessary when you took Hattie's position into account. He succeeded within a second fortnight in sub-letting the apartment over the grocery store, and after many days of driving them about Beverly in a hired automobile rented a large bungalow that was set apart in its own grounds with pipes and sprinklers in the lawn and a two-car garage. Inevitably, then, he selected an automobile for Hattie; one that would, he felt, accord modestly with her growing importance. It was bright blue in color, with a great deal of nickelware about it and much extra glass. And he taught her to drive it. Alice remarked more than once that Hattie needed a business manager now that she was a successful star, and that Arthur's appearance was providential, really, when you stopped to think about it.

Reporters came to interview her, pleasant enough men and women. At first she felt timid and upset. The failure at Plantagenet Town was still vividly in her mind and it was hard to avoid dwelling morbidly on it. Hard it was, as well, to avoid speaking eagerly, emotionally of De Brissac. He possessed her now, filled her imagination. She had given herself to him. Over and over she told herself that she was a woman now and that everyone must know. She studied her face in the mirror for evidences of change. Surely the terribly stirring fact couldn't long be hid. And those reporters were such keen persons. But always afraid, with the shrewd admonitions of her lover ever in her ears, she contrived to talk as she knew picture stars always talked to reporters. She would sit very still, a listless wan little thing, and say that she loved her work and that it was wonderful to have her dear family always about her, it meant so much to Gran'ma to make her last years bright and happy; that she was indeed fortunate in having her career shaped by so great a director and that the only message she could send to the thousands of girls who admired her art was to work very hard and fix their faith on great ideals.

When the interviews appeared she would read them fearfully at first, and then reread them, over and over, exultant, bewildered, unable to ever to believe that the charming little person in the illustrations could be her miserably confused self. For she was walking a dangerous way, more than ever with the sense of being dragged along faster than she could think, never quite believing that the facts could be the truth, turning inward to the little white flame fo her girlhood that miraculously seemed still to be burning behind the ugly shadows.

It began to seem incredible that the family shouldn't suspect; that were so close to the situation, as to herself. In a curiously aloof way they appeared to be taking De Brissac for granted. As the weeks and then the months passed she perceived that they were taking for granted her frequent evenings with her director. There was a sometimes almost breathless tendency to explain away his personal demands on her. They were give now to dwelling on the importance of her career and of every contributing phase of it. De Brissac was really her career; no getting away from that. They gladly accepted the fact. It was during this phase that Arthur persuaded them all to call her Harriet instead of Hattie. He felt it to be better suited to her position.

Hed own attitude toward De Brissac was in part an admiration that bordered on hero worship and in part a fear [illegible] that at times became terror. Her secretiveness, she knew, puzzled and piqued him. He gave her costly presents—a wrist watch of platinum, richly jeweled, a locket, a bracelet, a string of pearls all of which she hid under lock and key at home. He really couldn't understand that. What was the difference? She couldn't explain. Nor could she tell him why she refused flatly to accept rich gowns and wraps, refused even to buy them for herself; always she appeared as the smiple little Hattie of her earlier days in Beverly. . . . And during all the summer he kept urging her to slip away with him on his yacht. They had two or three nervous little quarrels about that. She couldn't go. Indeed not once did she stay away from home over night. Even when Arthur and Alice planned their trip to San Francisco, after Gran'ma went permanently to the sanatorium in the mountains, she fought the idea. Closely she held them about her. . . . Doubtless this often capricious resistance held De Brissac the more firmly. But Hattie would hardly have thought of that. There was, even now, nothing of the coquette in her; there was only a series of profound disturbances of the spirit . . . bitterness, fear, sudden uncontrolable longings followed by repulsions that were quite as strong, and shot through the whole devastating experience a sense of dark wild beauty that at moments was a flame and at other times was only an ache . . . nights of crying herself to sleep (she clung, secretly, to the doll) . . . [illegible] cravings and desires, this along in the autumn, in which [illegible] figured not at all.

Henry O'Malley, until he went to New York in September, was a constant problem. She met him on a late afternoon in Los Angeles and told him . . . summoning all her courage, a whitely firm slip of a girl . . . that the engagement must be broken. It was difficult. He pled, argued, questioned; he telephoned—she had to forbid him calling up the lot—and wrote heartbreaking letters. In August she saw him driving another girl in the roadster. For a few weeks after that she heard nothing from him, but then he began again. There was, he cried out, no one else who understood him who nerved him to the struggle. That would be because she had sat very still during so many of her hours with him and listened or tried to listen while he talked and talked of himself. But then most men did that. Even Brissac. . . . She couldn't tell him about Henry. She couldn't tell anybody. She found herself, indeed, a frightened little person about whom adult passions raged. And she was herself fairly caught. There was no guessing the course of events. Tragedy seemed, and for that matter was, momentarily possible.

Miniature Dragon Found.

A lizzard that has the appearance of a dragon in miniature has been found in Australia. Natives have named it the bearded dragon or Jew lizard. Another lizard found has around its neck a frill which lies perfectly flat when the creature is at peace, but is raised like a shield around its head in times of danger.

Visits Graveyard in Boat

To inspect an old graveyard, Lord Craigavon, premier to Ireland, recently had to make the journey in a "cot," the primitive boat still used by the people of Galloon Island, in Upper Lough Erne. During the trip his lordship was told that the only industry that the island had ever had was the making of illicit whiskey, but the police had destroyed it.

Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it.

SENATOR McNARY STILL TRYING TO GET PLAN FOR FARM RELIEF

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Seator Charles L. McNary of Oregon is spending what ought to be his vacation trying to hit on a farm relief program, for the next session of congress, which President Coolidge can approve.

In the way of an agreement between McNary and the president there is, after all, only one stumbling block:

Thus far the senator has been unable to thing up a scheme that suited him which the chief executive didn't pronounce "economically unsound," while no plan acceptable to Mr. Coolidge is regarded by the Oregon statesman as "any good."

Otherwise they're in hearty accord.

Senator McNary will be recalled as a collaborer with Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which the agricultural bloc succeeded in getting through the last congress, only to see it vetoed by the president, and then to drop, perforce, because the bloc hadn't enough votes to pass it over his head.

Naturally the situation's unsatisfactory to all parties concerned.

McNary, Haugen et al haven't a thing to show for several years' hard work. The president's placed in the light of having turned thumbs down on a proposition the farmers were able to muster a congressional majority for, which isn't calculated to do him any good among the Corn Belt voters, either at the next Republican convention or at the national election of 1928.

If he could give 'em a satisfactory compromise next winter there's no doubt he'd be glad to, only it's a pretty hard thing to compromise.

The McNary-Haugen plan has been argued, pro and con, by all available experts, to the tune of many large volumes, and no conclusion was arrived at, at that.

So there's small hope of settling the question here.

But the nub of it is:

How's the American farmer to be protected against his own competition?

---

The American manufacturer's protected by keeping competing foreign goods out.

American labor's protected by keeping competing foreign labor out.

The American farmer has to pay for all this protection, for others' benefit, but gets none of his own. The same kind of protection that protects the industries and labor does him no good. His own over-product is what undersells him.

---

So, to help the farmer, the McNary-Haugen plan proposes an application of the protective tariff principle in reverse—wrong side up, inside out and stern end first.

Heaven knows how it would work, but this much is certain:

It wouldn't work at all until it was wound up with a key, known as an "equilization fee," which the farmer pays, when he markets his crop, to take his surplus off his hands.

Now, mind ye, the machinery absolutely won't run until it's wound up with an "equalization fee" key.

"I'll stand for almost anything," President Coolidge assures Senator McNary, "but I positively draw the line on an equalization fee. It's economically unsound."

What McNary is trying to find, between now and next December, is some way of making his contrivance run without any motive power. He stands about as much chance as he does discovering perpetual motion, most authorities say

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS.

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture, "Bagdad." With her go

GRANDMA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man, although she is fascinated by the director. De Brissac wants her to go with him on his yacht for a week's cruise, when the picture is finished, but Hattie refuses and leaves the Earthwide studio to work for Plantagenet. She finds she cannot work without De Brissac, however. She meets Lucille who advises her to go back to De Brissac. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, has deserted her several years before but he comes back and adds himself to Hattie's responsibilities. Hattie and Henry go to a private showing of the finished picture which is a great success. De Brissac is to form his own company and wants her to work with him.

He offers her a contract at $1,000 a week.

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a litle home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

CHAPTER THIRTY.

The fortnight occupied in closing with "De Brissac, Incorporated," was a period of intense activity. The lawyers came and went, debating clauses of the long contract. The telephone bell rang and rang. Arthur, with a new suit and a bustling manner was everywhere, raising objections, as he kept explaining to Hattie in her interest, and contributing expansively to the family discussions.

Every smallest event in the world of motion pictures is celebrated with a great amount of photographing, and it seemed natural enough that Hattie should be pictured alone in many poses and as one of the family group. The publicity man thought it would be effective to show her in a gingham little dress playing at doll's housekeeping with Emily. And it occurred to one of them to picture her pushing Gran'ma in the new wheel chair.

The family agreed with Arthur that a move to more comfortable quarters was desirable, even necessary when you took Hattie's position into account. He succeeded within a second fortnight in subletting the apartment over the grocery store, and after many days of driving them about Beverly in a hired automobile rented a large bungalow that was set apart in its own grounds with pipes and sprinklers in the lawn and a two-car garage. Inevitably, then, he selected an automobile for Hattie; one that would, he felt, accord modestly with her growing importance. It was bright blue in color, with a great deal of nickelware about it and much extra glass. And he taught her to drive it. Alice remarked more than once that Hattie needed a business manager now that she was a successful star, and that Arthur's appearance was providential, really, when you stopped to think about it.

Reporters came to interview her, pleasant enough men and women. At first she felt timid and upset. The failure at Plantagenet Town was still vividly in her mind and it was hard to avoid dwelling morbidly on it. Hard it was, as well, to avoid speaking eagerly, emotionally of De Brissac. He possessed her now, filled her imagination. She had given herself to him. Over and over she told herself that she was a woman now and that everyone must know. She studied her face in the mirror for evidences of change. Surely the terribly stirring fact couldn't long be hid. And those reporters were such keen persons. But always afraid, with the shrewd admonitions of her lover ever in her ears, she contrived to talk as she knew picture stars always talked to reporters. She would sit very still, a listless wan little thing, and say that she loved her work and that it was wonderful to have her dear family always about her, it meant so much to Gran'ma to make her last years bright and happy; that she was indeed fortunate in having her career shaped by so great a director and that the only message she could send to the thousands of girls who admired her art was to work very hard and fix their faith on great ideals.

When the interviews appeared she would read them fearfully at first, and then reread them, over and over, exultant, bewildered, unable to ever to believe that the charming little person in the illustrations could be her miserably confused self. For she was walking a dangerous way, more than ever with the sense of being dragged along faster than she could think, never quite believing that the facts could be the truth, turning inward to the little white flame fo her girlhood that miraculously seemed still to be burning behind the ugly shadows.

It began to seem incredible that the family shouldn't suspect; that were so close to the situation, as to herself. In a curiously aloof way they appeared to be taking De Brissac for granted. As the weeks and then the months passed she perceived that they were taking for granted her frequent evenings with her director. There was a sometimes almost breathless tendency to explain away his personal demands on her. They were give now to dwelling on the importance of her career and of every contributing phase of it. De Brissac was really her career; no getting away from that. They gladly accepted the fact. It was during this phase that Arthur persuaded them all to call her Harriet instead of Hattie. He felt it to be better suited to her position.

Hed own attitude toward De Brissac was in part an admiration that bordered on hero worship and in part a fear [illegible] that at times became terror. Her secretiveness, she knew, puzzled and piqued him. He gave her costly presents—a wrist watch of platinum, richly jeweled, a locket, a bracelet, a string of pearls all of which she had under lock and key at home. He really couldn't understand that. What was the difference? She couldn't explain. Nor could she tell him why she refused flatly to accept rich gowns and wraps, refused even to buy them for herself; always she appeared as the smiple little Hattie of her earlier days in Beverly. . . . And during all the summer he kept urging her to slip away with him on his yacht. They had two or three nervous little quarrels about that. She couldn't go. Indeed not once did she stay away from home over night. Even when Arthur and Alice planned their trip to San Francisco, after Gran'ma went permanently to the sanatorium in the mountains, she fought the idea. Closely she held them about her. . . . Doubtless this often capricious resistance held De Brissac the more firmly. But Hattie would hardly have thought of that. There was, even now, nothing of the coquette in her; there was only a series of profound disturbances of the spirit . . . bitterness, fear, sudden uncontrolable longings followed by repulsions that were quite as strong, and shot through the whole devastating experience a sense of dark wild beauty that at moments was a flame and at other times was only an ache . . . nights of crying herself to sleep (she clung, secretly, to the doll) . . . [illegible] and desires, this along in the autumn, in which [illegible] figured not at all.

Henry O'Malley, until he went to New York in September, was a constant problem. She met him on a late afternoon in Los Angeles and told him . . . summoning all her courage, a whitely firm slip of a girl . . . that the engagement must be broken. It was difficult. He pled, argued, questioned; he telephoned—she had to forbid him calling up the lot—and wrote heartbreaking letters. In August she saw him driving another girl in the roadster. For a few weeks after that she heard nothing from him, but then he began again. There was, he cried out, no one else who understood him who nerved him to the struggle. That would be because she had sat very still during so many of her hours with him and listened or tried to listen while he talked and talked of himself. But then most men did that. Even Brissac. . . . She couldn't tell him about Henry. She couldn't tell anybody. She found herself, indeed, a frightened little person about whom adult passions raged. And she was herself fair caught. There was no guessing the course of events. Tragedy seemed, and for that matter was, momentarily possible.

Miniature Dragon Found.

A lizzard that has the appearance of a dragon in miniature has been found in Australia. Natives have named it the bearded dragon or Jew lizard. Another lizard found has around its neck a frill which lies perfectly flat when the creature is at peace, but is raised like a shield around its head in times of danger.

Visits Graveyard in Boat

To inspect an old graveyard, Lord Craigavon, premier to Ireland, recently had to make the journey in a "cot," the primitive boat still used by the people of Galloon Island, in Upper Lough Erne. During the trip his lordship was told that the only industry that the island had ever had was the making of illicit whiskey, but the police had destroyed it.

A Good Thing—Don't Overlook It.

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter which contains a valuable suggestion: "I feel like a new man since taking Foley's Honey and Tar. I can now sleep all night, soreness in chest and the bad cough entirely gone. My whole family use it for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it.

At 88 Quits Mine for Farm.

After 60 years in the mines of Leicester, England, J. Glamson has decided that at 88 he should become a farmer. He worked 12 hours a day as a miner, he smokes and is not a teetotler. Flamson is the father of seven children, the oldest being 64, and has 20 grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture, "Bagdad." With her go

GRANDMA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man, although she is fascinated by the director. De Brissac wants her to go with him on his yacht for a week's cruise, when the picture is finished, but Hattie refuses and leaves the Earthwide studio to work for Plantagenet. She finds she cannot work without De Brissac, however. She meets Lucille who advises her to go back to De Brissac. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, has deserted her several years before but he comes back and adds himself to Hattie's responsibilities. Hattie and Henry go to a private showing of the finished picture which is a great success. De Brissac is to form his own company and wants her to work with him.

He offers her a contract at $1,000 a week.

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a little home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

CHAPTER THIRTY.

The fortnight occupied in closing with "De Brissac, Incorporated," was a period of intense activity. The lawyers came and went, debating clauses of the long contract. The telephone bell rang and rang. Arthur, with a new suit and a bustling manner was everywhere, raising objections, as he kept explaining to Hattie in her interest, and contributing expansively to the family discussions.

Every smallest event in the world of motion pictures is celebrated with a great amount of photographing, and it seemed natural enough that Hattie should be pictured alone in many poses and as one of the family group. The publicity men thought it would be effective to show her in a grown little dress playing at doll's housekeeping with Emily. And it occurred to one of them to picture her pushing Gran'ma in the new wheel chair.

The family agreed with Arthur that a move to more comfortable quarters was desirable, even necessary when you took Hattie's position into account. He succeeded within a second fortnight in sub-letting the apartment over the grocery store, and after many days of driving them about Beverly in a hired automobile rented a large bungalow that was set apart in its own grounds with pipes and sprinklers in the lawn and a two-car garage. Inevitably, then, he selected an automobile for Hattie; one that would, he felt, accord modestly with her growing importance. It was bright blue in color, with a great deal of nickelware about it and much extra glass. And he taught her to drive it. Alice remarked more than once that Hattie needed a business manager now that she was a successful star, and that Arthur's appearance was providential, really, when you stopped to think about it.

Reporters came to interview her, pleasant enough men and women. At first she felt timid and upset. The failure at Plantagenet Town was still vividly in her mind and it was hard to avoid dwelling morbidly on it. Hard it was, as well, to avoid speaking eagerly, emotionally of De Brissac. He possessed her now, filled her imagination. She had given herself to him. Over and over she told herself that she was a woman now and that everyone must know. She studied her face in the mirror for evidences of change. Surely the terribly stirring fact couldn't long be hid. And those reporters were such keen persons. But always afraid, with the shrewd admonitions of her lover ever in her ears, she contrived to talk as she knew picture stars always talked to reporters. She would sit very still, a listless wan little thing, and say that she loved her work and that it was wonderful to have her dear family always about her, it meant so much to Gran-ma to make her last years bright and happy; that she was indeed fortunate in having her career shaped by so great a director and that the only message she could send to the thousands of girls who admired her art was to work very hard and fix their faith on great ideals.

When the interviews appeared she would read them fearfully at first, and then reread them, over and over, exultant, bewildered, unable to ever to believe that the charming little person in the illustrations could be her miserably confused self. For she was walking a dangerous way, more than ever with the sense of being dragged along faster than she could think, never quite believing that the facts could be the truth, turning inward to the little white flame fo her girlhood that miraculously seemed still to be burning behind the ugly shadows.

It began to seem incredible that the family shouldn't suspect; that were so close to the situation, as to herself. In a curiously aloof way they appeared to be taking De Brissac for granted. As the weeks and then the months passed she perceived that they were taking for granted her frequent evenings with her director. There was a sometimes almost breathless tendency to explain away his personal demands on her. They were give now to dwelling on the importance of her career and of every contributing phase of it. De Brissac was really her career; no getting away from that. They gladly accepted the fact. It was during this phase that Arthur persuaded them all to call her Harriet instead of Hattie. He felt it to be better suited to her position.

Hed own attitude toward De Brissac was in part an admiration that bordered on hero worship and in part a fear [illegible] times became terror. Her secretiveness, she knew, puzzled and piqued him. He gave her costly presents—a wrist watch of platinum, richly jeweled, a locket, a bracelet, a string of pearls—all of which she had under lock and key at home. He really couldn't understand that. What was the difference? She couldn't explain. Nor could she tell him why she refused flatly to accept rich gowns and wraps, refused even to buy them for herself; always she appeared as the smiple little Hattie of her earlier days in Beverly. . . . And during all the summer he kept urging her to slip away with him on his yacht. They had two or three nervous little quarrels about that. She couldn't go. Indeed not once did she stay away from home over night. Even when Arthur and Alice planned their trip to San Francisco, after Gran'ma went permanently to the sanatorium in the mountains, she fought the idea. Closely she held them about her. . . . Doubtless this often capricious resistance held De Brissac the more firmly. But Hattie would hardly have thought of that. There was, even now, nothing of the coquette in her; there was only a series of profound disturbances of the spirit . . . bitterness, fear, sudden uncontrolable longings followed by repulsions that were quite as strong, and shot through the whole devastating experience a sense of dark wild beauty that at moments was a flame and at other times was only an ache . . . nights of crying herself to sleep (she clung, secretly, to the doll) . . . [illegible] risings and desires, this alone in the autumn, in which [illegible] figured not at all.

Henry O'Malley, until he went to New York in September, was a constant problem. She met him on a late afternoon in Los Angeles and told him . . . summoning all her courage, a whitely firm slip of a girl . . . that the engagement must be broken. It was difficult. He pled, argued, questioned; he telephoned—she had to forbid him calling up the lot—and wrote heartbreaking letters. In August she saw him driving another girl in the roadster. For a few weeks after that she heard nothing from him, but then he began again. There was, he cried out, no one else who understood him who nerved him to the struggle. That would be because she had sat very still during so many of her hours with him and listened or tried to listen while he talked and talked of himself. But then most men did that. Even Brissac. . . . She couldn't tell him about Henry. She couldn't tell anybody. She found herself, indeed, a frightened little person about whom adult passions raged. And she was herself fairly caught. There was no guessing the course of events. Tragedy seemed, and for that matter was, momentarily possible.

Miniature Dragon Found.

A lizzard that has the appearance of a dragon in miniature has been found in Australia. Natives have named it the bearded dragon or Jew lizard. Another lizard found has around its neck a frill which lies perfectly flat when the creature is at peace, but is raised like a shield around its head in times of danger.

Visits Graveyard in Boat

To inspect an old graveyard, Lord Craigavon, premier to Ireland, recently had to make the journey in a "cot," the primitive boat still used by the people of Galloon Island, in Upper Lough Erne. During the trip his lordship was told that the only industry that the island had ever had was the making of illicit whiskey, but the police had destroyed it.

A railway to connect Aleppo and Bagdad is under construction.

A Good Thing—Don't Overlook It.

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter which contains valuable suggestion: "I feel like a new man since taking Foley's Honey and Tar. I can now sleep all night, soreness in chest and the bad cough entirely gone. My whole family use it for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it.

At 88 Quits Mine for Farm.

After 60 years in the mines of Leicester, England, J. Glamson has decided that at 88 he should become a farmer. He worked 12 hours a day as a miner, he smokes and is not a teetotler. Flamson is the father of seven children, the oldest being 64, and has 20 grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren.

Harmless boasting and good-natured falsifying are what gives the spice to the fisherman's sport.—Bellefontaine Examiner.

Aged Sister Has Long Vigil.

Believing that her seventy-year-old sister, Mary, was only in a trance and would recover, Caroline Haywell, aged 68, guarded the body for three weeks before the two were found recently in Hull, England. The body was lying on a matting before a roaring fire, and was surrounded by loaves of bread and other food.

Mrs. Mary Porter, aged 102, still lives in the same thatched cottage at Bingham, England, in which she was married 80 years ago.

To show the progress of the Dominican people, a national exposition of industry, agriculture and the arts was held recently at Santiago.

SENATOR McNARY STILL TRYING TO GET PLAN FOR FARM RELIEF

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Seator Charles L. McNary of Oregon is spending what ought to be his vacation trying to hit on a farm relief program, for the next session of congress, which President Coolidge can approve.

In the way of an agreement between McNary and the president there is, after all, only one stumbling block:

Thus far the senator has been unable to thing up a scheme that suited him which the chief executive didn't pronounce "economically unsound," while no plan acceptable to Mr. Coolidge is regarded by the Oregon statesman as "any good."

Otherwise they're in hearty accord.

Senator McNary will be recalled as a collaborer with Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which the agricultural bloc succeeded in getting through the last congress, only to see it vetoed by the president, and then to drop, perforce, because the bloc hadn't enough votes to pass it over his head.

Naturally the situation's unsatisfactory to all parties concerned.

McNary, Haugen et al haven't a thing to show for several years' hard work. The president's placed in the light of having turned thumbs down on a proposition the farmers were able to muster a congressional majority for, which isn't calculated to do him any good among the Corn Belt voters, either at the next Republican convention or at the national election of 1928.

If he could give 'em a satisfactory compromise next winter there's no doubt he'd be glad to, only it's a pretty hard thing to compromise.

The McNary-Haugen plan has been argued, pro and con, by all available experts, to the tune of many large volumes, and no conclusion was arrived at, at that.

So there's small hope of settling the question here.

But the nub of it is:

How's the American farmer to be protected against his own competition?

The American manufacturer's protected by keeping competing foreign goods out.

American labor's protected by keeping competing foreign labor out.

The American farmer has to pay for all this protection, for others' benefit, but gets none of his own. The same kind of protection that protects the industries and labor does him no good. His own over-product is what undersells him.

So, to help the farmer, the McNary-Haugen plan proposes an application of the protective tariff principle in reverse—wrong side up, inside out and stern end first.

Heaven knows how it would work, but this much is certain:

It wouldn't work at all until it was wound up with a key, known as an "equilization fee," which the farmer pays, when he markets his crop, to take his surplus off his hands.

Now, mind ye, the machinery absolutely won't run until it's wound up with an "equalization fee" key.

"I'll stand for almost anything," President Coolidge assures Senator McNary, "but I positively draw the line on an equalization fee. It's economically unsound."

What McNary is trying to find, between now and next December, is some way of making his contrivance run without any motive power. He stands about as much chance as he does discovering perpetual motion, most authorities say.

New Phonograph Very Loud.

Said to have the tone volume of 25 orchestral instruments, a phonograph recently invented, is causing much interest in Germany. The tone volume is declared to be augmented by the influx into the soundbox of a mixture of atomized air and oil generated by a hand pump and projected to the resonator.

Exile For Criminals

A new broom sweeps clean, and Mayor Thompson of Chicago is doing a lot of sweeping. If he was elected with the aid of the "lawless element," as his critics charged, the joke seems to be on that element, for His Honor has instructed the chief of police to "drive law-breakers out of Chicago in 30 days."

That will be a historic drive if the order is carried out literally. There will be a criminal hegira such as this country never saw before.

It would be a wonderful thing for Chicago. But how about the other cities, to which the undesirable residents are exiled? This is a not uncommon procedure, with a criminal problem, but doesn't really solve the problem. It means that Chicago will do with her criminal population what she is doing with her sewage. There should be local criminal reduction plants.

Junk Cars

One of the greatest needs of highway transportation today, says the head of an automobile association, is to "get the junk cars off the road."

The streets and highways, he observes, are cluttered up with cars that are barely able to navigate. They limp along with coughing engines and rattling fenders, eyesores to onlookers and a serious menace to other cars. Their brakes do not work, they stall in busy traffic, they fail in high-climbing and hold up the procession, they are always stopping to repair a blow-out or puncture and clogging up the road. They are not only a nuisance to drivers whose cars are in proper condition, but there is peril merely in their presence on the highway, because nobody ever knows what they are going to do or when they will break down.

Some states are now doing their best to eliminate such cars. Connecticut apparently is taking the lead, with state police and local police co-operating. It is a difficult matter to handle, for the citizen with a poor car will usually insist that he has just as much right on the road as his neighbor with a good car. It is hard to legislate in this matter, and rough-and-ready police methods may be questioned.

Surely something can be done, however, in the way of making and enforcing rules that would bar any car from the public highways unless it fulfills certain fundamental mechanical requirements of speed and control. An automobile should be what it purports to be—"self-moving," instead of a traffic obstruction. The place for junk is in the junk yard.

Better facilities for scrapping old cars would help. Possibly the manufacturers could do something along this line, encouraging owners of old wrecks to turn them in at a fair value.

Woodcrafts And Fires

While floods menace the lower Mississippi valley, forest fires are raging in various sections of the East. It is reported that not often in April have the forests of New York State been in such peril as they are at present. On a single day last week fires were reported in a dozen or more rural regions and in the Catskills and Adirondacks.

Automobiles and good roads are increasing the forest fire danger, because they carry into the wooded regions more people than ever ventured there in the days of transportation by horse-drawn vehicles. Many of these visitors to the nation's woods are ignorant of forest fire perils and of campcraft. Rejoicing in the new-found pleasures of forest roving, they do things that horrify the wood-wise camper and burn up or seriously injure the very forests they are learning to love and enjoy.

The increased peril calls for new safeguards and increased vigilance in watching to prevent and check fire. It calls also for increased effort to educate the public in woodcraft and the reasons for forest regulations.

Food Out Of Season

The northern states have been getting fresh vegetables from Florida and southern California for months. They are now getting sweet corn from Texas, grapes from Argentina and peaches from Chile. All winter they have had fresh spinach and lettuce from their own hothouses, and now they have ripe tomatoes from the same source.

People used to have fresh fruits and vegetables only "in season." Now communities with good transportation facilities and up-to-date greenhouses can have them in season and out of season. Soon there will be practically one season for everything—that will be all the year round.

Man is omnivorous, or more nearly so than any of the other animals. His diet is more varied today than ever before, and the variety is always available. This is doubtless one of the main reasons for the improved health of the American people and the greater size and vigor shown by new generations of children.

"The hardest men to find jobs for are those who have married money," says a business writer. Luckily they don't need the jobs.

Dog fashions change as rapidly as fashions in hats. Still we don't quite fathom the news item which says, "Police dogs have given way to ugly canines."

THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND

P. T. Barnum, at the outset of his career as a showman, originated the idea of the Happy Family, taking his cue from that prophecy of Holy Writ wherein it is stated that the lion and the lamb eventually shall lie down together.

The thing proved a sensation. On the opening day, following advertisements in the daily press, crowds flocked to Barnum's museum to stand in front of a cage wherein, with no bars to separate them, were displayed a lion, a tiger, and a panther, and in the midst of these a gentle lambkin, all four dwelling together in seeming amity. News of the marvelous wonder spread and the patronage increased by leaps and bounds. Nevertheless, Mr. Barnum appeared at times, worried.

When the specticle was two weeks old a friend inquired of him how the Happy Family seemed to be getting along.

"Oh, fairly well," said the great showman. "I am going to make a permanent feature of it if only the supply of lambs holds out!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 23.—The Stock Exchange is the pinnacle of New York's high tension. It is a five-hour flurry of human emotions unequaled any other place in the world. Like the Statue of Liberty, it is something the average New Yorker rarely sees.

It becomes a mastodonic football melee with hundreds of players milling, jostling and racing about in an insanity of whirring confusion. It is as though a thousand persons suddenly discovered they had ten seconds to catch their trains.

How members stand it for years and years is high tribute to the elasticity and resiliency of human nerves. The Exchange opens with a staccato boom of a gong. And they're off with all the thud of flying hoofs at a race course.

In the general clamor flash the bright uniforms of 500 page boys. The click of incessant tickers. The frantic gestures of summoning hands at the phone call boards. Hastily scratched bits of paper racing from hand to hand. Hums rising into giant roars. Bedlam.

Millions upon millions in invisible values change in a day. Men often double up as though struck in the stomach as fortunes are swept away and others actually stagger around in the drunkenness of suddenly acquired riches. Delirium and pathos.

In the tautness the prankish spirit often boils to the surface. Especially on dull days or on half day holidays. A new member may be hazed into the idea his entire fortune has been wiped out by a fake manipulation. Lapel flowers squirting water are worn. Other trick deceptions. And in extra hilarious moments they often play leap frog.

And yet here are men who pay slightly less than $200,000 for a seat at the greatest trading post the world has ever known. There is a solemnity in each member wearing a gardenia fresh every morning. It is symbolic of the fact that even among the predatory there is a love for a little touch of beauty.

Nearly all Stock Exchange gardenias worn by members are purchased from an old man near the entrance who has been selling them for years. He is a figure in the money marts. Every financier of prominence knows him and he knows them. He is said to have an extraordinarily large fortune for a humble flower seller. And he wouldn't exchange jobs with the president of the Exchange.

An idea of the difficulty in securing a taxi during a rain after theatre may be gained from the fact that a gentleman marooned under a canopy on West 44th street rushed to a nearby telegraph office and wired to Pelham to have his car sent. It arrived before more than a dozen had been able to secure a taxi.

The umbrella sellers who seem to seep out of the Broadway crevices five minutes after the start of a slashing shower are odd job men about Times Square who keep a supply of umbrellas in convenient places to peddle at the opportune moment.

Not only the human race is being designated by the furious night life, but it is reported that nightly 100 gold fish, which were imported to disport about in water-filled glass tables at a supper club floated up lifeless with wide staring eyes.

A young girl who portrays an alcoholic part had not until recently tasted liquor. She was induced to drink two cocktails at a dinner before the performance and that night she went up completely in her lines.

Farm Waste Products.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—Out in Minnesota there is a chemist who has taken $250 worth of various products from a ton of straw by a process of distillation. His name is George H. Harrison and the things he gets out of straw range from a gas which he has run his automobile to the paint on the body of the car.

His demonstration, to the imaginative mind, points a way to a solution of the pressing problem of what to do for the farmers of the United States who are so insistent that something be done for them. Teach them to save their straw and instruct them in its utilization. The average acre of wheat yields about two tons of straw. Consider the folly of the farmer who saves the grain and throws away the stray, when the grain is not worth more than $25 or $30 at best whereas the straw has a potential value of $500!

In an average year about 60,000,000 acres are devoted to wheat growing in this country, and the acreage has run above 75,000,000. The banner production year was in 1915 when slightly more than 60,000,000 acres were harvested and the crop ran a little above 1,000,000,000 bushels. But all that grain was worth less than a billion dollars at the average farm price on December 1 of that year, while the straw, if utilized to the maximum of Mr. Harrison's ability, would have been worth thirty times that much.

Of course it could not have had a farm value of that fabulous amount, for putting straw through the Harrison laboratory processes is expensive, but with all that potential treasure buried in his strawstack. Hi, the poor farmer, who has succeeded in the public interest that other famous American character, Lo, the poor indian, is bound to sit up and take notice. He may even decide to study chemistry and set up a laboratory somewhere between the woodshed and the kitchen.

What There is in Straw.

A ton of straw makes a fair-sized stack. Burn it and all there is left is about 40 pounds of ashes. Approximately 1960 pounds have gone up in smoke, and it is that part of the strawstack that yields most of Mr. Harrison's products. Thus from each ton of straw, which he processes by fine-choping and forcing it through tubes heated to 1200 degrees Fahrenheit, he gets 12,600 cubic feet of gas, after having used one-third of the gas generated from the straw to maintain the temperature.

Condensed, the gas he has left yields 640 pounds of carbon, 400 pounds of pitch, and 15 gallons of oil. The carbon can be ground into high quality paints, it is said, and waterproofing materials can be made from the pitch. Straw oil is a germicide and a disinfectant, in the latter use being superior to coal tar products in its strength and in its being non-irritant, neither burning nor destroying living tissues.

Lignin, which is found in straw, stalks, and most plant refuse, has a fair chance of besting coal tar in the variety of its product. Dr. C. A. Browne, chief of the bureau of Chemistry of the department of Agriculture, says that it "probably offers as many methods of utilization for the manufacture of tanning materials, dyestuffs, and other industrial products as was offered eighty years ago by that other trade waste, coal tar, which has proved to be an almost inexhaustible source of wealth."

But straw is only one of the farm waste products—those hitherto so regarded—that can be coined into regular money. Take the homely cornstalk and the humble cob, as further examples. At the department of Agriculture there is a list of 217 products and uses of corn, but most of these are of the grain, which represents only about one-fourth of the weight of the corn plant. Stalk, leaves, cobs, silks, and tassels are for the most part wasted, but the chemists are getting busy to put at end to that sort of thing and already they are saying there is more potential cash value in the stalk and cob than there is in the corn.

Products derived from the grain of the corn include breakfast foods, oils, grease, and paint, toilet preparations, explosives, alcohol, confectionery, fireworks, shaving soap, roof and floor coverings, varnishes, syrups and sugars, radio parts, imitation leather, rubber sustitutes, laundry soaps, and scores of others. Something like 80 per cent of the corn grown annually in the United States is fed to livestock, but its other uses are so varied and so profitable that the time may come, it is predicted, when feeding it to animals will be regarded as wasteful.

Millions of Tons of Cobs.

Cornstalks are used to a considerable extent for fodder for farm animals, but the corncobs, of which we have an annual crop of more than 20,000,000 tons are almost all burned or got rid of in some other way. The important chemical, furfural, can be made from the cobs, and furfural can be processed to make such articles as telephone receivers, radio horns, phonograph records, pipestems, and cigarette holders. Other uses to which both the stalks and the cobs may be put are wall board, paper, adhesive, charcole, fuel, embalming fluids, solvents and pipes.

Great quantities of corn, potatoes, and fermentable wastes such as fruit that are now sold by the farmer at a loss or actually thrown away may in time be utilized in the manufacture of alcohol that can be used as a substitute for gasoline for power purposes. This, however, will not come about until the price of gasoline has advanced materially, for it costs too much to produce fael alcohol to compete with the petroleum product at present prices.

WELLSVILLE ARSON CASE TO BE HEARD MONDAY

NATHAN JONES FACES COMMON PLEAS TRIAL

HEARING AT 11 A. M.

Defendant Charged With Firing Home to Get Insurance.

Arrested on a charge of arson following a fire which damaged the interior of the home in which he was living, near Twelfth street, several weeks ago, Nathan Jones, colored, is scheduled to go on trial Monday morning at 11 o'clock in common pleas court.

Jones was indicted by the last grand jury with arson and intent to prejudice insurers.

Although Jones' case was scheduled for an earlier hearing Monday, it was expected that it will be delayed until just before noon on account of the fact that several hours will be required to finish the hearing in the case of Thomas Cadwallader and others against C. V. Rakestraw, of Salem.

The court has appointed Attorney W. A. O'Grady to defend Jones, because the latter is unable himself to supply funds to employ counsel.

Paul Brandt Asks Divorce.

Extravagance of his wife is charged in the petition for divorce filed in common pleas court by Paul Brandt, through his counsel, Raymond Knepper of Wellsville, against his wife, Alice Brandt, residing on Eighteenth Street Heights, and in addition to a decree, Brandt asks for the custody of his son William, now aged two years.

The petition relates the couple were married at New Cumberland, W. Va., Sept. 27, 1923.

Brandt claims that his wife contracted debts against his small income to the amount of 1,500, and because of alleged mismanagement and extravagance of the plaintiff he was unable to meet his obligations. He also claims that his wife failed to give their home the attention it required.

William Horlick, Originator of Malted Milk

The food product now known all over the world as Malted Milk was discovered by William Horlick at Racine, Wisconsin. This was the first time in history that whole cow's milk was reduced to powder form together with the nutritive extracts of malted cereals, so that it was readily transportable and would keep in any climate. He named the product, "Malted Milk."

Years later, in 1895, Mr. Horlick combined Malted Milk with chocolate, cocoa and other flavorings, made up in tablet and other forms.

The great discovery of Horlick's Malted Milk has been the means of saving thousands upon thousands of lives, especially of infants and invalids requiring a highly nutritious and easily digested food, many of them in tropical regions or places where good milk was not obtainable. It has been carried by explorers everywhere, and by Amundsen and Peary to the North and South Poles.

In recognition of services rendered to Polar exploration, the rank of Knighthood in the Royal Norwegian Order of St. Olaf was conferred upon Mr. Horlick by King Haakon of Norway.

LEAGUE FIGHTS CREEK POLLUTION

Issuing warnings to a saw mill which had been operating along Yellow Creek, the Izaak Walton league, of Toronto, has taken initial steps in a plan to prevent pollution, as much as possible, of creek waters this summer.

Game wardens, co-operating with the league, have announced that the saw mill operators have moved the mill away from the creek and sawdust and other refuse now is being piled up instead of thrown into the creek.

Investigation was begun after a conference with John E. Monger, director of health, Columbus.

Under sections of the general code, fines can be imposed for "corrupting or rendering unwholesome or impure a water course, stream or other water."

The league, it is said, has decided to bring proceedings in cases of the kind that are not corrected after due warning has been given.

BAKER ADVISES CLEAN-UP WEEK

Urges Citizens to "Brush Up" Around Homes.

"Whether or not council decides to take any action toward a clean-up week, it would be a good thing for the city to have one, anyway," declared President of Council Clyde Baker today, in suggesting that citizens devote their individual attention to brushing up a little around their property.

Cleaning away the dirt, old cans and refuse of the winter would help to prevent accumulation of filth and germ breeding facilities and consequently, would not only aid in beautifying home surroundings but also prove a boon to health conditions, Baker points out.

Baker suggested that council take action for a clean-up week but solons failed to go on record at their last meeting.

Boy Scout Meet Monday.

DEMSEY PLANS FIGHT JUNE 29

NEW YORK, April 23.—Jack Dempsey's much discussed return to the ring was set today at June 29 by Humbert J. Fugazy, rival promoter of Tex Rickard. Fugazy claimed that he had Dempsey's agreement to box for him on that date at the Polo grounds against the winner of the Young Stribling-Tommy Loughran bout, which will be held at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on May 3.

"I have Dempsey's word that he will be ready for either Stribling or Loughran on that date," Fugazy declared. "The match will take place under the auspices of the American Legion of New York, with myself as the promoter."

Fugazy declined to say how much he had offered Dempsey for the match.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 23.—The railroad stocks were the centers of interest in an active and irregular short session of the stock market today. Price movements in the motor and specialty stocks were erratic, with the bulk of active shares moving downward in response to heavy week-end profit and short selling. The oils displayed considerable weakness, most of the well known independent oils sinking to new low prices.

The rise in railroad stock prices was led by Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, Atchison and other of the high grade dividend shares which have been at the head of the rail list for the last two or three years. The so-called merger stocks were also well bought.

General Motors and Hudson moved upward a point or two in response to persistent buying. Briggs Manufacturing declined four points to the year's lowest price of 28 as the result of an explosion in the Detroit plants which caused considerable damage. Dodge, Packard and Pierce Arrow were unable to rally. Oil stocks were thrown overboard in hurried liquidation as conditions in the oil trade appeared to be more unsatisfactory than at any time this year.

International Nickel retained its position of leadership in the specialties, with a new advance to 58⅞ on buying attributed to Canadian traders. Universal Pipe, International Combustion and Colorado Fuel and Iron were slightly reactionary. Equipment and sugar stocks marked time. United States Steel forged to the front in the second hour, with heavy trading around 172.

2,000 PERSONS FACE DEATH IN FIERCE FLOODS

Refugees, Marooned Near Helenana, Ark., Scream for Help.

76 KNOWN DEAD

Thousands Homeless as Levees Along Mississippi Breaks.

HELENANA, Ark., April 23.—Marooned on a crumbling levee two and a half feet wide, doomed to sure death if not rescued within twelve hours, 2,000 refugees were frantically screaming for help at Knowlton's landing, 50 miles south of here, as raging waters of the Mississippi river today continued to lash away inches of the levee at a time.

Such was the critical condition described by R. P. Beith, farmer, who came 50 miles in his motorboat last night to Helena river officials for immediate aid.

The steamer Wabash, the only large boat available for rescue work at the present, left the landing last night with 750 of the refugees—all she could carry—leaving 2,000 persons behind, said Beith.

The Wabash had not arrived here this morning but was enroute from Knowlton's landing with a load of refugees, according to a radio report received from her.

With the death toll slowly mounting, extraordinary measures were being taken today to save thousands of persons marooned by the swirling, turbid waters of the Mississippi river.

Never in history has the lower Mississippi valley, from Cairo to the gulf, suffered such a disastrous flood.

There are approximately 75 known dead in the area. Thousands are homeless, millions of acres of fertile farm lands are under water. Damage will run into millions.

Reports to the Red Cross indicate that 75,000 persons need food, clothing and shelter. This number is expected to double within a few days. The Red Cross is seeking to raise a $5,000,000 relief fund.

A slow, horrible death is facing 2,000 terror stricken refugees at Knowlton's landing, Ark. They are marooned on a levee two and one half feet wide. The rushing waters are gradually eating away the ground from under them. Unless relief comes within the next 12 hours they are believed doomed.

The flood is expected to reach a peak within the next ten days in the lower Mississippi. Heroic efforts are being made to strengthen protecting levees in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The governor has ordered the evacuation of 13,000 refugees in Greenville, Miss.

GREENVILLE, Miss., April 23.—Evacuation of Greenville, center of the rich Mississippi delta, was ordered today by Governor Dennis Murphree.

The Mississippi floods have inundated Greenville to the extent of eight feet, with water still pouring over the protecting levee, and the governor ordered the 13,000 refugees removed at once.

They will be taken to higher places in a fleet of boats.

More than 1,500 refugees were taken from a levee surrounding Greenville early today and sent to Vicksburg for safety. The steamer Tollinger, towing three barges, made the transfer without loss of life.

Reports from outlying sections today indicated that at least 30 negroes were drowned when the levee broke near Scott Wednesday. Hundreds of houses were swept away on the plantations and a dozen towns flooded from the break.

Major Paxton, of the Mississippi National Guard, is in charge of the relief work. Motor boats are in Greenville, to save lives, officials said.

Sanitary conditions were bad today in Greenville, following the failure of the water system yesterday. River water is being used for drinking purposes.

Several boats, small ones, have been capsized and lost in the eastern section of the city, where the current in the streets is 25 miles an hour.

Second story houses were in demand today. Every available one was filled with refugees.

Workmen were making every effort to get the city's waterworks back in operation to restore sanitary conditions. Business is at a standstill.

Pair Held

down Pennsylvania avenue to Boyce street and turned into Beechwood and from that point proceeded out McKinnon avenue. Questioned by Hoover he stated that the car was going at the rate of about 10 miles an hour when the crash happened. He stated that the car had stopped about 20 feet from the scene.

Claims McGraw Was Speeding.

Henry Miller, another passenger in the Flame car, testified that the Ford machine driven by McGraw was going at about 40 miles an hour when it hit their car when questioned by Attorney Cochran. He stated in answer to a series of questions by Attorney Bennett who pressed him closely that he did not see the Ford before it struck the Packard and that his speed estimate was simply based on the noise of the impact. He denied that any liquor was in the car when queried by Attorneys Cochran and Bennett.

Hugh Tomlinson, Michigan avenue, the third passenger, gave similar testimony but became badly confused after stating that his view of the Ford car was blocked by "a house" and the Northside fire station when Attorney Bennett pointed out that the fire station which sets back from the street could not obscure his view while there was no "house" on that side of the street.

Flame Is Called.

Flame, after stating that he was the owner of the machine, related how he and D'Amico stopped in Klondyke and picked up Wolf, Tomlinson and Miller. He then described the route taken to the scene of the accident. He gave it as his opinion that the Packard was going between 10 and 15 miles as it neared the intersection of McKinnon and St. Clair avenues. He stated that the McGraw car was coming down the hill at a rate of speed he estimated at between 40 and 45 miles.

Questioned on this point by Attorney Bennett he admitted that he only saw the Ford machine when it was about six or eight feet from his machine.

Questioned about his business he replied that he was proprietor of a soft drink place and that he employed Di Amico as a chauffeur from time to time. He stated he helped pick up the injured youth and carried him to the fire station.

Howard Smith, testified that he was sitting in the seat of the Ford car operated by McGraw while Wilhams and Carson Hancock stood on the running board. He detailed the trip which took them to Calcutta to which place all four rode inside the machine. Questioned by Solicitor Hoover he stated that the car slowed up coming down the hill to the intersection near the fire station. He said that he noticed the Packard coming out McKinnon avenue at a high rate of speed. Questioned by Attorney Cochran as to the presence of a five gallon gasoline can and hose found in the car in which he was riding he declared he did not know anything about it.

Eye Witness Testifies.

Harry Johannes, Northside drug store proprietor, testified that he was on the porch of the home of Attorney Samuel W. Crawford when the crash happened. Asked to estimate the speed at which both cars were traveling he stated that the Ford was averaging about 40 miles an hour, while he believed the Packard was making about 20 miles per hour. He described in detail the scene when the machines met and was put through a rigid cross-examination by Attorney Bennett who asked him if his testimony did not conflict with that given at the hearing the day following the accident. He stated that he did not hear any horns blown, which fact had been testified to by other witnesses including drivers of both cars.

Attorney Samuel W. Crawford, St. Clair avenue, stated that he did not see either car before the collision but at the sound of the crash he arose from his porch and saw them together. He stated in answer to Attorney Cochran that a gasoline can and a piece of hose four feet long fell out of the Ford.

Rowland Kaufman, Fairmont street, stated that he was in bed when he heard the crash. Arising he noticed from his window two men running from Smithfield street toward Orchard Grove avenue.

D' Amico testified he was 20 years of age and had been driving a car for four years. He was questioned by Solicitor Hoover and went over the ground covered by Flame and the other passengers on the trip from East End. He declared that he was going at between 10 and 15 miles while the Ford, he stated, was traveling at about a 40-mile pace. Hard pressed by Attorney Bennett he was forced to admit that he did not see the Ford until it bumped into the car he was driving, and therefore could not give an accurate estimate as to just how fast it was going. He also stated that there was no liquor in the machine.

Carson Hancock, who was riding on the running board of the McGraw car, testified that the machine slowed down as it left the hill near the cemetery. He estimated the speed of the Packard at 40 miles an hour. Under cross examination by Attorney Cochran he also admitted that he did not see the Packard until the machines were in striking distance. He denied knowledge of the presence of a gasoline can and piece of hose in the automobile.

McGraw Last Witness.

Gerald McGraw, driver of the Ford and the last witness called testifying in answers to questions of Attorney Bennett declared that above the cemetery he was going between 30 and 35 miles an hour but he slackened the speed at the top of the hill. He said that he sounded his horn. Asked to estimate the speed at which the Packard was going he replied it was going "pretty fast."

He told Attorney Cochran that he had bought the gasoline can and that the hose was given to him by another youth.

Judge Hanley questioned him at length relative to the car which he said he secured in a trade with a Cincinnati man whom he met while enroute here from Birmingham, Ala., where he went two weeks ago. He said he brought the man here and made the deal leaving his own machine with a broken piston on the road near Cincinnati. He declared he did not know the license numbers on the car on the night of the accident.

WOMAN HELD IN MURDER QUIZ

DAYTON, O., April 23—An indictment charging first degree murder was returned by the county grand jury here today against Mrs. Elizabeth Foltz, in connection with the death of Frank Carter, who died at the State hospital here, shortly after he was admitted in February. It is charged that he died of poisoning. Mrs. Foltz, in a statement to authorities, made shortly after Carter's death, admitted that she had given Carter, with whom she lived as his common law wife, some medicinal substance "to keep him from drinking liquor."

REED IMPROVING AT HOSPITAL

DETROIT, April 25.—Senator James A. Reed is improving rapidly at the Henry Ford hospital, physicians said today.

"Senator Reed's appetite is much better and he is in a cheerful frame of mind," it was stated.

Senator Reed went to the hospital for observation as a result of abdominal pains.

He expects to leave within a day or so, it was said.

a spurt of flames from the Duco plant," Artue said. "Usually about 200 men are employed on the third floor where the explosion happened. We carried out about 50. Some were seriously injured and some apparently only slightly burned. As far as we know other workmen on other floors escaped. A few may have been trapped by falling stairways of debris."

Fire Follows Explosion.

The blast rocked the entire East side. Coins at the Detroit railway barns a half mile away jingled and the windows of neighboring buildings were shattered. A large portion of the plant wall toppled with the blast.

Immediately dense funnels of thick, black smoke gushed from the building and in a few minutes the low hanging clouds were lit by flames shooting 100 feet into the sky. The crimson glow could literally be seen for miles.

More than 200 girls and women employed in the cushion department of the plant, were saved from injury by the presence of mind of William Borkowski, foreman of the fifth floor.

Survivor Tells Story.

Abraham Mayer, an employe of the company, working on the third floor at the time of the explosion declared many bodies were left behind in the raging inferno.

"I was working on the third floor when the explosion occurred," Mayer said at a local hospital, where he was removed for treatment.

"There was a terrible roar. Men fell to the floor unconscious. I made my way to the outside, stumbling over bodies on the way. "Rescue workers tried to reach the trapped men but the smoke was so dense it was impossible. I believe there are many dead on the third floor."

To prove that he was recovering from the effects of a motor accident,

GLEN ROBIN MAN CHARGED WITH WIFE'S MURDER FOUND INSANE

Self Confessed Slayer Will be Sent to Lima.

MOTHER TESTIFIES

Defendant Claims he Had "Lack of Knowledge."

Adjudged insane by a sanity commission following a hearing yesterday afternoon in probate court at Steubenville, Theodore Boley, 27, self confessed slayer of his wife, Goldie Boley, an East Liverpool girl, will be committed to the state institution for criminal insane at Lima.

Boley choked his wife to death March 31, at their home in Glen Robin, Jefferson county and surrendered to Steubenville police several hours after the crime.

Six witnesses testified at the hearing, among them Boley's mother and three brothers. Drs. S. O. Barkhurst and J. Miller, who examined Boley several weeks ago, testified to his insanity.

They said that at the time of their examination of Boley in jail they believed him insane; that from their examination at that time they believed him to be insane at the time of the crime.

A hypothetical question based on all family history and facts brought out in the evidence was put to the physicians who answered that Boley was insane at the time of the crime and is yet insane.

Boley was called upon to testify in his own behalf shortly before noon.

"I've told you all I know," he told the prosecutor. "If you want to find out how I came to do it, you'll have to get trace of it through the witnesses you have had. If you get any trace of it through them, or anyone else, allright. Read the Bible and you'll find out. But I refuse to tell—and I will die first before I will tell the secret of why I killed her."

Boley attributed his deed to "lack of knowledge" but no amount of questioning could bring him to admit just what the "lack of knowledge" was, nor would he say why he committed the crime.

"Did you know when you started to choke your wife that you meant to kill her?" he was asked.

Boley looked down at his hands which he had been nervously wringing.

"Yes, I did."

"Do you think you were insane when you killed your wife," Merryman asked.

"I say I wasn't insane. But I do say I had lack of knowledge," Boley answered.

During the entire testimony, Boley sat in one position, utterly calm. His eyes, swept the faces about him, lingering first on one and then on another.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 23.—The railroad stocks were the centers of interest in an active and irregular short session of the stock market today. Price movements in the motor and specialty stocks were erratic, with the bulk of active shares moving downward in response to heavy week-end profit and short selling. The oils displayed considerable weakness, most of the well known independent oils sinking to new low prices.

The rise in railroad stock prices was led by Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, Atchison and other of the high grade dividend shares which have been at the head of the rail list for the last two or three years. The so-called merger stocks were also well bought.

General Motors and Hudson moved upward a point or two in response to persistent buying. Briggs Manufacturing declined four points to the year's lowest price of 28 as the result of an explosion in the Detroit plants which caused considerable damage. Dodge, Packard and Pierce Arrow were unable to rally. Oil stocks were thrown overboard in hurried liquidation as conditions in the oil trade appeared to be more unsatisfactory than at any time this year.

International Nickel retained its position of leadership in the specialties, with a new advance to 58⅞ on buying attributed to Canadian traders. Universal Pipe, International Combustion and Colorado Fuel and Iron were slightly reactionary. Equipment and sugar stocks marked time. United States Steel forged to the front in the second hour, with heavy trading around 172.

2,000 PERSONS FACE DEATH IN FIERCE FLOODS

76 KNOWN DEAD

Thousands Homeless as Levees Along Mississippi Breaks.

HELENANA, Ark., April 23.—Marooned on a crumbling levee two and a half feet wide, doomed to sure death if not rescued within twelve hours, 2,000 refugees were frantically screaming for help at Knowlton's landing, 50 miles south of here, as raging waters of the Mississippi river today continued to lash away inches of the levee at a time.

Such was the critical condition described by R. P. Beith, farmer, who came 50 miles in his motorboat last night to Helena river officials for immediate aid.

The steamer Wabash, the only large boat available for rescue work at the present, left the landing last night with 750 of the refugees—all she could carry—leaving 2,000 persons behind, said Beith.

The Wabash had not arrived here this morning but was enroute from Knowlton's landing with a load of refugees, according to a radio report received from her.

With the death toll slowly mounting, extraordinary measures were being taken today to save thousands of persons marooned by the swirling, turbid waters of the Mississippi river.

Never in history has the lower Mississippi valley, from Cairo to the gulf, suffered such a disastrous flood.

There are approximately 75 known dead in the area. Thousands are homeless, millions of acres of fertile farm lands are under water. Damage will run into millions.

Reports to the Red Cross indicate that 75,000 persons need food, clothing and shelter. This number is expected to double within a few days. The Red Cross is seeking to raise a $5,000,000 relief fund.

A slow, horrible death is facing 2,000 terror stricken refugees at Knowlton's landing, Ark. They are marooned on a levee two and one half feet wide. The rushing waters are gradually eating away the ground from under them. Unless relief comes within the next 12 hours they are believed doomed.

The flood is expected to reach a peak within the next ten days in the lower Mississippi. Heroic efforts are being made to strengthen protecting levees in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The governor has ordered the evacuation of 13,000 refugees in Greenville, Miss.

GREENVILLE, Miss., April 23.—Evacuation of Greenville, center of the rich Mississippi delta, was ordered today by Governor Dennis Murphree.

The Mississippi floods have inundated Greenville to the extent of eight feet, with water still pouring over the protecting levee, and the governor ordered the 13,000 refugees removed at once.

They will be taken to higher places in a fleet of boats.

More than 1,500 refugees were taken from a levee surrounding Greenville early today and sent to Vicksburg for safety. The steamer Tollinger, towing three barges, made the transfer without loss of life.

Reports from outlying sections today indicated that at least 30 negroes were drowned when the levee broke near Scott Wednesday. Hundreds of houses were swept away on the plantations and a dozen towns flooded from the break.

Major Paxton, of the Mississippi National Guard, is in charge of the relief work. Motor boats are in Greenville, to save lives, officials said.

Sanitary conditions were bad today in Greenville, following the failure of the water system yesterday. River water is being used for drinking purposes.

Several boats, small ones, have been capsized and lost in the eastern section of the city, where the current in the streets is 25 miles an hour.

Second story houses were in demand today. Every available one was filled with refugees.

Workmen were making every effort to get the city's waterworks back in operation to restore sanitary conditions. Business is at a standstill.

Pair Held

down Pennsylvania avenue to Boyce street and turned into Beechwood and from that point proceeded out McKinnon avenue. Questioned by Hoover he stated that the car was going at the rate of about 10 miles an hour when the crash happened. He stated that the car had stopped about 20 feet from the scene.

Claims McGraw Was Speeding.

Henry Miller, another passenger in the Flame car, testified that the Ford machine driven by McGraw was going at about 40 miles an hour when it hit their car when questioned by Attorney Cochran. He stated in answer to a series of questions by Attorney Bennett who pressed him closely that he did not see the Ford before it struck the Packard and that his speed estimate was simply based on the noise of the impact. He denied that any liquor was in the car when queried by Attorneys Cochran and Bennett.

Hugh Tomlinson, Michigan avenue, the third passenger, gave similar testimony but became badly confused after stating that his view of the Ford car was blocked by "a house" and the Northside fire station when Attorney Bennett pointed out that the fire station which sets back from the street could not obscure his view while there was no "house" on that side of the street.

Flame Is Called.

Flame, after stating that he was the owner of the machine, related how he and D'Amico stopped in Klondyke and picked up Wolf, Tomlinson and Miller. He then described the route taken to the scene of the accident. He gave it as his opinion that the Packard was going between 10 and 15 miles as it neared the intersection of McKinnon and St. Clair avenues. He stated that the McGraw car was coming down the hill at a rate of speed he estimated at between 40 and 45 miles.

Questioned on this point by Attorney Bennett he admitted that he only saw the Ford machine when it was about six or eight feet from his machine.

Questioned about his business he replied that he was proprietor of a soft drink place and that he employed Di Amico as a chauffeur from time to time. He stated he helped pick up the injured youth and carried him to the fire station.

Howard Smith, testified that he was sitting in the seat of the Ford car operated by McGraw while Wilhams and Carson Hancock stood on the running board. He detailed the trip which took them to Calcutta to which place all four rode inside the machine. Questioned by Solicitor Hoover he stated that the car slowed up coming down the hill to the intersection near the fire station. He said that he noticed the Packard coming out McKinnon avenue at a high rate of speed. Questioned by Attorney Cochran as to the presence of a five gallon gasoline can and hose found in the car in which he was riding he declared he did not know anything about it.

Eye Witness Testifies.

Harry Johannes, Northside drug store proprietor, testified that he was on the porch of the home of Attorney Samuel W. Crawford when the crash happened. Asked to estimate the speed at which both cars were traveling he stated that the Ford was averaging about 40 miles an hour, while he believed the Packard was making about 20 miles per hour. He described in detail the scene when the machines met and was put through a rigid cross-examination by Attorney Bennett who asked him if his testimony did not conflict with that given at the hearing the day following the accident. He stated that he did not hear any horns blown, which fact had been testified to by other witnesses including drivers of both cars.

Attorney Samuel W. Crawford, St. Clair avenue, stated that he did not see either car before the collision but at the sound of the crash he arose from his porch and saw them together. He stated in answer to Attorney Cochran that a gasoline can and a piece of hose four feet long fell out of the Ford.

Rowland Kaufman, Fairmont street, stated that he was in bed when he heard the crash. Arising he noticed from his window two men running from Smithfield street toward Orchard Grove avenue.

D' Amico testified he was 20 years of age and had been driving a car for four years. He was questioned by Solicitor Hoover and went over the ground covered by Flame and the other passengers on the trip from East End. He declared that he was going at between 10 and 15 miles while the Ford, he stated, was traveling at about a 40-mile pace. Hard pressed by Attorney Bennett he was forced to admit that he did not see the Ford until it bumped into the car he was driving, and therefore could not give an accurate estimate as to just how fast it was going. He also stated that there was no liquor in the machine.

Carson Hancock, who was riding on the running board of the McGraw car, testified that the machine slowed down as it left the hill near the cemetery. He estimated the speed of the Packard at 40 miles an hour. Under cross examination by Attorney Cochran he also admitted that he did not see the Packard until the machines were in striking distance. He denied knowledge of the presence of a gasoline can and piece of hose in the automobile.

McGraw Last Witness.

Gerald McGraw, driver of the Ford and the last witness called testifying in answers to questions of Attorney Bennett declared that above the cemetery he was going between 30 and 35 miles an hour but he slackened the speed at the top of the hill. He said that he sounded his horn. Asked to estimate the speed at which the Packard was going he replied it was going "pretty fast."

He told Attorney Cochran that he had bought the gasoline can and that the hose was given to him by another youth.

Judge Hanley questioned him at length relative to the car which he said he secured in a trade with a Cincinnati man whom he met while enroute here from Birmingham, Ala., where he went two weeks ago. He said he brought the man here and made the deal leaving his own machine with a broken piston on the road near Cincinnati. He declared he did not know the license numbers on the car on the night of the accident.

WOMAN HELD IN MURDER QUIZ

DAYTON, O., April 23—An indictment charging first degree murder was returned by the county grand jury here today against Mrs. Elizabeth Foltz, in connection with the death of Frank Carter, who died at the State hospital here, shortly after he was admitted in February. It is charged that he died of poisoning. Mrs. Foltz, in a statement to authorities, made shortly after Carter's death, admitted that she had given Carter, with whom she lived as his common law wife, some medicinal substance "to keep him from drinking liquor."

REED IMPROVING AT HOSPITAL

DETROIT, April 25.—Senator James A. Reed is improving rapidly at the Henry Ford hospital, physicians said today.

Senator Reed went to the hospital for observation as a result of abdominal pains.

He expects to leave within a day or so, it was said.

a spurt of flames from the Duco plant," Arnue said. "Usually about 200 men are employed on the third floor where the explosion happened. We carried out about 50. Some were seriously injured and some apparently only slightly burned. As far as we know other workmen on other floors escaped. A few may have been trapped by falling stairways of debris."

Fire Follows Explosion.

The blast rocked the entire East side. Coins at the Detroit railway barns a half mile away jingled and the windows of neighboring buildings were shattered. A large portion of the plant wall toppled with the blast.

Immediately dense funnels of thick, black smoke gushed from the building and in a few minutes the low hanging clouds were lit by flames shooting 100 feet into the sky. The crimson glow could literally be seen for miles.

More than 200 girls and women employed in the cushion department of the plant, were saved from injury by the presence of mind of William Borkowski, foreman of the fifth floor.

Survivor Tells Story.

Abraham Mayer, an employe of the company, working on the third floor at the time of the explosion declared many bodies were left behind in the raging inferno.

"I was working on the third floor when the explosion occurred," Mayer said at a local hospital, where he was removed for treatment.

"There was a terrible roar. Men fell to the floor unconscious. I made my way to the outside, stumbling over bodies on the way. "Rescue workers tried to reach the trapped men but the smoke was so dense it was impossible. I believe there are many dead on the third floor."

To prove that he was recovering from the effects of a motor accident,

GLEN ROBIN MAN CHARGED WITH WIFE'S MURDER FOUND INSANE

Self Confessed Slayer Will be Sent to Lima.

Defendant Claims he Had "Lack of Knowledge."

Adjudged insane by a sanity commission following a hearing yesterday afternoon in probate court at Steubenville, Theodore Boley, 27, self confessed slayer of his wife, Goldie Boley, an East Liverpool girl, will be committed to the state institution for criminal insane at Lima.

Boley choked his wife to death March 31, at their home in Glen Robin, Jefferson county and surrendered to Steubenville police several hours after the crime.

Six witnesses testified at the hearing, among them Boley's mother and three brothers. Drs. S. O. Barkhurst and J. Miller, who examined Boley several weeks ago, testified to his insanity.

They said that at the time of their examination of Boley in jail they believed him insane; that from their examination at that time they believed him to be insane at the time of the crime.

A hypothetical question based on all family history and facts brought out in the evidence was put to the physicians who answered that Boley was insane at the time of the crime and is yet insane.

Boley was called upon to testify in his own behalf shortly before noon.

"I've told you all I know," he told the prosecutor. "If you want to find out how I came to do it, you'll have to get trace of it through the witnesses you have had. If you get any trace of it through them, or anyone else, allright. Read the Bible and you'll find out. But I refuse to tell—and I will die first before I will tell the secret of why I killed her."

Boley attributed his deed to "lack of knowledge" but no amount of questioning could bring him to admit just what the "lack of knowledge" was, nor would he say why he committed the crime.

"Did you know when you started to choke your wife that you meant to kill her?" he was asked.

Boley looked down at his hands which he had been nervously wringing.

"Yes, I did."

"Do you think you were insane when you killed your wife," Merryman asked.

"I say I wasn't insane. But I do say I had lack of knowledge," Boley answered.

During the entire testimony, Boley sat in one position, utterly calm. His eyes, swept the faces about him, lingering first on one and then on another.

THE GRAB BAG

April 23, 1927.

This photo of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt was snapped in 1921, when she received the appointment as assistant attorney general of the U. S. What special cases does she handle for the department?

MRS. M. W. WILLEBRANDT

Today marks the anniversary of the birth of fifteenth president of the United States, the only bachelor president. Can you give his name?

Name a word meaning to amuse or to entertain.

In the province of Ontario, Canada, there are two capital cities, one the seat of the provincial government and the other the capital of the dominion. Can you name them?

The Rocky Mountains extends north and south on the western side of the North American continent. Can you name the range of mountains extending down the eastern side?

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Where does this passage occur in the Bible?

Today's Horosope.

Person born under this sign should very early in life conquer indecision of character. They should map out the course they mean to pursue and march honorably forward.

Snappy Sayings.

Knows Himself.

A farmer went into a city restaurant. Beside him sat two men eating fish. Presently one of them signaled the waiter and ordered a bottle of near-beer. "The fish want to swim," he added. The farmer, who had ordered roast pork, thought this a clever remark: "Waiter," he roared, "a bottle of near-beer—the pig wants a drink!"

Why Not?

The sergeant was taking the recruits' squad.

"For the last time," he shouted "I ask you the simple question: 'What is a fortification?'"

The recruits stood fast to a man. No one answered. Striding up to the most intelligent-looking man, the N. C. O. bawled: "Tell me, what is a fortification?"

The answer came like a cork out of a bottle:

"Two twentification's, sergeant!"

Native Pride.

There was a very slight earthquake felt in St. Moritz on one occasion and the same day a genial visitor, on taking his seat at a restaurant table, remarked to the waiter, who understood little English:

"Well, you have earthquakes here, do you?"

"Earthquakes" beat Giuseppe, but he would not admit anything that he thought implied a lack in the hotel.

"Oh, yes, sare," he replied, "we do have them, but they are not quite ripe yet. They have been ordered from Zurich, and should be here next week."

mer to realize a profit, for it is used in the manufacture of combs, buttons, shoe horns, poker chips, and billiard balls. Casein is also used in large quantities in finishing high grade printing papers such as are used in books and magazines, and still another use is as a binder in washable paints for walls and woodwork.

Cheese whey is another agricultural waste to which the scientists are now directing their attention. It is estimated that some three billion pounds of whey goes to waste each year, and at the same time it presents a serious problem to the manufacturers in effecting a sanitary disposal of it. Now it is suggested that organic solvents, such as butyl alcohol, acetone, and lactic acid can be made from the whey.

All this utilization of agricultural wastes may not offer immediate benefit to the individual farmer, but it is all working out to the ultimate advantage of the agricultural industry. And there is one waste that is rapidly being eliminated with immediate profits—the waste of labor through unscientific and inefficient farming methods.

LOSES $32,000 IN "CON" GAME

CINCINNATI, O., April 23.—Joseph H. McQueen, of Pax, W. Va., almost fell for a "pigeon dropping game," most ancient of swindles. He "tumbled" before he parted with his bankroll of $32,000, he told police, but he saw the light too late, for two men who had attempted to entice his money from him by gentler methods turned "strong arm squad" and forcibly robbed him in a hotel room here.

McQueen met a man in a hotel lobby and together they "found" a pocketbook containing $116 and a telegram containing a third man's name. They looked up the third man, who in "gratitude," invested the $116 in the "stock market" and agreed to share the profits with his benefactors. McQueen and the latter's new found "friend." The money rapidly increased, and McQueen was induced to return to Charleston and bring back $32,000 to put in a "big stock deal" that promised quick profits. Returning to the Cincinnati hotel McQueen became suspicious, whereupon the two men seized him, bound his hands, took his money and disappeared, he told police.

BUSINESS MEN GIVEN WARNING

"Gyp" Auto Organizations Reported to Have Visited Here.

Columbiana county business men are warned against operations of "gyp" automobile organizations, two or three of which are reported to have "fleeced" county residents out of sums ranging from $7 to $100 each. The warning was sounded by E. M. Diehl, secretary of the Columbiana County Motor club.

Garage and filling station proprietors in East Liverpool, an auto repair shop and an individual owner in Wellsville, an individual and a restaurant owner in Lisbon, and a garage owner at Salem are reported to have been victimed by the swindlers who have visited this district recently.

A salesman, who sold a so called "commercial membership" to a Lisbon restaurant owner, misrepresenting the membership as that issued by the American Automobile Association, is now serving a prison term in Michigan, having been apprehended through the efforts of the American Automobile Association.

Various methods are said to have been used by other strangers to obtain money from the unsuspecting business man. Business people are urged to investigate before subscribing to these projects, many of which have an advertising feature.

Spring Find You Languid?

Waste Impurities in the Blood Make One Tired and Listless.

TO feel constantly tired, lame and achy is often indication of improper elimination. The kidneys are the blood filters. Sluggish function, however, permits retention of waste poisons and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache. A common symptom of imperfect kidney function is scanty or burning excretions.

Assist the kidneys at such times with a stimulant diuretic. Since 1885 Doan's Pills have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. T. W. Barker, Graduate Nurse, 302 W. Pecan St., Sherman, Tex., says: "Doan's Pills is the only proprietary medicine I have ever recommended. I have not only used Doan's myself with excellent results, but many times have recommended them and have been thanked for so doing."
Sworn to before me,
John C. Dannel, N.P.

Lambert W. Cox, Westover, Md., says: "Doan's Pills proved their value to me. My kidneys acted sluggishly and the secretions were scant and scalding. There was such a soreness across my back that I couldn't bend or stoop. I was told to use Doan's Pills and shall always be glad that I did. They put me in fine shape."

THE GRAB BAG

April 23, 1927.

This photo of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt was snapped in 1921, when she received the appointment as assistant attorney general of the U. S. What special cases does she handle for the department?

MRS M.W.WILLEBRANDT

Today marks the anniversary of the birth of fifteenth president of the United States, the only bachelor president. Can you give his name?

Name a word meaning to amuse or to entertain.

In the province of Ontario, Canada, there are two capital cities, one the seat of the provincial government and the other the capital of the dominion. Can you name them?

The Rocky Mountains extends north and south on the western side of the North American continent. Can you name the range of mountains extending down the eastern side?

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Where does this passage occur in the Bible?

Today's Horoscope.

Person born under this sign should very early in life conquer indecision of character. They should map out the course they mean to pursue and march honorably forward.

Snappy Sayings.

Government promises a limit to radio. Our next door neighbor's set reached it long ago.

Answers to Foregoing Questions.

1. Cases under prohibition laws.
2. James Buchanan.
3. To dicert.
4. Toronto and Ottawa
5. Appalachian.
6. Luke II, Chap. 14.

Knows Himself.

A farmer went into a city restaurant. Beside him sat two men eating fish. Presently one of them signaled the waiter and ordered a bottle of near-beer. "The fish want to swim," he added. The farmer, who had ordered roast pork, thought this a clever remark: "Waiter," he roared, "a bottle of near-beer—the pig wants a drink!"

Why Not?

The sergeant was taking the recruits' squad.

"For the last time," he shouted "I ask you the simple question: 'What is a fortification?'"

The recruits stood fast to a man. No one answered. Striding up to the most intelligent-looking man, the N. C. O. bawled: "Tell me, what is a fortification?"

The answer came like a cork out of a bottle:

Native Pride.

There was a very slight earthquake felt in St. Moritz on one occasion and the same day a genial visitor on taking his seat at a restaurant table, remarked to the waiter, who understood little English:

"Well, you have earthquakes here, do you?"

"Earthquakes" beat Giuseppe, but he would not admit anything that he thought implied a lack in the hotel.

"Oh, yes, sare," he replied, "we do have them, but they are not quite ripe yet. They have been ordered from Zurich, and should be here next week."

mer to realize a profit, for it is used in the manufacture of combs, buttons, shoe horns, poker chips, and billiard balls. Casein is also used in large quantities in finishing high grade printing papers such as are used in books and magazines, and still another use is as a binder in washable paints for walls and woodwork.

Cheese whey is another agricultural waste to which the scientists are now directing their attention. It is estimated that some three billion pounds of whey goes to waste each year, and at the same time it presents a serious problem to the manufacturers in effecting a sanitary disposal of it. Now it is suggested that organic solvents, such as butyl alcohol, acetone, and lactic acid can be made from the whey.

All this utilization of agricultural wastes may not offer immediate benefit to the individual farmer, but it is all working out to the ultimate advantage of the agricultural industry. And there is one waste that is rapidly being eliminated with immediate profits—the waste of labor through unscientific and inefficient farming methods.

Senecaville Pastor To Fill Madison Pulpit Tomorrow

Rev. E. G. Morris, Senecaville, in the Cambridge Presbytery will occupy the pulpit of the Madison Presbyterian church, Lincoln Highway, at 11:30 o'clock next Sunday morning. Sunday school will meet at the usual hour 10:30.

Rev. Mr. Morris will also preach at the Curry Memorial Presbyterian church at 7:30 p. m. He is a candidate for the place recently made vacant by the resignation of Rev C. Howard Rank, who accepted a call to the Independence, Pa., church.

MALE CHORUS PLANS CONCERT

Boy Violinist to be Featured in Church Program.

The Apollo Male Chorus of the First Presbyterian church have announced a novel program which will be presented in concert in the auditorium of the church at 8 o'clock, next Friday evening.

This will be the second concert program given by the male chorus this season. In addition to the chorus numbers they will feature a child prodigy, Master Freddie Vogelsang, six years old of Canton, who plays the violin. He is considered a marvel of the age, and plays all the difficult numbers by the great composers.

Several novelties will be introduced in this program which will surpass the concert given here in February. Both piano and organ will be used to support the heavy chorus numbers.

There will be no admission but an offering will be taken to cover cost of presenting the concert and to apply on the purchasing of the piano for the church, which the male chorus have installed.

Salem Motorist Fined Following Automobile Crash

Chal Miller, of Salem, was fined $25 and costs by Mayor J. L. Hum, of Columbiana, last night, on a charge of reckless driving.

Miller was arrested by a Columbiana officer following an auto accident Sunday night in Columbiana when Miller's machine was reported to have struck a car driven by Robert Carson, of Pittsburgh.

Charles Grove, of Salem, a passenger in the Miller machine, sustained serious injuries in the wreck.

JANET KIPPEN AND GIRL BAND, CERAMIC, MONDAY

Seven Entertainers Appear in Conjunction With Bebe Daniels' Picture, 'A Kiss in a Taxi.'

Janet Kippen and her girl band—seven classy entertainers—will appear at the Ceramic theatre in conjunction with Bebe Daniels' new starring picture, "A Kiss in a Taxi," on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Kippen, one of the best known directors of girls band on the stage, and her entertainers completed a long tour of the B. F. Keith-Albee Circuit in Buffalo, N. Y., last Saturday night.

All of her girl musicians have been selected for their entertaining ability as well as musical education. The organization is acknowledged to be one of the leading girls' bands playing today.

Special musical arrangements, new ideas in song and dance and excellent staging mark the offering.

Chester Conklin is an irresistible male in "A Kiss in a Taxi," the French farce.

The talented comedian plays the part of Maraval, treasurer of the French Artists' Association, whose life is made miserable by the repeated adoring advances of his attractive secretary, Jocelyn Lee.

Clarence Badger directed "A Kiss in a Taxi." With Conklin in Miss Daniels' supporting cast are: Douglas Gilmore, Henry Kolker, Richard Tucker, Agostino Borgato and Eulalie Jensen.

LOSES $32,000 IN "CON" GAME

CINCINNATI, O., April 23.—Joseph H. McQueen, of Pax, W. Va., almost fell for a "pigeon dropping game," most ancient of swindles. He "tumbled" before he parted with his bankroll of $32,000, he told police, but he saw the light too late, for two men who had attempted to entice his money from him by gentler methods turned "strong arm squad" and forcibly robbed him in a hotel room here.

McQueen met a man in a hotel lobby and together they "found" a pocketbook containing $116 and a telegram containing a third man's name. They looked up the third man, who in "gratitude," invested the $116 in the "stock market" and agreed to share the profits with his benefactors, McQueen and the latter's new found "friend." The money rapidly increased, and McQueen was induced to return to Charleston and bring back $32,000 to put in a "big stock deal" that promised quick profits. Returning to the Cincinnati hotel McQueen became suspicious, whereupon the two men seized him, bound his hands, took his money and disappeared, he told police.

BUSINESS MEN GIVEN WARNING

"Gyp" Auto Organizations Reported to Have Visited Here.

Columbiana county business men are warned against operations of "gyp" automobile organizations, two or three of which are reported to have "fleeced" county residents out of sums ranging from $7 to $100 each. The warning was sounded by E. M. Diehl, secretary of the Columbiana County Motor club.

Garage and filling station proprietors in East Liverpool, an auto repair shop and an individual owner in Wellsville, an individual and a restaurant owner in Lisbon, and a garage owner at Salem are reported to have been victimed by the swindlers who have visited this district recently.

A salesman, who sold a so called "commercial membership" to a Lisbon restaurant owner, misrepresenting the membership as that issued by the American Automobile Association, is now serving a prison term in Michigan, having been apprehended through the efforts of the American Automobile Association.

Various methods are said to have been used by other strangers to obtain money from the unsuspecting business man. Business people are urged to investigate before subscribing to these projects, many of which have an advertising feature.

"Seventh Guest," Melo-Drama Farce, at Strand on Monday

Two New Members Will Appear in Stock Company Cast Next Week—Monday is Ladies' Day.

A corps of workers were busy back stage at the Strand theatre today building and painting scenery for the next week's production while the current bill is being played. As fast as the stage crew builds new scenery the scenic artist applies the brush.

Jack Gilcrest, the new leading man, will open Monday in "The Seventh Guest" in the part of Paul Scott. Bennett Mercer, another new member, will make his appearance in the role of Kito, the Jap.

Marie Ilka, the clever little leading lady, has made many friends in the part of "Patsy."

Hamilton Christy, who played the part of Tony, was taken ill and had to step out of the cast for a few days, but was back in harness today.

Director Bennett promises Strand patrons a wonderful production next week in the "Seventh Guest," a melo-dramatic farce in three acts. On Monday ladies will be admitted free if accompanied by purchaser of one reserved seat.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium." 121 West Fifth Street.

632. Was there a time when God only knew, "the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations" (Colossians 1:26)?

Answer: Yes; for in Ephesians 3:9 it says: "The mystery which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God." That is to say, it was not known by anyone but God till Jesus came into the world.

633. How is this shown in Revelation 5:1?

Answer: "And I saw in the right hand of him that sat upon the throne (It was in God's Power—hand—alone) a book (the Scriptures telling about the kingdom of Christ) written within and on the backside, sealed with seven seals."

634. How were books writen in those days?

Answer: They were written by hand and upon long strips of parchment (sheep-skin) and were rolled up like a window curtain.

635. If it was "written within and the backside, sealed with seven seals," how much of it could be read?

Answer: Only a very small portion of it; for when sealed, not any of what was on the inside could be read and most of all of what was written "on the backside" would be rolled in out of sight so could not be read.

636. What then is the explanation of this verse?

Answer: God's plan for the most part was kept entirely secret, known only to the Father, until Jesus came and proved Himself worthy.

637. Who was "the Lamb" that "took the book out of the right hand of Him that sat upon the throne." (V. 7)?

Answer: It was Jesus Christ, for John the Baptist said of Him: "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."John 1:29.

638. Why did the Father let His Son "take the book and open the seals thereof" (V. 9)?

Answer: "For thou wast slain." (V.9.) That is to say, the Father held the mysteries of His plan in His right hand, in His own power, kept it all to Himself, kept it secret, until Jesus consecrated Himself at thirty years old to carry out the Father's plan even to the laying down of His own life. See Hebrews 2:9.

PENN AVENUE WORSHIP HOUSE 24 YEARS OLD

Rev. Mr. Cleberger Headed Church of Christ Movement.

MEMBERS ACTIVE

Sunday School Rooms Recently Added to Building.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Christian church, also known as Tabernacle Church of Christ, came into existence 24 years ago when services were held in what is known as the Weaver building, now an apartment house, on First avenue, East End.

Rev. Mr. Cleberger headed the movement to organize the church, although Rev. J. H. Weaver had previously conducted a Sunday school. Rev. Mr. Pitman was the first pastor, serving from the time of its organization until 1906 when he was succeded by Rev. Oldham.

Rev. Mr. Oldham remained until 1910, when he resigned. At that time the membership had increased to about 250. The next pastor was Rev. Britain. It was during his pastorate that the congregation purchased the lot at 1302 Pennsylvania avenue and erected its first church building. The original building was about one-half the size of the present structure.

Rev. Mr. Britain was followed by Rev. James Ridgley, Irondale. Next came Rev. Mr. Beatty who is now in Tokio, Japan; Rev. Myers, Rev. Munson and then Rev. A. J. Travis, now pastor of the Island Avenue Christian church at McKees Rocks, Pa. Rev. C. Melvin McKay, who came to this city from Worthington, Ind., will complete his first year of service on May .

During a revival campaign early this year, conducted by the Fife brothers, known as the "Log Cabin Boys of Kentucky," a large addition was built to the church. Because of the style of the edifice it was given the name of the Tabernacle Church of Christ.

Some of the church activities during the past year include the organization of a Men's Booster club, ladies' council, increased Endeavor work and a general Gospel crusade.

The membership is approximately 200. Alonzo Sells is chairman of the official board.

Additional Sunday school rooms were recently added to the church and the choir loft and the pulpit enlarged.

SERM-O-GRAM

Present day clinics are administering "Prophetic Medicine" with a resultant lengthening of life. The Apostle Paul beat them to it by nearly nineteen centuries: "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

There is a little church with a big gospel, and you are invited.

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

632. Was there a time when God only knew, "the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations" (Colossians 1:26)?

Answer: Yes; for in Ephesians 3:9 it says: "The mystery which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God." That is to say, it was not known by anyone but God till Jesus came into the world.

633. How is this shown in Revelation 5:1?

Answer: "And I saw in the right hand of him that sat upon the throne (It was in God's Power—hand—alone) a book (the Scriptures telling about the kingdom of Christ) written within and on the backside, sealed with seven seals."

634. How were books writen in those days?

Answer: They were written by hand and upon long strips of parchment (sheep-skin) and were rolled up like a window curtain.

635. If it was "written within and the backside, sealed with seven seals," how much of it could be read?

Answer: Only a very small portion of it; for when sealed, not any of what was on the inside could be read and most of all of what was written "on the backside" would be rolled in out of sight so could not be read.

636. What then is the explanation of this verse?

Answer: God's plan for the most part was kept entirely secret, known only to the Father, until Jesus came and proved Himself worthy.

637. Who was "the Lamb" that "took the book out of the right hand of Him that sat upon the throne." (V. 7)?

Answer: It was Jesus Christ, for John the Baptist said of Him: "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."John 1:29.

638. Why did the Father let His Son "take the book and open the seals thereof" (V. 9)?

Answer: "For thou wast slain." (V.9.) That is to say, the Father held the mysteries of His plan in His right hand, in His own power, kept it all to Himself, kept it secret, until Jesus consecrated Himself at thirty years old to carry out the Father's plan even to the laying down of His own life. See Hebrews 2:9.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Christian church, also known as Tabernacle Church of Christ, came into existence 24 years ago when services were held in what is known as the Weaver building, now an apartment house, on First avenue, East End.

Rev. Mr. Cleberger headed the movement to organize the church, although Rev. J. H. Weaver had previously conducted a Sunday school. Rev. Mr. Pitman was the first pastor, serving from the time of its organization until 1906 when he was succeded by Rev. Oldham.

Rev. Mr. Oldham remained until 1910, when he resigned. At that time the membership had increased to about 250. The next pastor was Rev. Britain. It was during his pastorate that the congregation purchased the lot at 1302 Pennsylvania avenue and erected its first church building. The original building was about one-half the size of the present structure.

Rev. Mr. Britain was followed by Rev. James Ridgley, Irondale. Next came Rev. Mr. Beatty who is now in Tokio, Japan; Rev. Myers, Rev. Munson and then Rev. A. J. Travis, now pastor of the Island Avenue Christian church at McKees Rocks, Pa. Rev. C. Melvin McKay, who came to this city from Worthington, Ind., will complete his first year of service on May .

During a revival campaign early this year, conducted by the Fife brothers, known as the "Log Cabin Boys of Kentucky," a large addition was built to the church. Because of the style of the edifice it was given the name of the Tabernacle Church of Christ.

Some of the church activities during the past year include the organization of a Men's Booster club, ladies' council, increased Endeavor work and a general Gospel crusade.

The membership is approximately 200. Alonzo Sells is chairman of the official board.

Additional Sunday school rooms were recently added to the church and the choir loft and the pulpit enlarged.

"The Bible is God's Work," Sermon by Rev. C. McKay

Pastor of Pennsylvania Christian Church Tells of Two Books Which Reveal Almighty of Wisdom and Creator of Love.

Text:—"But men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit."

"I am, therefore God is, for no man ever made himself. I speak, therefor, God spake, for no man has ever spoken who was not first spoken to."

God has given to man two books—the book of nature and the book of revelations. The book of nature reveals a God of love, and this is the highest and best revelation. It reveals God as our Father.

The Book is here; if God did not write it, who did? Man could not have done it, and he would not if he could. It is a book that reveals man's defects and pronounces condemnation upon his head. All of the combined wisdom of all of the combined ages could never have written this Book. We are certain that the devil did not write, it for it is opposed to his kingdom, and to follow its teachings will mean the destruction of the devil and the kingdom. It is antagonistic to all that is devilish.

Let me give you only a few reasons for believing it came from God and that it is the product of inspiration. Men of God spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit, says the apostle. It cannot be destroyed, and therefore we argue that its indestructibility is a proof of its inspiration. When Moses saw the burning bush, the flames loomed and the fire burned, but the bush could not be consumed. God was in it. God is in the old Book and it cannot be destroyed. It has come to us through a river of blood. Every page is stained with the blood of the martyrs. Some one says: "It has been upset more times than any other book, and yet it is a solid cube right side up every time. "It is like the Irishman's fence which was five feet thick and three feet high, and some one said: "Pat, are you not afraid to keep fooling with that fence—afraid you will upset it?" Pat replied: "Faith, if I do, it will be two feet higher after I've completed the job!" It is this way with the Bible. Every time a destructive critic or an infidel makes an attack on it, it comes before the people with renewed power and strength. Those who oppose it and tried to destroy it in the past ages have been almost forgotten, and were it not for the fact that they linked themselves to its history, would not be thought of today. Voltaire predicted that within one hundred years there would be no Bibles, but the hundred years had rolled around, the Christian people were printing Bibles on the very printing press which had been used by the French infidel, Thomas Paine did his best to kill it in his day and generation, but today there are millions of men reading the Book, and never in the world's history have we had so many copies of the Bible, and in so many languages, as we have today. No book attracts attention as does this one. Can you picture the scene in New York when the new version came from the press; express wagons loaded with Bibles and the Bible houses unable to supply the demand? Think of it; 118,000 words sent by telegraph to Chicago in order that the people in that locality might be able to read the message at the same time they were reading it in New York!

The style of the Book is another reason for believing in its inspiration. When you translate a piece of literature into a foreign tongue it loses its personality and its individuality. "Shakespeare's magic could not copied be;
Within that circle none durst walk but me."

The moment you translate his writings, and put them into another tongue, they lose their power. Not so with the Bible; you can put it into every dialect, and you can create a language and then put it into the one you have created, and it is still the powerful, uplifting, soul-saving message. It is a universal Father speaking to his universal family. Its conciseness is characteristic. You write the history of the Johnstown flood and you will have a book of hundreds of pages, but when God wrote the history of the greatest flood the world has ever seen, he put it into a few sentences, and you cannot add to it. It is a perfect description. If you write the history of a man, you will use pages, but God can write the history of a nation and put it into a few paragraphs, and you are impressed with it as being finished.

Its Unlooseness.—Suppose the president should issue a proclamation calling upon men from every country under the "Stars and Stripes" to bring to the city of Washington, on a certain day, pieces of marble taken from the quarries of their own land, and these men, ignorant of each other's work, should come to the city on that day and place their pieces of marble, and when it was all done, without the use of a hammer or chisel, there would go up a beautiful and magnificent temple, perfect in form and in design. What would be your conclusion—that each man wrought under the direction of some master mechanic or that it was miraculous? Here we have sixty-six blocks of spiritual marble, and they have been quarred by fourty men and at different times and in different places, and when they are put into proper form we have the beautiful and magnificent spiritual temple of inspired wisdom and truth in which God is pleased to dwell. How do you account for it upon any other bases than that all of them wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit?

Its Influence.—Just as the desert is made to blossom because of the presence of teh spring of water, so society is blessed by the word of God. Wm. E. Gladsone said: "After fifty-eight years of public life—forty-seven in the English cabinet—having been associated with sixty master minds of the world, all but five were Christians."

Who would live in a community of infidels? The Bible in a community guarantees protection to property and to life. Two young men were traveling in what was then termed the "wild West." One night they stopped at a cabin and asked to be taken for the night. One of the young men was an infidel and the other was a devout Christian. The infidel said to his companion: "I am afraid to stay here all night. This old man would kill you for a quarter. I have determined to take my revolver to bed with me, and to cut a hole in the bed quilt and peep out with my hand on my pistol and be ready to shoot." When the time came to retire, the old man got his big family Bible and said: "Young men, it is our custom to read God's word and pray before going to bed. I hope you will join us." He then read the chapter, and they got down on their knees and he prayed: Father bless these young men, who are so far away from home. Keep them from danger, and from the power of the evil one. Bless their parents who are so anxious about them tonight. Comfort them with the thought that God will be unto them a Father and that He will care for and protect them, we beg in Jesus' name." The infidel was the first to get into his bed. The Christian noticed that he did not have his revolver and that he had not cut the hole in the bed-quilt, and he asked him why he had not made provision for his safety. He replied: "That old man wouldn't hurt you." The presence of that Bible and the fact that he was a man of prayer made the man feel he was safe. Suppose he had placed on his table a deck of cards and a bottle of moonshine and said, "Now, gentlemen, we want to have a good time before we retire, "what would have been the effect on the man, do you think?

Internal Proofs.—A discussion took place one day concerning miracles. A Jew was present and heard the discussion, and he said: "I am a Jew and I do not believe in miracles. I do not believe in the Virgin birth. I am from Missouri and you will have to show me. "This is the attitude of the Jew generally speaking toward Christianity. But the Jew himself is a good answer to the doubter. The prophet hundreds of years ago prophecied that the Jew would be a hissing and a byword without a dwelling place. The Jew is a miracle of the twentieth century. Jews everywhere in great numbers but without a nation. A hissing and a byword among the nations of the earth. Men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

Fulfilled prohphecy is the miracle of the age. Had we time, we could give a sermon on fulfilled prophecy. Take the 333 that relate to Christ, and all were fulfilled to the letter.

It Is Not a Scientific Book.—The Bible is not a Book of Science; it is a revelation of God and the way to Heaven. It does not contradict science, however. Many people try to find flaws in the Bible; try to find contradiction. In holding a meeting one time I was using a query box, giving the people a chance to ask questions on the Bible and an infidel would cram the box with hard questions, and then leave as soon as I had answered the questions, refusing to hear me preach. One night he became angry at the answers that I gave and arose and said that he did not believe the Bible because it contradicted science. I asked him to show one place where there was a contradiction, and he said: "Your Bible says that God in six days of 24 hours each made the heavens and the earth, and this would be an impossibility. It would have taken millions of years for the earth to have cooled off." I gave him the Bible and asked him to show me the statement, and he was a long time finding the chapter of Genesis. When he read it I did not see the statement. He read again: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." I stopped him and asked: "When was the beginning?" He could not tell. Then I said: "God created all this in the beginning, and we do not know how long that was, but we know that the evening and the morning were the first day. Now, there was no day until the earth revolved on its axis, and it did not revolve until it had been created and cooled off, and the evening and the morning made the first day. No contradiction." Then he said: "Your Bible says that Abraham was a man after God's own heart; but Abraham was an old liar, and I have no respect for a Bible that makes such a man a man after God's own heart. "I asked him that I was glad to hear it, but I wanted to know if he ever told a lie. He admitted that when in a tight place he might have prevaricated. I told him that Abraham was in a tight place and prevaricated, and that God told the truth on him. That, fortunately for him, God had not seen fit to write his history, and when he did the world would learn a lot of which it was then ignorant. The Bible tells both sides—the good and the bad.

It Is Its Own Interpreter.—A noted lawyer, who had been for many years an infidel, was told by his physician that he had organic trouble and could live only a short while. He went to his associate in law, a Presbyterian elder, and asked: "Have you a book that will prove the Bible?" His partner handed him the Bible and told him to read it. He said: "You do not understand. I want a book to prove the Bible." "Then," said the lawyer "go home and read your Bible." He noticed the emphasis on the command, and he went home and began to read it. One morning he came into the office and his partner asked him how he was getting on with his Bible. He said: "I wan to know where that man Cain got his wife." Men are continually asking this question. The Bible was not written to tell where every man got his wife. You do not know where I got mine, and it is none of your business, and yet it is just as necessary to know where I got a wife as to know where Cain got one. It is a bad business to be looking after some other man's wife. He was told to keep on reading his Bible. He came in one day, and again was asked how he was getting on. He said: "I am trying to find out if that flood was universal." He was told to just keep on reading his Bible. One day he came and was greatly excited. He said: "I am a lawyer and have been practicing law for many years, and I would like to know where that man Moses got that law. It would have taken a God to have given such a code. I am convinced and I am not a believed. "We read too much ABOUT the Bible and not enough OF it.

Not a Book of Theology.—The Bible is not a book of theology. God made some stars and hung them up in the Heavens, and then man made a telescope and began to study stars and then wrote out what he thought about stars and called that astronomy. God made the stars and man made the astronomy. God made the rocks and man began to dig and blast and analyze the rocks and called that geology. God made the rocks and man made the geology. God made the daisy to laugh on the hillside and man began to pick it to pieces, and then wrote what he thought about it and called it botany. God made the flowers and man made the botany. God made a Bible and man began to study it, and then wrote out his interpretations of it and called that theology. The world will go to sleep on theology, but it will sit up and listen when you give it the simple word of God. It is hungry for it.

One time a minister was visiting another minister, and he was taken into his cellar when he had a lot of dried leaves, broken sticks and roots and a smoky lamp. He said: "Here is where I study botany." The visitor started to pick up one of the dead sticks, and the man said: "Don't touch it; it will break." Then the visitor said: "Let me out into the fresh air when I can smell the fragrance of living flowers. I do not want to live among a lot of dead leaves and roots; they are musty and you dare not touch them for fear they will break." This is the way it is of the sermons that are composed of men's opinions and the old, musty, lifeless doctrines, the world will not stand for them.

The Bible is God's universal library. Do you want to study astronomy? Then, behold the Bright and Morning Star. Do you want to study geology? Then read about the Rock of Ages. Do you want to study botany? Then take some lessons in the Rose of Sharon or the Lily of the Valley. Do you want to study biology? Then become acquainted with the one who is the Way, the Truth and the Life.

The Bible will do to live by and to die by. A noted infidel was called to the bedside of his daughter who was dying. Her mother was an earnest Christian, and had taught her to believe in the promises contained in the blessed old Book. The father had told her it was all a myth. She took the hand of her father and said: "Father, I am dying. Mother says the Bible is true, and that Jesus is my saviour and that he has gone to prepare a home for me, and that he will come and take me to be with him. You say it is all a lie. I am dying, and I want to know—must I believe you or must I believe mother?" The infidel, with the tears streaming down his cheeks, said: "My child you believe your mother." I am a poor, blind, helpless cripple, and the Bible is my only crutch. Will you be so cruel as to try to knock it from beneath me?

Syrians Fight French On Transfiguration Mountain

Present Rebellion In Holy Land Links Mount Hermon to Rendezvous of Bible's Three Greatest Prophets, Says Sunday School Lesson Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Ever since the World War there has been almost continuous fighting in some part of the Holy Land. The heaviest and longest sustained is that between the Syrians and the French, which has cost many thousands of lives, unmeasured suffering, the destruction of great areas of property, including the center of the City of Damascus, and many millions of dollars. In the course of all of this fighting, many familiar Biblical sites have been involved. The Druses, who have been in the forefront of the Syrian revolt against the French, have centered their activities in the Hauran, the romantic region of mountains and cave-cities southeast of Mt. Hermon, merging into the ancient Bashan, of which Og was king. Mount Hermon itself has also been a Druse stronghold; for most of the villages are occupied, at least in part, by this mysterious and hardy people.

Despite the recurrence of the name of Mount Hermon in the meagre war news from Syria, the famous mountain is better known in connection with the Transfiguration of Jesus. Every traveller in Syria learns to love Hermon, the peak that far overtops all others in the land. The Arab name for it is "Jebel esh-Sheikh." or "white-haired mountain," because of the snow that crowns the summit almost all the year round. The older name for it, which appears in the Book of Deuteronomy, is "Shenir,"—"The Banner;" suggested by the way the peak is uplifted above all others as a beautiful standard. Mt. Hermon is slightly over nine thousand feet high, and from north east to southwest it extends twenty miles.

Always this has been a holy mountain. Again and again the Old Testament alludes to it as a symbol. Existing ruins on the sides and top show that pagan temples were built there in earliest times. While Hermon is not named as the scene of the Transfiguration, it is indicated as the "high mountain;" and no other peak has ever been suggested as a rival site, except Tabor, which was crowned by a Roman citadel in our Lord's day, and so scarcely could have been available. Such a sublime event as the Transfiguration called for the greatest stage as its setting. Jesus, the Open Air Man, lover of the hills, turned naturally to the mountains in His hours of greatest spiritual experience.

One Man's Memories.

Really great experiences need the help of no note book to make them abide in memory. Because Peter shared the marvelous experience of Jesus on Hermon's height, it stayed with him vividly. He told Mark about it, for record in his Gospel; and, even when he was old, Peter himself wrote ecstatically of the event in his Second Letter. To have shared a great hour—that is life. We never get away from the influence of our profoundest experiences.

It was the urge to pray that took Jesus and His three intimates off to the "retreat" on the mountain eyrie. Prayer and apartness were more necessary to Him than bread. Luke records that it was "as He was praying" that the Transfiguration was wrought. Wonders befall as men pray. It was in these lonely times of separation and communion that Jesus tapped the Sources of Power that produced His wondrous words and life. Is there any more depressing symptom of our day than the eagerness of most people to shun aloneness, and to be ever with a crowd, and to have "something doing" all the while? Men seem afraid to keep company only with their own spirits. George Herbert's admonition was never more needed than now:

"By all means use some times to be alone.
Salute thyself; see what thy soul doth wear;
Dare to look within thy chest, for it is thine own,
And tumble up and down what thou findest there."

Companionship could go only part way with Jesus: it is one of the profound truths of human life that man's nearest and dearest cannot enter with him into his deepest spiritual experiences. The three friends were comrades with Christ for the long, hard climb up the slope of Hermon; but, as was the case with the same three later at Gethsemane, they were heavy with sleep outside the circle of their Master's uttermost hour. Nothing is more touching in all the narrative of the life of Jesus than His yearning for the fellowship of His friends. He craved their understanding and intimacy even more intensely than they felt their need of Him. Every life baffled in pursuit of true love finds sympathy in the affectionate nature of the Master whose friends could never fully understand Him; and could never go all the way with Him. Peter often had impulses to go the limit, but his flesh always failed him.

Three "Failures" in Rendezvous.

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

Pastor of Pennsylvania Christian Church Tells of Two Books Which Reveal Almighty of Wisdom and Creator of Love.

Text:—"But men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit."

"I am, therefore God is, for no man ever made himself. I speak, therefor. God spake, for no man has ever spoken who was not first spoken to."

God has given to man two books—the book of nature and the book of revelations. The book of nature reveals a God of love, and this is the highest and best revelation. It reveals God as our Father.

The Book is here; if God did not write it, who did? Man could not have done it, and he would not if he could. It is a book that reveals man's defects and pronounces condemnation upon his head. All of the combined wisdom of all of the combined ages could never have written this Book. We are certain that the devil did not write, it for it is opposed to his kingdom, and to follow its teachings will mean the destruction of the devil and the kingdom. It is antagonistic to all that is devilish.

Let me give you only a few reasons for believing it came from God and that it is the product of inspiration. Men of God spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit, says the apostle. It cannot be destroyed, and therefore we argue that its indestructibility is a proof of its inspiration. When Moses saw the burning bush, the flames loomed and the fire burned, but the bush could not be consumed. God was in it. God is in the old Book and it cannot be destroyed. It has come to us through a river of blood. Every page is stained with the blood of the martyrs. Some one says: "It has been upset more times than any other book, and yet it is a solid cube right side up every time. "It is like the Irishman's fence which was five feet thick and three feet high, and some one said: "Pat, are you not afraid to keep fooling with that fence—afraid you will upset it?" Pat replied: "Faith, if I do, it will be two feet higher after I've completed the job!" It is this way with the Bible. Every time a destructive critic or an infidel makes an attack on it, it comes before the people with renewed power and strength. Those who oppose it and tried to destroy it in the past ages have been almost forgotten, and were it not for the fact that they linked themselves to its history, would not be thought of today. Voltaire predicted that within one hundred years there would be no Bibles, but the hundred years had rolled around, the Christian people were printing Bibles on the very printing press which had been used by the French infidel. Thomas Paine did his best to kill it in his day and generation, but today there are millions of men reading the Book, and never in the world's history have we had so many copies of the Bible, and in so many languages, as we have today. No book attracts attention as does this one. Can you picture the scene in New York when the new version came from the press; express wagons loaded with Bibles and the Bible houses unable to supply the demand? Think of it; 118,000 words sent by telegraph to Chicago in order that the people in that locality might be able to read the message at the same time they were reading it in New York!

The style of the Book is another reason for believing in its inspiration. When you translate a piece of literature into a foreign tongue it loses its personality and its individuality. "Shakespeare's magic could not copied be;
Within that circle none durst walk but me."

The moment you translate his writings, and put them into another tongue, they lose their power. Not so with the Bible; you can put it into every dialect, and you can create a language and then put it into the one you have created, and it is still the powerful, uplifting, soul-saving message. It is a universal Father speaking to his universal family. Its conciseness is characteristic. You write the history of the Johnstown flood and you will have a book of hundreds of pages, but when God wrote the history of the greatest flood the world has ever seen, he put it into a few sentences, and you cannot add to it. It is a perfect description. If you write the history of a man, you will use pages, but God can write the history of a nation and put it into a few paragraphs, and you are impressed with it as being finished.

Its Uniqueness.—Suppose the president should issue a proclamation calling upon men from every country under the "Stars and Stripes" to bring to the city of Washington, on a certain day, pieces of marble taken from the quarries of their own land, and these men, ignorant of each other's work, should come to the city on that day and place their pieces of marble, and when it was all done, without the use of a hammer or chisel, there would go up a beautiful and magnificent temple, perfect in form and in design. What would be your conclusion—that each man wrought under the direction of some master mechanic or that it was miraculous? Here we have sixty-six blocks of spiritual marble, and they have been quarred by fourty men and at different times and in different places, and when they are put into proper form we have the beautiful and magnificent spiritual temple of inspired wisdom and truth in which God is pleased to dwell. How do you account for it upon any other bases than that all of them wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit?

Its Influence.—Just as the desert is made to blossom because of the presence of teh spring of water, so society is blessed by the word of God. Wm. E. Gladsone said: "After fifty-eight years of public life—forty-seven in the English cabinet—having been associated with sixty master minds of the world, all but five were Christians."

Who would live in a community of infidels? The Bible in a community guarantees protection to property and to life. Two young men were traveling in what was then termed the "wild West." One night they stopped at a cabin and asked to be taken for the night. One of the young men was an infidel and the other was a devout Christian. The infidel said to his companion: "I am afraid to stay here all night. This old man would kill you for a quarter. I have determined to take my revolver to bed with me, and to cut a hole in the bed quilt and peep out with my hand on my pistol and be ready to shoot." When the time came to retire, the old man got his big family Bible and said: "Young men, it is our custom to read God's word and pray before going to bed. I hope you will join us." He then read the chapter, and they got down on their knees and he prayed: Father bless these young men, who are so far away from home. Keep them from danger, and from the power of the evil one. Bless their parents who are so anxious about them tonight. Comfort them with the thought that God will be unto them a Father and that He will care for and protect them, we beg in Jesus' name." The infidel was the first to get into his bed. The Christian noticed that he did not have his revolver and that he had not cut the hole in the bed-quilt, and he asked him why he had not made provision for his safety. He replied: "That old man wouldn't hurt you." The presence of that Bible and the fact that he was a man of prayer made the man feel he was safe. Suppose he had placed on his table a deck of cards and a bottle of moonshine and said, "Now, gentlemen, we want to have a good time before we retire, "what would have been the effect on the man, do you think?

Internal Proofs.—A discussion took place one day concerning miracles. A Jew was present and heard the discussion, and he said: "I am a Jew and I do not believe in miracles. I do not believe in the Virgin birth. I am from Missouri and you will have to show me. "This is the attitude of the Jew generally speaking toward Christianity. But the Jew himself is a good answer to the doubter. The prophet hundreds of years ago prophecied that the Jew would be a hissing and a byword without a dwelling place. The Jew is a miracle of the twentieth century. Jews everywhere in great numbers but without a nation. A hissing and a byword among the nations of the earth. Men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

Fulfilled prohpecy is the miracle of the age. Had we time, we could give a sermon on fulfilled prophecy. Take the 333 that relate to Christ, and all were fulfilled to the letter.

It Is Not a Scientific Book.—The Bible is not a Book of Science; it is a revelation of God and the way to Heaven. It does not contradict science, however. Many people try to find flaws in the Bible, try to find contradiction. In holding a meeting one time I was using a query box, giving the people a chance to ask questions on the Bible and an infidel would cram the box with hard questions, and then leave as soon as I had answered the questions, refusing to hear me preach. One night he became angry at the answers that I gave and arose and said that he did not believe the Bible because it contradicted science. I asked him to show one place where there was a contradiction, and he said: "Your Bible says that God in six days of 24 hours each made the heavens and the earth, and this would be an impossibility. It would have taken millions of years for the earth to have cooled off." I gave him the Bible and asked him to show me the statement, and he was a long time finding the chapter of Genesis. When he read it I did not see the statement. He read again: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." I stopped him and asked: "When was the beginning?" He could not tell. Then I said: "God created all this in the beginning, and we do not know how long that was, but we know that the evening and the morning were the first day. Now, there was no day until the earth revolved on its axis, and it did not revolve until it had been created and cooled off, and the evening and the morning made the first day. No contradiction." Then he said: "Your Bible says that Abraham was a man after God's own heart; but Abraham was an old liar, and I have no respect for a Bible that makes such a man a man after God's own heart. "I asked him that I was glad to hear it, but I wanted to know if he ever told a lie. He admitted that when in a tight place he might have prevaricated. I told him that Abraham was in a tight place and prevaricated, and that God told the truth on him. That, fortunately for him, God had not seen fit to write his history, and when he did the world would learn a lot of which it was then ignorant. The Bible tells both sides—the good and the bad.

It Is Its Own Interpreter.—A noted lawyer, who had been for many years an infidel, was told by his physician that he had organic trouble and could live only a short while. He went to his associate in law, a Presbyterian elder, and asked: "Have you a book that will prove the Bible?" His partner handed him the Bible and told him to read it. He said: "You do not understand. I want a book to prove the Bible." "Then," said the lawyer "go home and read your Bible." He noticed the emphasis on the command, and he went home and began to read it. One morning he came into the office and his partner asked him how he was getting on with his Bible. He said: "I wan to know where that man Cain got his wife." Men are continually asking this question. The Bible was not written to tell where every man got his wife. You do not know where I got mine, and it is none of your business, and yet it is just as necessary to know where I got a wife as to know where Cain got one. It is a bad business to be looking after some other man's wife. He was told to keep on reading his Bible. He came in one day, and again was asked how he was getting on. He said: "I am trying to find out if that flood was universal." He was told to just keep on reading his Bible. One day he came and was greatly excited. He said: "I am a lawyer and have been practicing law for many years, and I would like to know where that man Moses got that law. It would have taken a God to have given such a code. I am convinced and I am not a believed. "We read too much ABOUT the Bible and not enough OF it.

Not a Book of Theology.—The Bible is not a book of theology. God made some stars and hung them up in the Heavens, and then man made a telescope and began to study stars and then wrote out what he thought about stars and called that astronomy. God made the stars and man made the astronomy. God made the rocks and man began to dig and blast and analyze the rocks and called that geology. God made the rocks and man made the geology. God made the daisy to laugh on the hillside and man began to pick it to pieces, and then wrote what he thought about it and called it botany. God made the flowers and man made the botany. God made a Bible and man began to study it, and then wrote out his interpretations of it and called that theology. The world will go to sleep on theology, but it will sit up and listen when you give it the simple word of God. It is hungry for it.

One time a minister was visiting another minister, and he was taken into his cellar when he had a lot of dried leaves, broken sticks and roots and a smoky lamp. He said: "Here is where I study botany." The visitor started to pick up one of the dead sticks, and the man said: "Don't touch it; it will break." Then the visitor said: "Let me out into the fresh air when I can smell the fragrance of living flowers. I do not want to live among a lot of dead leaves and roots; they are musty and you dare not touch them for fear they will break." This is the way it is of the sermons that are composed of men's opinions and the old, musty, lifeless doctrines, the world will not stand for them.

The Bible is God's universal library. Do you want to study astronomy? Then, behold the Bright and Morning Star. Do you want to study geology? Then read about the Rock of Ages. Do you want to study botany? Then take some lessons in the Rose of Sharon or the Lily of the Valley. Do you want to study biology? Then become acquainted with the one who is the Way, the Truth and the Life.

The Bible will do to live by and to die by. A noted infidel was called to the bedside of his daughter who was dying. Her mother was an earnest Christian, and had taught her to believe in the promises contained in the blessed old Book. The father had told her it was all a myth. She took the hand of her father and said: "Father, I am dying. Mother says the Bible is true, and that Jesus is my saviour and that he has gone to prepare a home for me, and that he will come and take me to be with him. You say it is all a lie. I am dying, and I want to know, must I believe you or must I believe mother?" The infidel, with the tears streaming down his cheeks, said: "My child you believe your mother." I am a poor, blind, helpless cripple, and the Bible is my only crutch. Will you be so cruel as to try to knock it from beneath me?

Syrians Fight French On Transfiguration Mountain

Present Rebellion In Holy Land Links Mount Hermon to Rendezvous of Bible's Three Greatest Prophets, Says Sunday School Lesson Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Ever since the World War there has been almost continuous fighting in some part of the Holy Land. The heaviest and longest sustained is that between the Syrians and the French, which has cost many thousands of lives, unmeasured suffering, the destruction of great areas of property, including the center of the City of Damascus, and many millions of dollars. In the course of all of this fighting, many familiar Biblical sites have been involved. The Druses, who have been in the forefront of the Syrian revolt against the French, have centered their activities in the Hauran, the romantic region of mountains and cave-cities southeast of Mt. Hermon, merging into the ancient Bashan, of which Og was king. Mount Hermon itself has also been a Druse stronghold; for most of the villages are occupied, at least in part, by this mysterious and hardy people.

Despite the recurrence of the name of Mount Hermon in the meagre war news from Syria, the famous mountain is better known in connection with the Transfiguration of Jesus. Every traveller in Syria learns to love Hermon, the peak that far overtops all others in the land. The Arab name for it is "Jebel esh-Sheikh," or "white-haired mountain," because of the snow that crowns the summit almost all the year round. The older name for it, which appears in the Book of Deuteronomy, is "Shenir,"—"The Banner;" suggested by the way the peak is uplifted above all others as a beautiful standard. Mt. Hermon is slightly over nine thousand feet high, and from north east to southwest it extends twenty miles.

Always this has been a holy mountain. Again and again the Old Testament alludes to it as a symbol. Existing ruins on the sides and top show that pagan tempies were built there in earliest times. While Hermon is not named as the scene of the Transfiguration, it is indicated as the "high mountain;" and no other peak has ever been suggested as a rival site, except Tabor, which was crowned by a Roman citadel in our Lord's day, and so scarcely could have been available. Such a sublime event as the Transfiguration called for the greatest stage as its setting. Jesus, the Open Air Man, lover of the hills, turned naturally to the mountains in His hours of greatest spiritual experience.

One Man's Memories.

Really great experiences need the help of no note book to make them abide in memory. Because Peter shared the marvelous experience of Jesus on Hermon's height, it stayed with him vividly. He told Mark about it, for record in his Gospel; and, even when he was old, Peter himself wrote ecstatically of the event, in his Second Letter. To have shared a great hour—that is life. We never get away from the influence of our profoundest experiences.

It was the urge to pray that took Jesus and His three intimates off to the "retreat" on the mountain eyrie. Prayer and apartness were more necessary to Him than bread. Luke records that it was "as He was praying" that the Transfiguration was wrought. Wonders befall as men pray. It was in these lonely times of separation and communion that Jesus tapped the Sources of Power that produced His wondrous words and life. Is there any more depressing symptom of our day than the eagerness of most people to shun aloneness, and to be ever with a crowd, and to have "something doing" all the while? Men seem afraid to keep company only with their own spirits. George Herbert's admonition was never more needed than now:

"By all means use some times to be alone.
Salute thyself; see what thy soul doth wear;
Dare to look within thy chest, for it is thine own,
And tumble up and down what thou findest there."

Companionship could go only part way with Jesus: it is one of the profound truths of human life that man's nearest and dearest cannot enter with him into his deepest spiritual experiences. The three friends were comrades with Christ for the long, hard climb up the slope of Hermon; but, as was the case with the same three later at Gethsemane, they were heavy with sleep outside the circle of their Master's uttermost hour. Nothing is more touching in all the narrative of the life of Jesus than His yearning for the fellowship of His friends. He craved their understanding and intimacy even more intensely than they felt their need of Him. Every life baffled in pursuit of true love finds sympathy in the affectionate nature of the Master whose friends could never fully understand Him; and could never go all the way with Him. Peter often had impulses to go the limit, but his flesh always failed him.

Three "Failures" in Rendezvous.

fore. Down by the foot of Mt. Hermon, at Caesarea Philippi, Jesus had opened his Heart to His friends. There Peter had made his great avowal that Jesus was none other than the Christ, the expected Messiah. The Lord tried to open the eyes of His closest disciples to the fate that awaited Him—the rejection, the death, the resurrection. This was too much for Peter, whose protest called for the Master's "Get thee behind me, Satan." Then the Way of the Cross was expounded by this "Gentleman Unafraid," who contemplated His own tragic fate only that He might hearten His followers. This season at the foot of Hermon has been called "The Passion of the North;" it was Christ's "De Profundis."

Out of the depths to the heights! Depression was followed by exhaltation. To fortify Jesus and His followers for the ordeal that lay ahead, He was granted the peak experience of the Transfiguration. Let us read Mark's report of it in the Weymouth Version:

"Six days later, Jesus took with Him Peter, James and John, and brought them alone, apart from the rest, up a high mountain; and in their presence His appearance underwent a change. His garments also became dazzling with brilliant whiteness — such whiteness as no bleaching on earth could give. Moreover there appeared to them Elijah accompanied by Moses; and the two were conversing with Jesus, when Peter said to Jesus, "Rabbi, we are thankful to you that we are here. Let us put up three tents—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.

"For he knew not what to say; they were filled with such awe. Then there came a cloud spreading over them, and a voice issued from the cloud.

"This is my Son, dearly beloved: listen to Him.

"Instantly they looked around, and now they could no longer see any one, but themselves and Jesus.

"As they were coming down from the mountain, He very strictly forbade them to tell any one what they had seen "until after the Son of Man had risen from among the dead." So they kept the matter to themselves, although frequently asking one another what was meant by the rising from the dead.'

Three "failures" rendezvoused on Hermon's height that day—Moses, who never entered the Promised Land; Elijah, the harried prophet whose life was nearly all tragedy, and Jesus, the rejected and crucified. By ordinary standards they would be written down as "failures;" yet in heaven's view they were the three most congenial spirits of eternity, met in a common vindication of glory. How often do we need to be told that man's standards of success are not God's? No estimates of the real worth or achievement of an immortal human spirit are valid except those made in the light of eternity. The Transfiguration gives God's views upon comparative success and failure.

We sometimes wonder what great men talk about when they meet privately. We are not left in doubt as to what was the subject of the conversation between these three comrade spirits, Moses, Elijah and Jesus; they "spake of His decease which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem." The most competent comforters that the realms of glory could send were emissaries to Christ to prepare Him for the climax of His mission. Some "advanced" thinkers disparage the death of Christ; yet it was the one theme important enough to engage the thought of the three greatest prophets and servants ever sent to earth by God. Paul followed in their train when he later cried, "Gor forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Heavenly Hours on Earth.

General Younghusband, the great soldier who entered Lhassa, has written a novel, "But in Our Lives," which is really the biography of a fine British officer. In it appears one character, a woman, whose experience of mystical religion is to beautifully portrayed as to warrant the permanence of the book as literature. This author saw clearly, what so many superficial scribblers miss, that the human soul may have its hours of transcendent experience—its tranfiguration—when only the spiritual is real.

Is not this a first meaning of the Transfiguration: that man is more than man; and that beneath all outward appearance shines the lustrous glory of Possibility? "It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." "Count your highest moments your truest," cried Phillip Brooks. Then, in our hearts we may hear the Voice that sounded in the disciples' ears on Hermon's crest, "This is my beloved Son," saying to us, "Now are ye the sons of God."

Poor, bewildered Peter, in the presence of the wonder of the Transfiguration, barely keeping awake despite his drowsiness, not knowing what he said, proposed that they make permanent this exaltation, and build three booths as lodging for the glorified. He did not understand that life is not static. No single mood or experience abides. Hours of ecstacy may not be maintained — indeed, should not be. Mountain tops are for inspiration; the plain is for service; and for service in the power of the vision. The great height of Hermon and its comfort went with Jesus to the little hill of Olivet and its Garden of Agony. All of us are meant to have our high hours; and then to prove them through the stress of life's everydayness.

fore. Down by the foot of Mt. Hermon, at Caesarea Philippi, Jesus had opened his Heart to His friends. There Peter had made his great avowal that Jesus was none other than the Christ, the expected Messiah. The Lord tried to open the eyes of His closest disciples to the fate that awaited Him — the rejection, the death, the resurrection. This was too much for Peter, whose protest called for the Master's "Get thee behind me, Satan." Then the Way of the Cross was expounded by this "Gentleman Unafraid," who contemplated His own tragic fate only that He might hearten His followers. This season at the foot of Hermon has been called "The Passion of the North;" it was Christ's "De Profundis."

Out of the depths to the heights! Depression was followed by exhaltation. To fortify Jesus and His followers for the ordeal that lay ahead, He was granted the peak experience of the Transfiguration. Let us read Mark's report of it in the Weymouth Version:

"Six days later, Jesus took with Him Peter, James and John, and brought them alone, apart from the rest, up a high mountain; and in their presence His appearance underwent a change. His garments also became dazzling with brilliant whiteness — such whiteness as no bleaching on earth could give. Moreover there appeared to them Elijah accompanied by Moses; and the two were conversing with Jesus, when Peter said to Jesus,

"'Rabbi, we are thankful to you that we are here. Let us put up three tents—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.

"For he knew not what to say; they were filled with such awe. Then there came a cloud spreading over them, and a voice issued from the cloud,

"'This is my Son, dearly beloved: listen to Him.

"Instantly they looked around, and now they could no longer see any one, but themselves and Jesus.

"As they were coming down from the mountain, He very strictly forbade them to tell any one what they had seen "until after the Son of Man had risen from among the dead." So they kept the matter to themselves, although frequently asking one another what was meant by the rising from the dead.'

Three "failures" rendezvoused on Hermon's height that day—Moses, who never entered the Promised Land; Elijah, the harried prophet whose life was nearly all tragedy, and Jesus, the rejected and crucified. By ordinary standards they would be written down as "failures;" yet in heaven's view they were the three most congenial spirits of eternity, met in a common vindication of glory. How often do we need to be told that man's standards of success are not God's? No estimates of the real worth or achievement of an immortal human spirit are valid except those made in the light of eternity. The Transfiguration gives God's views upon comparative success and failure.

We sometimes wonder what great men talk about when they meet privately. We are not left in doubt as to what was the subject of the conversation between these three comrade spirits, Moses, Elijah and Jesus; they "spake of His decease which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem." The most competent comforters that the realms of glory could send were emissaries to Christ to prepare Him for the climax of His mission. Some "advanced" thinkers disparage the death of Christ; yet it was the one theme important enough to engage the thought of the three greatest prophets and servants ever sent to earth by God. Paul followed in their train when he later cried, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Heavenly Hours on Earth.

General Younghusband, the great soldier who entered Lhassa, has written a novel, "But in Our Lives," which is really the biography of a fine British officer. In it appears one character, a woman, whose experience of mystical religion is to beautifully portrayed as to warrant the permanence of the book as literature. This author saw clearly, what so many superficial scribblers miss, that the human soul may have its hours of transcendent experience—its tranfiguration—when only the spiritual is real.

Is not this a first meaning of the Transfiguration: that man is more than man; and that beneath all outward appearance shines the lustrous glory of Possibility? "It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." "Count your highest moments your truest," cried Phillip Brooks. Then, in our hearts we may hear the Voice that sounded in the disciples' ears on Hermon's crest, "This is my beloved Son," saying to us, "Now are ye the sons of God."

Poor, bewildered Peter, in the presence of the wonder of the Transfiguration, barely keeping awake despite his drowsiness, not knowing what he said, proposed that they make permanent this exaltation, and build three booths as lodging for the glorified. He did not understand that life is not static. No single mood or experience abides. Hours of ecstacy may not be maintained — indeed, should not be. Mountain tops are for inspiration; the plain is for service; and for service in the power of the vision. The great height of Hermon and its comfort went with Jesus to the little hill of Olivet and its Garden of Agony. All of us are meant to have our high hours; and then to prove them through the stress of life's everydayness.

Juniors Land Sweeping Victory In Interclass Track Meet

Defeat Rival Squads By Decisive Margin; English High Scorer

Third Year Star Captures Firsts in 220 Dash, 100 Yards, Broad and High Jumps and Second in 440; Seniors Held to Two Firsts.

Capturing firsts in four events and a second in another, "Elmo" English led his Junior class track squad to a sweeping victory over the three other rival teams in the annual high school interclass track and field meet yesterday afternoon at Columbian park.

Despite the extraordinary coldness, Coach George Kidder's athletes went through their paces in big league style, establishing good marks in a number of different events.

The Seniors pulled only two firsts out of the meet, with Swaney heading the field in the mile run and the fourth year relay team finishing ahead in the concluding event of the afternoon.

The final count gave the rival class teams the following scores: Juniors, 70; Seniors, 33; Sophores, 18; Freshmen, 14.

English stepped the distance in 11 flat to cop the century run, with Irwin finishing second. "Elmo" negotiated the 220 yards in 24 1-2 seconds and finished second to "Heimie" Davis in the quarter mile. Davis was clocked at 59 seconds even as he breasted the tape.

English covered 18 feet, 6 inches to win the running broad jump and topped the field in the high jump at an even five feet.

Kirkham contributed additional Junior points with first places in the javelin and discus throws. Kirkham heaved the javelin a distance of 134 feet and 11 inches which ought to finish in the running in the county meet on May 14 and his toss of 122 feet, 2 inches in the discus will make some of the boys also.

Deems, a Junior, also reeled off a pretty race in the half mile, the timers getting him at 2:17 at the finish. Under better weather conditions Deems should lower this mark.

The showing of the various squads, from among which will be selected the representative high school team, taken all in all, was excellent.

COLUMBUS, O. April 23—With 1800 participants, representing 144 high schools, colleges and universities participating, and prospects of a record-breaking attendance, the Ohio relays opened here at the big Ohio State stadium today.

Managers of the gigantic event declared their almost certain belief that some records were due to fall during the day, with some of the pick of the Middle West's athletic talent booked to perform.

A feature which promised headline interest was the 100-yard dash, with Hestor, Michigan, and Kriss, Ohio state as leading competitors.

Other stars included Captain Fred Alderman, Michigan, Freddie Grim, Michigan, dash runners; Kennedy, Ohio State, holder of the big ten mile title; Shively, Illinois, and Nelson, Iowa, weight men.

Despite near-freezing temperatures which handicapped workouts, better weather was forecast for the afternoon, when the all-star events were scheduled. The program includes thirty-six major events.

Akron U. Athlete Park Pool Manager

Jean Smith in Charge at Rock Springs Tank.

Jean Smith, University of Akron athlete, captain of this year's "Zipper" track squad, will be manager of the Rock Springs park swimming pool next summer.

Smith merits the reputation of an all around athlete, holding several state championships in the realm of track and also being a leading Buckeye gridder.

For a number of years he has been connected, during the summer months, with the Portage Lakes Life Saving association. Owing to the large number of swimmers in the lakes district, members of the association usually have their hands full, yet Smith's record has never been marred by the loss of any one in his care.

Thirteen students of Eton College, England, recently passed tests as firemen.

Tunney to Fight Regularly For Five Years, Then Retire

Will Use Mitts Periodically Even if he Has to Challenge the Challenger, he Declares.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 23—Take it from James Joseph Tunney, who thinks he is in a position to know, there will be a heavyweight championship fight held annually for the next four or five years, assuming, of course, that James continues to have the situation well in hand. He informed the writer today that, merely "as a measure of common sense," he planned to fight in defense of his title at least once a year for five years—regardless of purses and opponents—and then call it a career.

"Why, they couldn't have kept me out this year even if I had had to challenge the contender myself," he said, this morning, some hours before his scheduled conference with Tex Rickard. "I'm to make plenty of money out of my fight this summer but, even if the purse had been unsatisfactory, I would have signed anyhow. Money, I grant you, is important and Im frank to say that I want all I can get but the man who sits in idleness for several years, waiting for what he calls the 'break,' is cheating himself just as surely as though he failed to go to the cashier's window for his weekly salary."

Feels He Can Win.

"The blade," he added, warming to his rhetoric, "grows dull and rusted from disuse. It has been so with every heavyweight champion of the modern era but it won't be so with me. That is"—hastily— "assuming that I will be able to win from my opponents. However, no one can blame me for feeling that I will."

James, of course, may be pardoned for taking a philosophic view of finance in general, since his conversation with Rickard may have some slifht reference to a sum of $100,000 the promoter will be in his debt on May 1. The further fact that it is only an item in the "nut" that Rickard must assume in lining up Tunney undoubtedly had a somewhat mellowing effect on the latter's outlook.

However, he insisted that his sincerity was above question in claiming that physical readiness was of greater importance than the size of the purse in considering any title defense.

Should Meet Best Man.

"There have been years when challengers were few and inadequate," he explained. "All right; why not meet the best man available, taking the best money offered? The champion is at least that far ahead on the financial situation and, from the physical side, he has done himself the best turn imaginable. Then, at a later date, when a real challenger turns up, the champion still can get the big purse he otherwise might have waited several years for, and naturally he would be a better man because of those intervening fights.

"It may be that I am thinking too far ahead. The man that Rickard selects may beat me and then all my plans would be knocked into a cocked hat. Yet I think the fact that I recognize danger in every opponent is in my favor; they, at least, won't be able to surprise me as so many champions have been surprised. In short, I am taking neither my opponents nor myself for granted.

How To Be Unpopular.

"Retire? I suppose I shall when and if I last five years or more as champion. By that time, I suppose I'll have enough of boxing and, for all I know, boxing may have enough of me. I've found that the surest way to attain unpopularity is to win the heavyweight championship."

Five Straight Wins Give Bucs Big Lead

NEW YORK, April 23.—As the result of five straight victories over Cincinnati, the Pittsburgh Pirates today have piled up a big lead in the National League race. They beat the Reds yesterday, 3 to 1, with Lee Meadows having a slight edge in a pitching duel with Adolfo Luque.

The Senators went on a batting spree against the Red Sox, collecting fourteen hits and winning, 7 to 3. The Boston pitchers walked ten men.

All other big league games were postponed because of rain. No home runs were made.

IT'S ALL NEWS TO BAN'S SECRETARY

CHICAGO, April 23.—"I have heard nothing of the move," said William Harridge, secretary to President Ban Johnson of the American league, today when asked about reports from New York that Mayor Jimmy Walker will be offered Johnson's place as prexy of the junior circuit. Johnson was out of town and could not be reached.

Fight Results

AT BOSTON—Sammy Fuller, Boston, defeated Chick Suggs, New Bedford, 10 rounds.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Joe Williams, Philadelphia, drew with Johnny Jadick, New York, 10 rounds.

AT TAMPA—Arturo Sheckles, Belgium, defeated Billy Wells, England, 10 rounds.

WILL DECLINE LEAGUE JOB

Walker Won't Take Ban's Place, Say Mayor's Friends.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Friends of James J. Walker, mayor of New York City, today expressed the belief that he would decline the office of the presidency of the American League at a salary of $100,000 a year, reported to have been made by the league.

Although Mayor Walker insists that he has received no formal offer from the league, rumors persisted today that the league magnates at a secret meeting yesterday decided to offer him the post.

The mayor's reply to all questons was:

"I have had no formal offer from the American League. In any event, I could not discuss any offer until it had been made formally."

According to friends of the mayor, he will not entertain such an offer until his present term ends on Jan. 1, 1930. He is said to feel that his resignation at this time might result in the disruption of the political organization of Tammany hall.

Discussion of Mayor Walker in connection with the presidency of the league resulted from the return of Ban Johnson to his activities as head of the league, it was said. Following Johnson's controversy with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, the czar of baseball, the league owners had believed that Johnson would "gracefully retire."

Judge Landis was in Baltimore today, where he was expected to confer with Col. Jacob Rupert, owner of the New York Yankees, president Griffith, of the Washington club, President Quinn, of the Red Sox, and perhaps President Shibe of the Athletics.

And in detail after detail you find the explanation of Oldsmobile's widespread popularity and of its owners' praise.

Juniors Land Sweeping Victory In Interclass Track Meet

Third Year Star Captures Firsts in 220 Dash, 100 Yards, Broad and High Jumps and Second in 440; Seniors Held to Two Firsts.

Capturing firsts in four events and a second in another, "Elmo" English led his Junior class track squad to a sweeping victory over the three other rival teams in the annual high school interclass track and field meet yesterday afternoon at Columbian park.

Despite the extraordinary coldness, Coach George Kidder's athletes went through their paces in big league style, establishing good marks in a number of different events.

The Seniors pulled only two firsts out of the meet, with Swaney heading the field in the mile run and the fourth year relay team finishing ahead in the concluding event of the afternoon.

The final count gave the rival class teams the following scores: Juniors, 70; Seniors, 33; Sophores, 18; Freshmen, 14.

English stepped the distance in 11 flat to cop the century run, with Irwin finishing second. "Elmo" negotiated the 220 yards in 24 1-2 seconds and finished second to "Heimie" Davis in the quarter mile. Davis was clocked at 59 seconds even as he breasted the tape.

English covered 18 feet, 6 inches to win the running broad jump and topped the field in the high jump at an even five feet.

Kirkham contributed additional Junior points with first places in the javelin and discus throws. Kirkham heaved the javelin a distance of 134 feet and 11 inches which ought to finish in the running in the county meet on May 14 and his toss of 122 feet, 2 inches in the discus will make some of the boys also.

Deems, a Junior, also reeled off a pretty race in the half mile, the timers getting him at 2:17 at the finish. Under better weather conditions Deems should lower this mark.

The showing of the various squads, from among which will be selected the representative high school team, taken all in all, was excellent.

HIKING GOLFER SEEKS LIFT HOME

EL PASO, Texas, April 23. — Doc Grahame, youthful Mobile cross country golfer, was here today seeking an automobile lift to California where he hopes to finance the remainder of his "one hole match" from Mobile to Los Angeles. Grahame said he had lost 140 balls and had taken 35,948 strokes before he went on the plains. His caddy "Happy" Kirby, got homesick near San Antonio and started back to Mobile.

36 EVENTS ON RELAY PROGRAM

1,800 Athletes Compete Today at Ohio State Stadium.

COLUMBUS, O. April 23—With 1800 participants, representing 144 high schools, colleges and universities participating, and prospects of a record-breaking attendance, the Ohio relays opened here at the big Ohio State stadium today.

Managers of the gigantic event declared their almost certain belief that some records were due to fall during the day, with some of the pick of the Middle West's athletic talent booked to perform.

A feature which promised headline interest was the 100-yard dash, with Hestor, Michigan, and Kriss, Ohio state as leading competitors.

Other stars included Captain Fred Alderman, Michigan, Freddie Grim, Michigan, dash runners; Kennedy, Ohio State, holder of the big ten mile title; Shively, Illinois, and Nelson, Iowa, weight men.

Despite near-freezing temperatures which handicapped workouts, better weather was forecast for the afternoon, when the all-star events were scheduled. The program includes thirty-six major events.

In a meet held under the auspices of the 369th Infantry armory here last night, Ritola covered the distance in 13:29 4-5, breaking his old record of 13:39 by 9 1-5 seconds.

Akron U. Athlete Park Pool Manager

Jean Smith in Charge at Rock Springs Tank.

Jean Smith, University of Akron athlete, captain of this year's "Zipper" track squad, will be manager of the Rock Springs park swimming pool next summer.

Smith merits the reputation of an all around athlete, holding several state championships in the realm of track and also being a leading Buckeye gridder.

For a number of years he has been connected, during the summer months, with the Portage Lakes Life Saving association. Owing to the large number of swimmers in the lakes district, members of the association usually have their hands full, yet Smith's record has never been marred by the loss of any one in his care.

Tunney to Fight Regularly For Five Years, Then Retire

Will Use Mitts Periodically Even if he Has to Challenge the Challenger, he Declares.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 23—Take it from James Joseph Tunney, who thinks he is in a position to know, there will be a heavyweight championship fight held annually for the next four or five years, assuming, of course, that James continues to have the situation well in hand. He informed the writer today that, merely "as a measure of common sense," he planned to fight in defense of his title at least once a year for five years—regardless of purses and opponents—and then call it a career.

"Why, they couldn't have kept me out this year even if I had had to challenge the contender myself," he said, this morning, some hours before his scheduled conference with Tex Rickard. "I'm to make plenty of money out of my fight this summer but, even if the purse had been unsatisfactory, I would have signed anyhow. Money, I grant you, is important and Im frank to say that I want all I can get but the man who sits in idleness for several years, waiting for what he calls the 'break,' is cheating himself just as surely as though he failed to go to the cashier's window for his weekly salary."

Feels He Can Win.

"The blade," he added, warming to his rhetoric, "grows dull and rusted from disuse. It has been so with every heavyweight champion of the modern era but it won't be so with me. That is"—hastily— "assuming that I will be able to win from my opponents. However, no one can blame me for feeling that I will."

James, of course, may be pardoned for taking a philosophic view of finance in general, since his conversation with Rickard may have some slight reference to a sum of $100,000 the promoter will be in his debt on May 1. The further fact that it is only an item in the "nut" that Rickard must assume in lining up Tunney undoubtedly had a somewhat mellowing effect on the latter's outlook.

However, he insisted that his sincerity was above question in claiming that physical readiness was of greater importance than the size of the purse in considering any title defense.

Should Meet Best Man.

"There have been years when challengers were few and inadequate," he explained. "All right; why not meet the best man available, taking the best money offered? The champion is at least that far ahead on the financial situation and, from the physical side, he has done himself the best turn imaginable. Then, at a later date, when a real challenger turns up, the champion still can get the big purse he otherwise might have waited several years for, and naturally he would be a better man because of those intervening fights.

"It may be that I am thinking too far ahead. The man that Rickard selects may beat me and then all my plans would be knocked into a cocked hat. Yet I think the fact that I recognize danger in every opponent is in my favor; they, at least, won't be able to surprise me as so many champions have been surprised. In short, I am taking neither my opponents nor myself for granted.

How To Be Unpopular.

"Retire? I suppose I shall when and if I last five years or more as champion. By that time, I suppose I'll have enough of boxing and, for all I know, boxing may have enough of me. I've found that the surest way to attain unpopularity is to win the heavyweight championship."

Five Straight Wins Give Bucs Big Lead

NEW YORK, April 23.—As the result of five straight victories over Cincinnati, the Pittsburgh Pirates today have piled up a big lead in the National League race. They beat the Reds yesterday, 3 to 1, with Lee Meadows having a slight edge in a pitching duel with Adolfo Luque.

The Senators went on a batting spree against the Red Sox, collecting fourteen hits and winning, 7 to 3. The Boston pitchers walked ten men.

All other big league games were postponed because of rain. No home runs were made.

IT'S ALL NEWS TO BAN'S SECRETARY

CHICAGO, April 23.—"I have heard nothing of the move," said William Harridge, secretary to President Ban Johnson of the American league, today when asked about reports from New York that Mayor Jimmy Walker will be offered Johnson's place as prexy of the junior circuit. Johnson was out of town and could not be reached.

Fight Results

AT BOSTON—Sammy Fuller, Boston, defeated Chick Suggs, New Bedford, 10 rounds.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Joe Williams, Philadelphia, drew with Johnny Jadick, New York, 10 rounds.

AT TAMPA—Arturo Sheckles, Belgium, defeated Billy Wells, England, 10 rounds.

WILL DECLINE LEAGUE JOB

Walker Won't Take Ban's Place, Say Mayor's Friends.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Friends of James J. Walker, mayor of New York City, today expressed the belief that he would decline the office of the presidency of the American League at a salary of $100,000 a year, reported to have been made by the league.

Although Mayor Walker insists that he has received no formal offer from the league, rumors persisted today that the league magnates at a secret meeting yesterday decided to offer him the post.

The mayor's reply to all questons was:

"I have had no formal offer from the American League. In any event, I could not discuss any offer until it had been made formally."

According to friends of the mayor, he will not entertain such an offer until his present term ends on Jan. 1, 1930. He is said to feel that his resignation at this time might result in the disruption of the political organization of Tammany hall.

Discussion of Mayor Walker in connection with the presidency of the league resulted from the return of Ban Johnson to his activities as head of the league, it was said. Following Johnson's controversy with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, the czar of baseball, the league owners had believed that Johnson would "gracefully retire."

Judge Landis was in Baltimore today, where he was expected to confer with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, president Griffith, of the Washington club, President Quinn, of the Red Sox, and perhaps President Shibe of the Athletics.

BOXING MEASURE KILLED IN HOUSE

CHARLESTON, April 23.—The boxing bill is dead, defeated by a vote of the house of delegates where American Legion sponsors had believed their revamped measure would be triumphant. The official roll call showed 50 of the delegates voting against the bill and 38 for it, while subsequent parliamentary moves in which the lines held fast, prevented any reconsideration during this legislature.

For the bill speakers headed by Dr. Crow of Marshall county, urged its adoption as granting the request of the men who fought for their country in the world war, pointed to the provisions for no-decision bouts to be held only under the auspices of bona fide military organizations as safeguarding it against commercializing the sport in the state, and pledged that if there were any abuse of the privileges granted the ex-soldiers themselves would be the first to ask future legislatures to repeal the measure.

Against the bill, in addition to the general scruples against prize fighting, it was urged that the bill as revised to meet the first objections still kept the machinery of the state athletic commission that had figured in the original bill, and Dr. L. M. Robinson, in explaining his adverse vote, summarized the viewpoint of many of the objectors that this measure was an "entering wedge" through amendment of which in future sessions it was hoped, they charged, that the state would be opened to all forms of bouts and promotion.

"SLIDE, KELLY, SLIDE," COMING

William Haines and Baseball Stars in American Picture.

The two most popular things in America—baseball and the moving picture—are combined in "Slide, Kelly, Slide," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest contribution to screen entertainment, which comes to the American theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

One can not only see a thrilling screen drama—but also the recent World Series, as the cameras invaded the grandstands at New York and St. Louis, and crucial plays of the nation's baseball classic from dramatic highlights for the new romance of baseball, which William Haines, star of "Brown of Harvard," Sally O'Neil, Harry Carey, Karl Dane and other famous players.

Besides the famous screen players, the cast includes some of the greatest figures in professional baseball. The "team" in the picture includes Bob Meusel, "Irish" Meusel, Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees, all World Series heroes, Mike Donlin, for years idol of the New York Giants and now a picture player, and others recruited from the leagues of different parts of America.

The spectacular World Series contest is made teh center of a gripping romance of a "bush league" player, who wins fame in the New York team, a role enacted by Haines.

Others in the cast include Warner Richmond, of "Fire Brigade" fame, Eileen Sedgwick, the German girl of "Tin Hats," Junior Coglan, Paul Kelly, Guinn Williams, Dorothy Sebastin and others of special note.

Edward Sedgwick, director of "Tin Hats" and himself once famous as a baseball player, directed the new picture, and the screen play was by A. P. Younger, famous as scenarist of "Brown of Harvard."

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors, including minister and singers, who contributed in any way to our comfort and consolation in our late bereavement of husband and brother.

"SLIDE, KELLY, SLIDE," COMING

William Haines and Baseball Stars in American Picture.

The two most popular things in America—baseball and the moving picture—are combined in "Slide, Kelly, Slide," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest contribution to screen entertainment, which comes to the American theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

One can not only see a thrilling screen drama—but also the recent World Series, as the cameras invaded the grandstands at New York and St. Louis, and crucial plays of the nation's baseball classic from dramatic highlights for the new romance of baseball, which William Haines, star of "Brown of Harvard," Sally O'Neil, Harry Carey, Karl Dane and other famous players.

Besides the famous screen players, the cast includes some of the greatest figures in professional baseball. The "team" in the picture includes Bob Meusel, "Irish" Meusel, Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees, all World Series heroes, Mike Donlin, for years idol of the New York Giants and now a picture player, and others recruited from the leagues of different parts of America.

The spectacular World Series contest is made teh center of a gripping romance of a "bush league" player, who wins fame in the New York team, a role enacted by Haines.

Others in the cast include Warner Richmond, of "Fire Brigade" fame, Eileen Sedgwick, the German girl of "Tin Hats," Junior Coglan, Paul Kelly, Guinn Williams, Dorothy Sebastin and others of special note.

Edward Sedgwick, director of "Tin Hats" and himself once famous as a baseball player, directed the new picture, and the screen play was by A. P. Younger, famous as scenarist of "Brown of Harvard."

Both Old Fashioned.

In California.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 22. — Crossing from ocean to ocean you see interesting men and things. Among others an old-fashioned railroad conductor on the Santa Fe and an old-fashioned Christian in Los Angeles.

The conductor is W. D. VanBergen, as able, active and keen a railroad man as ever protected a fast express train.

"Railroading" more than 50 years, he talks of passenger cars that were 40 feet long, had seats that hit you in the middle of the back, windows with four small panes of glass in each, lighted with candles.

"Retire?" Certainly not. Railroading is more interesting than retirement.

The old-fashioned Los Angeles Christian has painted on the back of his Ford touring car top, in white letters, a foot high, "Tell the world Jesus saves." He drives slowly about the street, and some undoubtedly repent.

E. F. HUTTON'S Los Angeles branches tell you that such comforting information was needed yesterday by bears that have ignored good advice printed in this column for months past. They had a little bear panic of their own, while stocks went up. General Motors and Atchison, well managed companies, went to "new high prices for all time." And some dejected bear covered 10.400 shares of General Motors in one transaction of nearly $2,000,000.

Don't gamble, for you will surely lose. And especially, don't sell "short," That's like running in front of an express train.

In England, where you can borrow money cheaper than here, generally speaking, the bank rate is cut from five to four and one-half. And here, money will be much cheaper. It's no time to be a bear. Best news of all, cotton went climbing; but, unfortunately, that was due to flood drowing out vast cotton areas.

PAUL KELLY, movie actor in a small way, is held for murder. The usual roar about moving picture immorality will follow. It would be better to roar about the Snyder case, with the husband in case brained with a tashweight as he slept.

Paul Kelly of the movies killed his man, husband of the lady he admired, in a fist fight, and probably had no intentions of killing.

If guilty, Kelly probably will go to jail for at 1 esat 10i, tshtraoshrdln jail for at least 10 years, to prove that even husbands have a right to live. But the incident does not justify any particular outcry against the movies.

IT IS summer weather out here with a nice breeze from the Pacific ocean; potato plants standing two feet high in front of many little bungalows, active building everywhere fruit trees heavily loaded and every citizen ready to prove that "California has only started."

One hundred and fifty thousand years ago our ancestors struggled with levers made of a tree to turn over the half-devoured carcass of a mammoth. No possibility of dragging it home; it

$25,000 SUIT AFTERMATH OF CRASH OF WALL

Court Fight Follows Near Collapse of Building.

As the result of the near collapse of the Leech building, Midland avenue, Midland, about six weeks ago, the D. F. Nellis & Sons' company, of East Liverpool, and Morris Pearlman, of Midland, were named defendants in a suit for $25,000 damages filed today in the Beaver county court at Beaver, Pa., by Morris Resnick and Morris Weinbern, proprietors of the Star Furniture company.

The Nellis company was excavating for a new structure being erected by Pearlman on the lot adjoining the Leech building alleged to have been damaged. The petition charges that when the excavation reached a depth of more than two feet below the foundation of the Leech building, the structure partially collapsed. A portion of one wall next to the proposed new building fell.

The furniture company claims that much of their merchandise was damaged, their business was suspended for several days and they were put to much expense in preserving their stock.

The petition also alleges that Pearlman and the contractors were negligent in failing to take precautions necessary to preserve the Leech building.

Pittsburgh contractors moved the structure back to its original position and replaced the damaged wall. Foundation of the Pearlman building, in the meantime, was completed.

Entire East Side of City Wrecked by Force of Blast—200 Girls and Women Employed on Fifth Floor Rescued Through Foreman's Presence of Mind—Loss May Reach $5,000,000.

DETROIT, April 23.—More than 50 employes were injured and ten others are unaccounted for today in a series of explosions at the Briggs Manufacturing company plant.

Ambulances were rushed to the secene of the blast and fire which followed. Thirty-two persons have been taken to hospitals for treatment. Many are not expected to live physicians said.

Several persons were trapped on the fifth floor of the building and are believed to have met death. Four alarms were turned in in rapid succession placing most of the central district fire apparatus at the plant. Huge throngs of spectators were augmented by thousands of the factory workers.

Firemen described the fire as the worst in years.

Firemen Have Narrow Escape.

With half of the factory, a new section built five years ago, given over to the blaze, firemen directed their efforts to saving nearby structures. Despite their heroic attempts, however, flames spread to the American Blower company building across the street shortly after 11 o'clock.

Twenty firemen narrowly escaped death when one of the explosions caused a wall of the plant to cave in.

Two hundred men were working in the building when the explosion occurred. Approximately 50 injured were rescued from the burning building.

Others are believed to have been caught in the debris. Many of the injured are not expected to live, physicians said.

The Briggs Manufacturing company makes bodies for a number of leading automobile companies.

An entire section of the plant, built five years ago over an area of almost three acres apparently was doomed as firemen from all the city stations conducted a losing battle at 11 o'clock. The damage was variously estimated from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Plan Check of Workers.

Otto P. Artue, an official of the company said:

"We do not know the exact cause of the explosion but believe it was due to spontaneous combustion.

"We removed about fifty men from the building. Some were seriously injured."

The exact number who died in the explosion and fire will not be definitely known until a check of workmen can be made, Artue said.

"About 8:15 the neighborhood was rocked by a terrific blast followed by

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a little home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

CHAPTER THIRTY.

The fortnight occupied in closing with "De Brissac, Incorporated," was a period of intense activity. The lawyers came and went, debating clauses of the long contract. The telephone bell rang and rang. Arthur, with a new suit and a bustling manner was everywhere, raising objections, as he kept explaining to Hattie in her interest, and contributing expansively to the family discussions.

Every smallest event in the world of motion pictures is celebrated with a great amount of photographing, and it seemed natural enough that Hattie should be pictured alone in many poses and as one of the family group. The publicity men thought it would be effective to show her in a grown little dress playing at doll's housekeeping with Emily. And it occurred to one of them to picture her pushing Gran'ma in the new wheel chair.

The family agreed with Arthur that a move to more comfortable quarters was desirable, even necessary when you took Hattie's position into account. He succeeded within a second fortnight in sub-letting the apartment over the grocery store, and after many days of driving them about Beverly in a hired automobile rented a large bungalow that was set apart in its own grounds with pipes and sprinklers in the lawn and a two-car garage. Inevitably, then, he selected an automobile for Hattie; one that would, he felt, accord modestly with her growing importance. It was bright blue in color, with a great deal of nickelware about it and much extra glass. And he taught her to drive it. Alice remarked more than once that Hattie needed a business manager now that she was a successful star, and that Arthur's appearance was providential, really, when you stopped to think about it.

Reporters came to interview her, pleasant enough men and women. At first she felt timid and upset. The failure at Plantagenet Town was still vividly in her mind and it was hard to avoid dwelling morbidly on it. Hard it was, as well, to avoid speaking eagerly, emotionally of De Brissac. He possessed her now, filled her imagination. She had given herself to him. Over and over she told herself that she was a woman now and that everyone must know. She studied her face in the mirror for evidences of change. Surely the terribly stirring fact couldn't long be hid. And those reporters were such keen persons. But always afraid, with the shrewd admonitions of her lover ever in her ears, she contrived to talk as she knew picture stars always talked to reporters. She would sit very still, a listless wan little thing, and say that she loved her work and that it was wonderful to have her dear family always about her, it meant so much to Gran-ma to make her last years bright and happy; that she was indeed fortunate in having her career shaped by so great a director and that the only message she could send to the thousands of girls who admired her art was to work very hard and fix their faith on great ideals.

When the interviews appeared she would read them fearfully at first, and then reread them, over and over, exultant, bewildered, unable to ever to believe that the charming little person in the illustrations could be her miserably confused self. For she was walking a dangerous way, more than ever with the sense of being dragged along faster than she could think, never quite believing that the facts could be the truth, turning inward to the little white flame fo her girlhood that miraculously seemed still to be burning behind the ugly shadows.

It began to seem incredible that the family shouldn't suspect; that were so close to the situation, as to herself. In a curiously aloof way they appeared to be taking De Brissac for granted. As the weeks and then the months passed she perceived that they were taking for granted her frequent evenings with her director. There was a sometimes almost breathless tendency to explain away his personal demands on her. They were give now to dwelling on the importance of her career and of every contributing phase of it. De Brissac was really her career; no getting away from that. They gladly accepted the fact. It was during this phase that Arthur persuaded them all to call her Harriet instead of Hattie. He felt it to be better suited to her position.

Hed own attitude toward De Brissac was in part an admiration that bordered on hero worship and in part a fear [illegible] that at times became terror. Her secretiveness, she knew, puzzled and piqued him. He gave her costly presents—a wrist watch of platinum, richly jeweled, a locket, a bracelet, a string of pearls all of which she hid under lock and key at home. He really couldn't understand that. What was the difference? She couldn't explain. Nor could she tell him why she refused flatly to accept rich gowns and wraps, refused even to buy them for herself; always she appeared as the smiple little Hattie of her earlier days in Beverly. . . . And during all the summer he kept urging her to slip away with him on his yacht. They had two or three nervous little quarrels about that. She couldn't go. Indeed not once did she stay away from home over night. Even when Arthur and Alice planned their trip to San Francisco, after Gran'ma went permanently to the sanatorium in the mountains, she fought the idea. Closely she held them about her. . . . Doubtless this often capricious resistance held De Brissac the more firmly. But Hattie would hardly have thought of that. There was, even now, nothing of the coquette in her; there was only a series of profound disturbances of the spirit . . . bitterness, fear, sudden unctrollable longings followed by revoid dwelling morbidly on it. Hard pulsions that were quite as strong, and shot through the whole devastating experience a sense of dark wild beauty that at moments was a flame and at other times was only an ache . . . nights of crying herself to sleep (she clung, secretly, to the doll) . . . [illegible] and desires, this along in the autumn, in which [illegible] figured not at all.

Henry O'Malley, until he went to New York in September, was a constant problem. She met him on a late afternoon in Los Angeles and told him . . . summoning all her courage, a whitely firm slip of a girl . . . that the engagement must be broken. It was difficult. He pled, argued, questioned; he telephoned—she had to forbid him calling up the lot—and wrote heartbreaking letters. In August she saw him driving another girl in the roadster. For a few weeks after that she heard nothing from him, but then he began again. There was, he cried out, no one else who understood him who nerved him to the struggle. That would be becaue she had sat very still during so many of her hours with him and listened or tried to listen while he talked and talked of himself. But then most men did that. Even Brissac. . . . She couldn't tell him about Henry. She couldn't tell anybody. She found herself, indeed, a frightened little person about whom adult passions raged. And she was herself fair caught. There was no guessing the course of events. Tragedy seemed, and for that matter was, momentarily possible.

Miniature Dragon Found.

A lizzard that has the appearance of a dragon in miniature has been found in Australia. Natives have named it the bearded dragon or Jew lizard. Another lizard found has around its neck a frill which lies perfectly flat when the creature is at peace, but is raised like a shield around its head in times of danger.

Visits Graveyard in Boat

To inspect an old graveyard, Lord Craigavon, premier to Ireland, recently had to make the journey in a "cot," the primitive boat still used by the people of Galloon Island, in Upper Lough Erne. During the trip his lordship was told that the only industry that the island had ever had was the making of illicit whiskey, but the police had destroyed it.

Believing that her seventy-year-old sister, Mary, was only in a trance and would recover, Caroline Haywell, aged 68, guarded the body for three weeks before the two were found recently in Hull, England. ## SENATOR McNARY STILL TRYING TO GET PLAN FOR FARM RELIEF

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Seator Charles L. McNary of Oregon is spending what ought to be his vacation trying to hit on a farm relief program, for the next session of congress, which President Coolidge can approve.

In the way of an agreement between McNary and the president there is, after all, only one stumbling block:

Thus far the senator has been unable to thing up a scheme that suited him which the chief executive didn't pronounce "economically unsound," while no plan acceptable to Mr. Coolidge is regarded by the Oregon statesman as "any good."

Otherwise they're in hearty accord.

Senator McNary will be recalled as a collaborer with Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which the agricultural bloc succeeded in getting through the last congress, only to see it vetoed by the president, and then to drop, perforce, because the bloc hadn't enough votes to pass it over his head.

Naturally the situation's unsatisfactory to all parties concerned.

McNary, Haugen et al haven't a thing to show for several years' hard work. The president's placed in the light of having turned thumbs down on a proposition the farmers were able to muster a congressional majority for, which isn't calculated to do him any good among the Corn Belt voters, either at the next Republican convention or at the national election of 1928.

If he could give 'em a satisfactory compromise next winter there's no doubt he'd be glad to, only it's a pretty hard thing to compromise.

The McNary-Haugen plan has been argued, pro and con, by all available experts, to the tune of many large volumes, and no conclusion was arrived at, at that.

So there's small hope of settling the question here.

But the nub of it is:

How's the American farmer to be protected against his own competition?

The American manufacturer's protected by keeping competing foreign goods out.

American labor's protected by keeping competing foreign labor out.

The American farmer has to pay for all this protection, for others' benefit, but gets none of his own. The same kind of protection that protects the industries and labor does him no good. His own over-product is what undersells him.

So, to help the farmer, the McNary-Haugen plan proposes an application of the protective tariff principle in reverse—wrong side up, inside out and stern end first.

Heaven knows how it would work, but this much is certain:

It wouldn't work at all until it was wound up with a key, known as an "equilization fee," which the farmer pays, when he markets his crop, to take his surplus off his hands.

Now, mind ye, the machinery absolutely won't run until it's wound up with an "equalization fee" key.

"I'll stand for almost anything," President Coolidge assures Senator McNary, "but I positively draw the line on an equalization fee. It's economically unsound."

What McNary is trying to find, between now and next December, is some way of making his contrivance run without any motive power. He stands about as much chance as he does discovering perpetual motion, most authorities say.

New Phonograph Very Loud.

Said to have the tone volume of 20 orchestral instruments, a phonograph recently invented, is causing much interest in Germany. The tone volume is declared to be augmented by the influx into the soundbox of a mixture of atomized air and oil generated by a hand pump and projected to the resonator.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILLE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture, "Bagdad." With her go

GRANDMA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man, although she is fascinated by the director. De Brissac wants her to go with him on his yacht for a week's cruise, when the picture is finished, but Hattie refuses and leaves the Earthwide studio to work for Plantagenet. She finds she cannot work without De Brissac, however. She meets Lucille who advises her to go back to De Brissac. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, has deserted her several years before but he comes back and adds himself to Hattie's responsibilities. Hattie and Henry go to a private showing of the finished picture which is a great success. De Brissac is to form his own company and wants her to work with him.

He offers her a contract at $1,000 a week.

She meets Henry for dinner that night and tries to tell him how she hates pictures and about De Brissac; that she wants to get married and settle modestly in a little home of her own. He cannot understand and when she realizes it she leaves him and goes to De Brissac.

CHAPTER THIRTY.

The fortnight occupied in closing with "De Brissac, Incorporated," was a period of intense activity. The lawyers came and went, debating clauses of the long contract. The telephone bell rang and rang. Arthur, with a new suit and a bustling manner was everywhere, raising objections, as he kept explaining to Hattie in her interest, and contributing expansively to the family discussions.

Every smallest event in the world of motion pictures is celebrated with a great amount of photographing, and it seemed natural enough that Hattie should be pictured alone in many poses and as one of the family group. She could see—she herself—that it would be effective to show Gran'ma in a wheel chair—and that reminded her of the little house dress playing at doll's housekeeping with Emily. And it occurred to one of them to picture her pushing Gran'ma in the new wheel chair.

The family agreed with Arthur that a move to more comfortable quarters was desirable, even necessary when you took Hattie's position into account. He succeeded within a second fortnight in subletting the apartment over the grocery store, and after many days of driving them about Beverly in a hired automobile rented a large bungalow that was set apart in its own grounds with pipes and sprinklers in the lawn and a two-car garage. Inevitably, then, he selected an automobile for Hattie; one that would, he felt, accord modestly with her growing importance. It was bright blue in color, with a great deal of nickelware about it and much extra glass. And he taught her to drive it. Alice remarked more than once that Hattie needed a business manager now that she was a successful star, and that Arthur's appearance was providential, really, when you stopped to think about it.

Reporters came to interview her, pleasant enough men and women. At first she felt timid and upset. The failure at Plantagenet Town was still vividly in her mind and it was hard to avoid dwelling morbidly on it. Hard it was, as well, to avoid speaking eagerly, emotionally of De Brissac. He possessed her now, filled her imagination. She had given herself to him. Over and over she told herself that she was a woman now and that everyone must know. She studied her face in the mirror for evidences of change. Surely the terribly stirring fact couldn't long be hid. And those reporters were such keen persons. But always afraid, with the shrewd admonitions of her lover ever in her ears, she contrived to talk as she knew picture stars always talked to reporters. She would sit very still, a listless wan little thing, and say that she loved her work and that it was wonderful to have her dear family always about her, it meant so much to Gran-ma to make her last years bright and happy; that she was indeed fortunate in having her career shaped by so great a director and that the only message she could send to the thousands of girls who admired her art was to work very hard and fix their faith on great ideals.

When the interviews appeared she would read them fearfully at first, and then reread them, over and over, exultant, bewildered, unable to ever to believe that the charming little person in the illustrations could be her miserably confused self. For she was walking a dangerous way, more than ever with the sense of being dragged along faster than she could think, never quite believing that the facts could be the truth, turning inward to the little white flame fo her girlhood that miraculously seemed still to be burning behind the ugly shadows.

It began to seem incredible that the family shouldn't suspect; that were so close to the situation, as to herself. In a curiously aloof way they appeared to be taking De Brissac for granted. As the weeks and then the months passed she perceived that they were taking for granted her frequent evenings with her director. There was a sometimes almost breathless tendency to explain away his personal demands on her. They were give now to dwelling on the importance of her career and of every contributing phase of it. De Brissac was really her career; no getting away from that. They gladly accepted the fact. It was during this phase that Arthur persuaded them all to call her Harriet instead of Hattie. He felt it to be better suited to her position.

Hed own attitude toward De Brissac was in part an admiration that bordered on hero worship and in part a fear [illegible] that at times became terror. Her secretiveness, she knew, puzzled and piqued him. He gave her costly presents—a wrist watch of platinum, richly jeweled, a locket, a bracelet, a string of pearls all of which she [illegible] under lock and key at home. He really couldn't understand that. What was the difference? She couldn't explain. Nor could she tell him why she refused flatly to accept rich gowns and wraps, refused even to buy them for herself; always she appeared as the smiple little Hattie of her earlier days in Beverly. . . . And during all the summer he kept urging her to slip away with him on his yacht. They had two or three nervous little quarrels about that. She couldn't go. Indeed not once did she stay away from home over night. Even when Arthur and Alice planned their trip to San Francisco, after Gran'ma went permanently to the sanatorium in the mountains, she fought the idea. Closely she held them about her. . . . Doubtless this often capricious resistance held De Brissac the more firmly. But Hattie would hardly have thought of that. There was, even now, nothing of the coquette in her; there was only a series of profound disturbances of the spirit . . . bitterness, fear, sudden uncontrolable longings followed by repulsions that were quite as strong, and shot through the whole devastating experience a sense of dark wild beauty that at moments was a flame and at other times was only an ache . . . nights of crying herself to sleep (she clung, secretly, to the doll) . . . [illegible] and desires, this along in the autumn, in which [illegible] figured not at all.

Henry O'Malley, until he went to New York in September, was a constant problem. She met him on a late afternoon in Los Angeles and told him . . . summoning all her courage, a whitely firm slip of a girl . . . that the engagement must be broken. It was difficult. He pled, argued, questioned; he telephoned—she had to forbid him calling up the lot—and wrote heartbreaking letters. In August she saw him driving another girl in the roadster. For a few weeks after that she heard nothing from him, but then he began again. There was, he cried out, no one else who understood him, who nerved him to the struggle. That would be because she had sat very still during so many of her hours with him and listened or tried to listen while he talked and talked of himself. But then most men did that. Even Brissac. . . . She couldn't tell him about Henry. She couldn't tell anybody. She found herself, indeed, a frightened little person about whom adult passions raged. And she was herself fairly caught. There was no guessing the course of events. Tragedy seemed, and for that matter was, momentarily possible.

A Good Thing—Don't Overlook It.

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter which contains [illegible] suggestion: "I feel like a new man since taking Foley's Honey and Tar. I can now sleep all night, soreness in chest and the bad cough entirely gone. My whole family use it for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it.

Miniature Dragon Found.

A lizzard that has the appearance of a dragon in miniature has been found in Australia. Natives have named it the bearded dragon or Jew lizard. Another lizard found has around its neck a frill which lies perfectly flat when the creature is at peace, but is raised like a shield around its head in times of danger.

Visits Graveyard in Boat

To inspect an old graveyard, Lord Craigavon, premier to Ireland, recently had to make the journey in a "cot," the primitive boat still used by the people of Galloon Island, in Upper Lough Erne. During the trip his lordship was told that the only industry that the island had ever had was the making of illicit whiskey, but the police had destroyed it.

Aged Sister Has Long Vigil.

Believing that her seventy-year-old sister, Mary, was only in a trance and would recover, Caroline Haywell, aged 68, guarded the body for three weeks before the two were found recently in Hull, England. The body was lying on a matting before a roaring fire, and was surrounded by loaves of bread and other food.

Mrs. Mary Porter, aged 102, still lives in the same thatched cottage at Bingham, England, in which she was married 80 years ago.

To show the progress of the Dominican people, a national exposition of industry, agriculture and the arts was held recently at Santiago.

SENATOR McNARY STILL TRYING TO GET PLAN FOR FARM RELIEF

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Seator Charles L. McNary of Oregon is spending what ought to be his vacation trying to hit on a farm relief program, for the next session of congress, which President Coolidge can approve.

In the way of an agreement between McNary and the president there is, after all, only one stumbling block:

Thus far the senator has been unable to thing up a scheme that suited him which the chief executive didn't pronounce "economically unsound," while no plan acceptable to Mr. Coolidge is regarded by the Oregon statesman as "any good."

Otherwise they're in hearty accord.

Senator McNary will be recalled as a collaborer with Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which the agricultural bloc succeeded in getting through the last congress, only to see it vetoed by the president, and then to drop, perforce, because the bloc hadn't enough votes to pass it over his head.

Naturally the situation's unsatisfactory to all parties concerned.

McNary, Haugen et al haven't a thing to show for several years' hard work. The president's placed in the light of having turned thumbs down on a proposition the farmers were able to muster a congressional majority for, which isn't calculated to do him any good among the Corn Belt voters, either at the next Republican convention or at the national election of 1928.

If he could give 'em a satisfactory compromise next winter there's no doubt he'd be glad to, only it's a pretty hard thing to compromise.

The McNary-Haugen plan has been argued, pro and con, by all available experts, to the tune of many large volumes, and no conclusion was arrived at, at that.

So there's small hope of settling the question here.

But the nub of it is:

How's the American farmer to be protected against his own competition?

The American manufacturer's protected by keeping competing foreign goods out.

American labor's protected by keeping competing foreign labor out.

The American farmer has to pay for all this protection, for others' benefit, but gets none of his own. The same kind of protection that protects the industries and labor does him no good. His own over-product is what undersells him.

So, to help the farmer, the McNary-Haugen plan proposes an application of the protective tariff principle in reverse—wrong side up, inside out and stern end first.

Heaven knows how it would work, but this much is certain:

It wouldn't work at all until it was wound up with a key, known as an "equilization fee," which the farmer pays, when he markets his crop, to take his surplus off his hands.

Now, mind ye, the machinery absolutely won't run until it's wound up with an "equalization fee" key.

"I'll stand for almost anything," President Coolidge assures Senator McNary, "but I positively draw the line on an equalization fee. It's economically unsound."

What McNary is trying to find, between now and next December, is some way of making his contrivance run without any motive power. He stands about as much chance as he does discovering perpetual motion, most authorities say.

New Phonograph Very Loud.

Said to have the tone volume of 20 orchestral instruments, a phonograph recently invented, is causing much interest in Germany. The tone volume is declared to be augmented by the influx into the soundbox of a mixture of atomized air and oil generated by a hand pump and projected to the resonator.

Exile For Criminals

A new broom sweeps clean, and Mayor Thompson of Chicago is doing a lot of sweeping. If he was elected with the aid of the "lawless element," as his critics charged, the joke seems to be on that element, for His Honor has instructed the chief of police to "drive law-breakers out of Chicago in 30 days."

That will be a historic drive if the order is carried out literally. There will be a criminal hegira such as this country never saw before.

It would be a wonderful thing for Chicago. But how about the other cities, to which the undesirable residents are exiled? This is a not uncommon procedure, with a criminal problem, but doesn't really solve the problem. It means that Chicago will do with her criminal population what she is doing with her sewage. There should be local criminal reduction plants.

Junk Cars

One of the greatest needs of highway transportation today, says the head of an automobile association, is to "get the junk cars off the road."

The streets and highways, he observes, are cluttered up with cars that are barely able to navigate. They limp along with coughing engines and rattling fenders, eyesores to onlookers and a serious menace to other cars. Their brakes do not work, they stall in busy traffic, they fail in high-climbing and hold up the procession, they are always stopping to repair a blow-out or puncture and clogging up the road. They are not only a nuisance to drivers whose cars are in proper condition, but there is peril merely in their presence on the highway, because nobody ever knows what they are going to do or when they will break down.

Some states are now doing their best to eliminate such cars. Connecticut apparently is taking the lead, with state police and local police co-operating. It is a difficult matter to handle, for the citizen with a poor car will usually insist that he has just as much right on the road as his neighbor with a good car. It is hard to legislate in this matter, and rough-and-ready police methods may be questioned.

Surely something can be done, however, in the way of making and enforcing rules that would bar any car from the public highways unless it fulfills certain fundamental mechanical requirements of speed and control. An automobile should be what it purports to be—"self-moving," instead of a traffic obstruction. The place for junk is in the junk yard.

Better facilities for scrapping old cars would help. Possibly the manufacturers could do something along this line, encouraging owners of old wrecks to turn them in at a fair value.

Woodcrafts And Fires

While floods menace the lower Mississippi valley, forest fires are raging in various sections of the East. It is reported that not often in April have the forests of New York State been in such peril as they are at present. On a single day last week fires were reported in a dozen or more rural regions and in the Catskills and Adirondacks.

Automobiles and good roads are increasing the forest fire danger, because they carry into the wooded regions more people than ever ventured there in the days of transportation by horse-drawn vehicles. Many of these visitors to the nation's woods are ignorant of forest fire perils and of campcraft. Rejoicing in the new-found pleasures of forest roving, they do things that horrify the wood-wise camper and burn up or seriously injure the very forests they are learning to love and enjoy.

The increased peril calls for new safeguards and increased vigilance in watching to prevent and check fire. It calls also for increased effort to educate the public in woodcraft and the reasons for forest regulations.

Food Out Of Season

The northern states have been getting fresh vegetables from Florida and southern California for months. They are now getting sweet corn from Texas, grapes from Argentina and peaches from Chile. All winter they have had fresh spinach and lettuce from their own hothouses, and now they have ripe tomatoes from the same source.

People used to have fresh fruits and vegetables only "in season." Now communities with good transportation facilities and up-to-date greenhouses can have them in season and out of season. Soon there will be practically one season for everything—that will be all the year round.

Man is omnivorous, or more nearly so than any of the other animals. His diet is more varied today than ever before, and the variety is always available. This is doubtless one of the main reasons for the improved health of the American people and the greater size and vigor shown by new generations of children.

"The hardest men to find jobs for are those who have married money," says a business writer. Luckily they don't need the jobs.

Dog fashions change as rapidly as fashions in hats. Still we don't quite fathom the news item which says, "Police dogs have given way to ugly canines."

THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND

P. T. Barnum, at the outset of his career as a showman, originated the idea of the Happy Family, taking his cue from that prophecy of Holy Writ wherein it is stated that the lion and the lamb eventually shall lie down together.

The thing proved a sensation. On the opening day, following advertisements in the daily press, crowds flocked to Barnum's museum to stand in front of a cage wherein, with no bars to separate them, were displayed a lion, a tiger, and a panther, and in the midst of these a gentle lambkin, all four dwelling together in seeming amity. News of the marvelous wonder spread and the patronage increased by leaps and bounds. Nevertheless, Mr. Barnum appeared at times, worried.

When the specticle was two weeks old a friend inquired of him how the Happy Family seemed to be getting along.

"Oh, fairly well," said the great showman. "I am going to make a permanent feature of it if only the supply of lambs holds out!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 23.—The Stock Exchange is the pinnacle of New York's high tension. It is a five-hour flurry of human emotions unequaled any other place in the world. Like the Statue of Liberty, it is something the average New Yorker rarely sees.

It becomes a mastodonic football melee with hundreds of players milling, jostling and racing about in an insanity of whirring confusion. It is as though a thousand persons suddenly discovered they had ten seconds to catch their trains.

How members stand it for years and years is high tribute to the elasticity and resiliency of human nerves. The Exchange opens with a staccato boom of a gong. And they're off with all the thud of flying hoofs at a race course.

In the general clamor flash the bright uniforms of 500 page boys. The click of incessant tickers. The frantic gestures of summoning hands at the phone call boards. Hastily scratched bits of paper racing from hand to hand. Hums rising into giant roars. Bedlam.

Millions upon millions in invisible values change in a day. Men often double up as though struck in the stomach as fortunes are swept away and others actually stagger around in the drunkenness of suddenly acquired riches. Delirium and pathos.

In the tautness the prankish spirit often boils to the surface. Especially on dull days or on half day holidays. A new member may be hazed into the idea his entire fortune has been wiped out by a fake manipulation. Lapel flowers squirting water are worn. Other trick deceptions. And in extra hilarious moments they often play leap frog.

And yet here are men who pay slightly less than $200,000 for a seat at the greatest trading post the world has ever known. There is a solemnity in each member wearing a gardenia fresh every morning. It is symbolic of the fact that even among the predatory there is a love for a little touch of beauty.

Nearly all Stock Exchange gardenias worn by members are purchased from an old man near the entrance who has been selling them for years. He is a figure in the money marts. Every financier of prominence knows him and he knows them. He is said to have an extraordinarily large fortune for a humble flower seller. And he wouldn't exchange jobs with the president of the Exchange.

An idea of the difficulty in securing a taxi during a rain after theatre may be gained from the fact that a gentleman marooned under a canopy on West 44th street rushed to a nearby telegraph office and wired to Pelham to have his car sent. It arrived before more than a dozen had been able to secure a taxi.

The umbrella sellers who seem to seep out of the Broadway crevices five minutes after the start of a slashing shower are odd job men about Times Square who keep a supply of umbrellas in convenient places to peddle at the opportune moment.

Not only the human race is being designated by the furious night life but it is reported that nightly 100 gold fish, which were imported to disport about in water-filled glass tables at a supper club floated up lifeless with wide staring eyes.

A young girl who portrays an alcoholic part had not until recently tasted liquor. She was induced to drink two cocktails at a dinner before the performance and that night she went up completely in her lines.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Farm Waste Products.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—Out in Minnesota there is a chemist who has taken $250 worth of various products from a ton of straw by a process of distillation. His name is George H. Harrison and the things he gets out of straw range from a gas which he has run his automobile to the paint on the body of the car.

His demonstration, to the imaginative mind, points a way to a solution of the pressing problem of what to do for the farmers of the United States who are so insistent that something be done for them. Teach them to save their straw and instruct them in its utilization. The average acre of wheat yields about two tons of straw. Consider the folly of the farmer who saves the grain and throws away the stray, when the grain is not worth more than $25 or $30 at best whereas the straw has a potential value of $500!

In an average year about 60,000,000 acres are devoted to wheat growing in this country, and the acreage has run above 75,000,000. The banner production year was in 1915 when slightly more than 60,000,000 acres were harvested and the crop ran a little above 1,000,000,000 bushels. But all that grain was worth less than a billion dollars at the average farm price on December 1 of that year, while the straw, if utilized to the maximum of Mr. Harrison's ability, would have been worth thirty times that much.

Of course it could not have had a farm value of that fabulous amount, for putting straw through the Harrison laboratory processes is expensive, but with all that potential treasure buried in his strawstack. Hi, the poor farmer, who has succeeded in the public interest that other famous American character, Lo, the poor indian, is bound to sit up and take notice. He may even decide to study chemistry and set up a laboratory somewhere between the woodshed and the kitchen.

What There is in Straw.

A ton of straw makes a fair-sized stack. Burn it and all there is left is about 40 pounds of ashes. Approximately 1960 pounds have gone up in smoke, and it is that part of the strawstack that yields most of Mr. Harrison's products. Thus from each ton of straw, which he processes by fine-choping and forcing it through tubes heated to 1200 degrees Fahrenheit, he gets 12,600 cubic feet of gas, after having used one-third of the gas generated from the straw to maintain the temperature.

Condensed, the gas he has left yields 640 pounds of carbon, 400 pounds of pitch, and 15 gallons of oil. The carbon can be ground into high quality paints, it is said, and waterproofing materials can be made from the pitch. Straw oil is a germicide and a disinfectant, in the latter use being superior to coal tar products in its strength and in its being non-irritant, neither burning nor destroying living tissues.

Lignin, which is found in straw, stalks, and most plant refuse, has a fair chance of besting coal tar in the variety of its product. Dr. C. A. Browne, chief of the bureau of Chemistry of the department of Agriculture, says that it "probably offers as many methods of utilization for the manufacture of tanning materials, dyestuffs, and other industrial products as was offered eighty years ago by that other trade waste, coal tar, which has proved to be an almost inexhaustible source of wealth."

But straw is only one of the farm waste products—those hitherto so regarded—that can be coined into regular money. Take the homely cornstalk and the humble cob, as further examples. At the department of Agriculture there is a list of 217 products and uses of corn, but most of these are of the grain, which represents only about one-fourth of the weight of the corn plant. Stalk, leaves, cobs, silks, and tassels are for the most part wasted, but the chemists are getting busy to put an end to that sort of thing and already they are saying there is more potential cash value in the stalk and cob than there is in the corn.

Products derived from the grain of the corn include breakfast foods, oils, grease, and paint, toilet preparations, explosives, alcohol, confectionery, fireworks, shaving soap, roof and floor coverings, varnishes, syrups and sugars, radio parts, imitation leather, rubber sustitutes, laundry soaps, and scores of others. Something like 80 per cent of the corn grown annually in the United States is fed to livestock, but its other uses are so varied and so profitable that the time may come, it is predicted, when feeding it to animals will be regarded as wasteful.

Cornstalks are used to a considerable extent for fodder for farm animals, but the corncobs, of which we have an annual crop of more than 20,000,000 tons are almost all burned or got rid of in some other way. The important chemical, furfural, can be made from the cobs, and furfural can be processed to make such articles as telephone receivers, radio horns, phonograph records, pipestems, and cigarette holders. Other uses to which both the stalks and the cobs may be put are wall board, paper, adhesive, charcole, fuel, embalming fluids, solvents and pipes.

Great quantities of corn, potatoes, and fermentable wastes such as fruit that are now sold by the farmer at a loss or actually thrown away may in time be utilized in the manufacture of alcohol that can be used as a substitute for gasoline for power purposes. This, however, will not come about until the price of gasoline has advanced materially, for it costs too much to produce fuel alcohol to compete with the petroleum product at present prices.

Engagement of East End Couple Is Announced

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Harriet Podewels, daughter of Mrs. Charles Podewels of Erie street, to Charles F. Stull, son of Mrs. Nellie Stull of Virginia avenue, East End, was made Thursday evening, at a pretty party given by Mrs. Mabel Seckman in the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles Podewels with members of the Ideal Social club in attendance.

HEARING AT 11 A. M.

Defendant Charged With Firing Home to Get Insurance.

Arrested on a charge of arson following a fire which damaged the interior of the home in which he was living, near Twelfth street, several weeks ago, Nathan Jones, colored, is scheduled to go on trial Monday morning at 11 o'clock in common pleas court.

Jones was indicted by the last grand jury with arson and intent to prejudice insurers.

Although Jones' case was scheduled for an earlier hearing Monday, it was expected that it will be delayed until just before noon on account of the fact that several hours will be required to finish the hearing in the case of Thomas Cadwallader and others against C. V. Rakestraw, of Salem.

The court has appointed Attorney W. A. O'Grady to defend Jones, because the latter is unable himself to supply funds to employ counsel.

Paul Brandt Asks Divorce.

Extravagance of his wife is charged in the petition for divorce filed in common pleas court by Paul Brandt, through his counsel, Raymond Knepper of Wellsville, against his wife, Alice Brandt, residing on Eighteenth Street Heights, and in addition to a decree, Brandt asks for the custody of his son William, now aged two years.

The petition relates the couple were married at New Cumberland, W. Va., Sept. 27, 1923.

Brandt claims that his wife contracted debts against his small income to the amount of 1,500, and because of alleged mismanagement and extravagance of the plaintiff he was unable to meet his obligations. He also claims that his wife failed to give their home the attention it required.

William Horlick, Originator of Malted Milk

The food product now known all over the world as Malted Milk was discovered by William Horlick at Racine, Wisconsin. This was the first time in history that whole cow's milk was reduced to powder form together with the nutritive extracts of malted cereals, so that it was readily transportable and would keep in any climate. He named the product, "Malted Milk."

Years later, in 1895, Mr. Horlick combined Malted Milk with chocolate, cocoa and other flavorings, made up in tablet and other forms.

The great discovery of Horlick's Malted Milk has been the means of saving thousands upon thousands of lives, especially of infants and invalids requiring a highly nutritious and easily digested food, many of them in tropical regions or places where good milk was not obtainable. It has been carried by explorers everywhere, and by Amundsen and Peary to the North and South Poles.

In recognition of services rendered to Polar exploration, the rank of Knighthood in the Royal Norwegian Order of St. Olaf was conferred upon Mr. Horlick by King Haakon of Norway.

LEAGUE FIGHTS CREEK POLLUTION

Issuing warnings to a saw mill which had been operating along Yellow Creek, the Izaak Walton league, of Toronto, has taken initial steps in a plan to prevent pollution, as much as possible, of creek waters this summer.

Game wardens, co-operating with the league, have announced that the saw mill operators have moved the mill away from the creek and sawdust and other refuse now is being piled up instead of thrown into the creek.

Investigation was begun after a conference with John E. Monger, director of health, Columbus.

Under sections of the general code, fines can be imposed for "corrupting or rendering unwholesome or impure a water course, stream or other water."

The league, it is said, has decided to bring proceedings in cases of the kind that are not corrected after due warning has been given.

Urges Citizens to "Brush Up" Around Homes.

"Whether or not council decides to take any action toward a clean-up week, it would be a good thing for the city to have one, anyway," declared President of Council Clyde Baker today, in suggesting that citizens devote their individual attention to brushing up a little around their property.

Cleaning away the dirt, old cans and refuse of the winter would help to prevent accumulation of filth and germ breeding facilities and consequently, would not only aid in beautifying home surroundings but also prove a boon to health conditions, Baker points out.

Baker suggested that council take action for a clean-up week but solons failed to go on record at their last meeting.

DEMSEY PLANS FIGHT JUNE 29

NEW YORK, April 23.—Jack Dempsey's much discussed return to the ring was set today at June 29 by Humbert J. Fugazy, rival promoter of Tex Rickard. Fugazy claimed that he had Dempsey's agreement to box for him on that date at the Polo grounds against the winner of the Young Stribling-Tommy Loughran bout, which will be held at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on May 3.

"I have Dempsey's word that he will be ready for either Stribling or Loughran on that date," Fugazy declared. "The match will take place under the auspices of the American Legion of New York, with myself as the promoter."

Fugazy declined to say how much he had offered Dempsey for the match.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 23.—The railroad stocks were the centers of interest in an active and irregular short session of the stock market today. Price movements in the motor and specialty stocks were erratic, with the bulk of active shares moving downward in response to heavy week-end profit and short selling. The oils displayed considerable weakness, most of the well known independent oils sinking to new low prices.

The rise in railroad stock prices was led by Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, Atchison and other of the high grade dividend shares which have been at the head of the rail list for the last two or three years. The so-called merger stocks were also well bought.

General Motors and Hudson moved upward a point or two in response to persistent buying. Briggs Manufacturing declined four points to the year's lowest price of 28 as the result of an explosion in the Detroit plants which caused considerable damage. Dodge, Packard and Pierce Arrow were unable to rally. Oil stocks were thrown overboard in hurried liquidation as conditions in the oil trade appeared to be more unsatisfactory than at any time this year.

International Nickel retained its position of leadership in the specialties, with a new advance to 58⅞ on buying attributed to Canadian traders. Universal Pipe, International Combustion and Colorado Fuel and Iron were slightly reactionary. Equipment and sugar stocks marked time. United States Steel forged to the front in the second hour, with heavy trading around 172.

2,000 PERSONS FACE DEATH IN FIERCE FLOODS

76 KNOWN DEAD

Thousands Homeless as Levees Along Mississippi Breaks.

HELENANA, Ark., April 23.—Marooned on a crumbling levee two and a half feet wide, doomed to sure death if not rescued within twelve hours, 2,000 refugees were frantically screaming for help at Knowlton's landing, 50 miles south of here, as raging waters of the Mississippi river today continued to lash away inches of the levee at a time.

Such was the critical condition described by R. P. Beith, farmer, who came 50 miles in his motorboat last night to Helena river officials for immediate aid.

The steamer Wabash, the only large boat available for rescue work at the present, left the landing last night with 750 of the refugees—all she could carry—leaving 2,000 persons behind, said Beith.

The Wabash had not arrived here this morning but was enroute from Knowlton's landing with a load of refugees, according to a radio report received from her.

With the death toll slowly mounting, extraordinary measures were being taken today to save thousands of persons marooned by the swirling, turbid waters of the Mississippi river.

Never in history has the lower Mississippi valley, from Cairo to the gulf, suffered such a disastrous flood.

There are approximately 75 known dead in the area. Thousands are homeless, millions of acres of fertile farm lands are under water. Damage will run into millions.

Reports to the Red Cross indicate that 75,000 persons need food, clothing and shelter. This number is expected to double within a few days. The Red Cross is seeking to raise a $5,000,000 relief fund.

A slow, horrible death is facing 2,000 terror stricken refugees at Knowlton's landing, Ark. They are marooned on a levee two and one half feet wide. The rushing waters are gradually eating away the ground from under them. Unless relief comes within the next 12 hours they are believed doomed.

The flood is expected to reach a peak within the next ten days in the lower Mississippi. Heroic efforts are being made to strengthen protecting levees in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The governor has ordered the evacuation of 13,000 refugees in Greenville, Miss.

GREENVILLE, Miss., April 23.—Evacuation of Greenville, center of the rich Mississippi delta, was ordered today by Governor Dennis Murphree.

The Mississippi floods have inundated Greenville to the extent of eight feet, with water still pouring over the protecting levee, and the governor ordered the 13,000 refugees removed at once.

They will be taken to higher places in a fleet of boats.

More than 1,500 refugees were taken from a levee surrounding Greenville early today and sent to Vicksburg for safety. The steamer Tollinger, towing three barges, made the transfer without loss of life.

Reports from outlying sections today indicated that at least 30 negroes were drowned when the levee broke near Scott Wednesday. Hundreds of houses were swept away on the plantations and a dozen towns flooded from the break.

Major Paxton, of the Mississippi National Guard, is in charge of the relief work. Motor boats are in Greenville, to save lives, officials said.

Sanitary conditions were bad today in Greenville, following the failure of the water system yesterday. River water is being used for drinking purposes.

Several boats, small ones, have been capsized and lost in the eastern section of the city, where the current in the streets is 25 miles an hour.

Second story houses were in demand today. Every available one was filled with refugees.

Workmen were making every effort to get the city's waterworks back in operation to restore sanitary conditions. Business is at a standstill.

down Pennsylvania avenue to Boyce street and turned into Beechwood and from that point proceeded out McKinnon avenue. Questioned by Hoover he stated that the car was going at the rate of about 10 miles an hour when the crash happened. He stated that the car had stopped about 20 feet from the scene.

Claims McGraw Was Speeding.

Henry Miller, another passenger in the Flame car, testified that the Ford machine driven by McGraw was going at about 40 miles an hour when it hit their car when questioned by Attorney Cochran. He stated in answer to a series of questions by Attorney Bennett who pressed him closely that he did not see the Ford before it struck the Packard and that his speed estimate was simply based on the noise of the impact. He denied that any liquor was in the car when queried by Attorneys Cochran and Bennett.

Hugh Tomlinson, Michigan avenue, the third passenger, gave similar testimony but became badly confused after stating that his view of the Ford car was blocked by "a house" and the Northside fire station when Attorney Bennett pointed out that the fire station which sets back from the street could not obscure his view while there was no "house" on that side of the street.

Flame Is Called.

Flame, after stating that he was the owner of the machine, related how he and D'Amico stopped in Klondyke and picked up Wolf, Tomlinson and Miller. He then described the route taken to the scene of the accident. He gave it as his opinion that the Packard was going between 10 and 15 miles as it neared the intersection of McKinnon and St. Clair avenues. He stated that the McGraw car was coming down the hill at a rate of speed he estimated at between 40 and 45 miles.

Questioned on this point by Attorney Bennett he admitted that he only saw the Ford machine when it was about six or eight feet from his machine.

Questioned about his business he replied that he was proprietor of a soft drink place and that he employed D'Amico as a chauffeur from time to time. He stated he helped pick up the injured youth and carried him to the fire station.

Howard Smith, testified that he was sitting in the seat of the Ford car operated by McGraw while Wilhams and Carson Hancock stood on the running board. He detailed the trip which took them to Calcutta to which place all four rode inside the machine. Questioned by Solicitor Hoover he stated that the car slowed up coming down the hill to the intersection near the fire station. He said that he noticed the Packard coming out McKinnon avenue at a high rate of speed. Questioned by Attorney Cochran as to the presence of a five gallon gasoline can and hose found in the car in which he was riding he declared he did not know anything about it.

Eye Witness Testifies.

Harry Johannes, Northside drug store proprietor, testified that he was on the porch of the home of Attorney Samuel W. Crawford when the crash happened. Asked to estimate the speed at which both cars were traveling he stated that the Ford was averaging about 40 miles an hour, while he believed the Packard was making about 20 miles per hour. He described in detail the scene when the machines met and was put through a rigid cross-examination by Attorney Bennett who asked him if his testimony did not conflict with that given at the hearing the day following the accident. He stated that he did not hear any horns blown, which fact had been testified to by other witnesses including drivers of both cars.

Attorney Samuel W. Crawford, St. Clair avenue, stated that he did not see either car before the collision but at the sound of the crash he arose from his porch and saw them together. He stated in answer to Attorney Cochran that a gasoline can and a piece of hose four feet long fell out of the Ford.

Rowland Kaufman, Fairmont street, stated that he was in bed when he heard the crash. Arising he noticed from his window two men running from Smithfield street toward Orchard Grove avenue.

D' Amico testified he was 20 years of age and had been driving a car for four years. He was questioned by Solicitor Hoover and went over the ground covered by Flame and the other passengers on the trip from East End. He declared that he was going at between 10 and 15 miles while the Ford, he stated, was traveling at about a 40-mile pace. Hard pressed by Attorney Bennett he was forced to admit that he did not see the Ford until it bumped into the car he was driving, and therefore could not give an accurate estimate as to just how fast it was going. He also stated that there was no liquor in the machine.

Carson Hancock, who was riding on the running board of the McGraw car, testified that the machine slowed down as it left the hill near the cemetery. He estimated the speed of the Packard at 40 miles an hour. Under cross examination by Attorney Cochran he also admitted that he did not see the Packard until the machines were in striking distance. He denied knowledge of the presence of a gasoline can and piece of hose in the automobile.

McGraw Last Witness.

Gerald McGraw, driver of the Ford and the last witness called testifying in answers to questions of Attorney Bennett declared that above the cemetery he was going between 30 and 35 miles an hour but he slackened the speed at the top of the hill. He said that he sounded his horn. Asked to estimate the speed at which the Packard was going he replied it was going "pretty fast."

He told Attorney Cochran that he had bought the gasoline can and that the hose was given to hm by another youth.

Judge Hanley questioned him at length relative to the car which he said he secured in a trade with a Cincinnati man whom he met while enroute here from Birmingham, Ala., where he went two weeks ago. He said he brought the man here and made the deal leaving his own machine with a broken piston on the road near Cincinnati. He declared he did not know the license numbers on the car on the night of the accident.

WOMAN HELD IN MURDER QUIZ

DAYTON, O., April 23.—An indictment charging first degree murder was returned by the county grand jury here today against Mrs. Elizabeth Foltz, in connection with the death of Frank Carter, who died at the State hospital here, shortly after he was admitted in February. It is charged that he died of poisoning. Mrs. Foltz, in a statement to authorities, made shortly after Carter's death, admitted that she had given Carter, with whom she lived as his common law wife, some medicinal substance "to keep him from drinking liquor."

REED IMPROVING AT HOSPITAL

Senator Reed went to the hospital for observation as a result of abdominal pains.

He expects to leave within a day or so, it was said.

a spurt of flames from the Duco plant," Artue said. "Usually about 200 men are employed on the third floor where the explosion happened. We carried out about 50. Some were seriously injured and some apparently only slightly burned. As far as we know other workmen on other floors escaped. A few may have been trapped by falling stairways of debris."

Fire Follows Explosion.

The blast rocked the entire East side. Coins at the Detroit railway barns a half mile away jingled and the windows of neighboring buildings were shattered. A large portion of the plant wall toppled with the blast.

Immediately dense funnels of thick, black smoke gushed from the building and in a few minutes the low hanging clouds were lit by flames shooting 100 feet into the sky. The crimson glow could literally be seen for miles.

More than 200 girls and women employed in the cushion department of the plant, were saved from injury by the presence of mind of William Borkowski, foreman of the fifth floor.

Survivor Tells Story.

Abraham Mayer, an employe of the company, working on the third floor at the time of the explosion declared many bodies were left behind in the raging inferno.

"I was working on the third floor when the explosion occurred," Mayer said at a local hospital, where he was removed for treatment.

"There was a terrible roar. Men fell to the floor unconscious. I made my way to the outside, stumbling over bodies on the way. "Rescue workers tried to reach the trapped men but the smoke was so dense it was impossible. I believe there are many dead on the third floor."

To prove that he was recovering from the effects of a motor accident,

GLEN ROBIN MAN CHARGED WITH WIFE'S MURDER FOUND INSANE

Self Confessed Slayer Will be Sent to Lima.

Defendant Claims he Had "Lack of Knowledge."

Adjudged insane by a sanity commission following a hearing yesterday afternoon in probate court at Steubenville, Theodore Boley, 27, self confessed slayer of his wife, Goldie Boley, an East Liverpool girl, will be committed to the state institution for criminal insane at Lima.

Boley choked his wife to death March 31, at their home in Glen Robin, Jefferson county and surrendered to Steubenville police several hours after the crime.

Six witnesses testified at the hearing, among them Boley's mother and three brothers, Drs. S. O. Barkhurst and J. Miller, who examined Boley several weeks ago, testified to his insanity.

They said that at the time of their examination of Boley in jail they believed him insane; that from their examination at that time they believed him to be insane at the time of the crime.

A hypothetical question based on all family history and facts brought out in the evidence was put to the physicians who answered that Boley was insane at the time of the crime and is yet insane.

Boley was called upon to testify in his own behalf shortly before noon.

"I've told you all I know," he told the prosecutor. "If you want to find out how I came to do it, you'll have to get trace of it through the witnesses you have had. If you get any trace of it through them, or anyone else, allright. Read the Bible and you'll find out. But I refuse to tell—and I will die first before I will tell the secret of why I killed her."

Boley attributed his deed to "lack of knowledge" but no amount of questioning could bring him to admit just what the "lack of knowledge" was, nor would he say why he committed the crime.

"Did you know when you started to choke your wife that you meant to kill her?" he was asked.

Boley looked down at his hands which he had been nervously wringing.

"Yes, I did."

"Do you think you were insane when you killed your wife," Merryman asked.

"I say I wasn't insane. But I do say I had lack of knowledge," Boley answered.

During the entire testimony, Boley sat in one position, utterly calm. His eyes, swept the faces about him, lingering first on one and then on another.

A farmer went into a city restaurant. Beside him sat two men eating fish. Presently one of them signaled the waiter and ordered a bottle of near-beer. "The fish want to swim," he added. The farmer, who had ordered roast pork, thought this a clever remark: "Waiter," he roared, "a bottle of near-beer—the pig wants a drink!"

Why Not?

The sergeant was taking the recruits' squad.

"For the last time," he shouted "I ask you the simple question: 'What is a fortification?'"

The recruits stood fast to a man. No one answered. Striding up to the most intelligent-looking man, the N. C. O. bawled: "Tell me, what is a fortification?"

The answer came like a cork out of a bottle:

"Two twentifications, sergeant!"

There was a very slight earthquake felt in St. Moritz on one occasion and the same day a genial visitor, on taking his seat at a restaurant table, remarked to the waiter, who understood little English:

"Well, you have earthquakes here, do you?"

"Earthquakes" beat Giuseppe, but he would not admit anything that he thought implied a lack in the hotel.

"Oh, yes, sare," he replied, "we do have them, but they are not quite ripe yet. They have been ordered from Zurich, and should be here next week."

mer to realize a profit, for it is used in the manufacture of combs, buttons, shoe horns, poker chips, and billiard balls. Casein is also used in large quantities in finishing high grade printing papers such as are used in books and magazines, and still another use is as a binder in washable paints for walls and woodwork.

Cheese whey is another agricultural waste to which the scientists are now directing their attention. It is estimated that some three billion pounds of whey goes to waste each year, and at the same time it presents a serious problem to the manufacturers in effecting a sanitary disposal of it. Now it is suggested that organic solvents, such as butyl alcohol, acetone, and lactic acid can be made from the whey.

All this utilization of agricultural wastes may not offer immediate benefit to the individual farmer, but it is all working out to the ultimate advantage of the agricultural industry. And there is one waste that is rapidly being eliminated with immediate profits—the waste of labor through unscientific and inefficient farming methods.

LOSES $32,000 IN "CON" GAME

CINCINNATI, O., April 23.—Joseph H. McQueen, of Pax, W. Va., almost fell for a "pigeon dropping game," most ancient of swindles. He "tumbled" before he parted with his bankroll of $32,000, he told police, but he saw the light too late, for two men who had attempted to entice his money from him by gentler methods turned "strong arm squad" and forcibly robbed him in a hotel room here.

McQueen met a man in a hotel lobby and together they "found" a pocketbook containing $116 and a telegram containing a third man's name. They looked up the third man, who in "gratitude," invested the $116 in the "stock market" and agreed to share the profits with his benefactors, McQueen and the latter's new found "friend." The money rapidly increased, and McQueen was induced to return to Charleston and bring back $32,000 to put in a "big stock deal" that promised quick profits. Returning to the Cincinnati hotel McQueen became suspicious, whereupon the two men seized him, bound his hands, took his money and disappeared, he told police.

BUSINESS MEN GIVEN WARNING

"Gyp" Auto Organizations Reported to Have Visited Here.

Columbiana county business men are warned against operations of 'gyp' automobile organizations, two or three of which are reported to have "fleeced" county residents out of sums ranging from $7 to $100 each. The warning was sounded by E. M. Diehl, secretary of the Columbiana County Motor club.

Garage and filling station proprietors in East Liverpool, an auto repair shop and an individual owner in Wellsville, an individual and a restaurant owner in Lisbon, and a garage owner at Salem are reported to have been victimed by the swindlers who have visited this district recently.

A salesman, who sold a so called "commercial membership" to a Lisbon restaurant owner, misrepresenting the membership as that issued by the American Automobile Association, is now serving a prison term in Michigan, having been apprehended through the efforts of the American Automobile Association.

Various methods are said to have been used by other strangers to obtain money from the unsuspecting business man. Business people are urged to investigate before subscribing to these projects, many of which have an advertising feature.

Spring Find You Languid?

Waste Impurities in the Blood Make One Tired and Listless.

TO feel constantly tired, lame and achy is often indication of improper elimination. The kidneys are the blood filters. Sluggish function, however, permits retention of waste poisons and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache. A common symptom of imperfect kidney function is scanty or burning excretions.

Assist the kidneys at such times with a stimulant diuretic. Since 1885 Doan's Pills have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. T. W. Barker, Graduate Nurse, 302 W. Pecan St., Sherman, Tex., says: "Doan's Pills is the only proprietary medicine I have ever recommended. I have not only used Doan's myself with excellent results, but many times have recommended them and have been thanked for so doing."
Sworn to before me,
John C. Dannel, N.P.

Lambert W. Cox, Westover, Md., says: "Doan's Pills proved their value to me. My kidneys acted sluggishly and the secretions were scant and scalding. There was such a soreness across my back that I couldn't bend or stoop. I was told to use Doan's Pills and shall always be glad that I did. They put me in fine shape."

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

632. Was there a time when God only knew, "the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations" (Colossians 1:26)?

Answer: Yes; for in Ephesians 3:9 it says: "The mystery which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God." That is to say, it was not known by anyone but God till Jesus came into the world.

633. How is this shown in Revelation 5:1?

Answer: "And I saw in the right hand of him that sat upon the throne (It was in God's Power—hand—alone) a book (the Scriptures telling about the kingdom of Christ) written within and on the backside, sealed with seven seals."

634. How were books writen in those days?

Answer: They were written by hand and upon long strips of parchment (sheep-skin) and were rolled up like a window curtain.

635. If it was "written within and the backside, sealed with seven seals," how much of it could be read?

Answer: Only a very small portion of it; for when sealed, not any of what was on the inside could be read and most of all of what was written "on the backside" would be rolled in out of sight so could not be read.

636. What then is the explanation of this verse?

Answer: God's plan for the most part was kept entirely secret, known only to the Father, until Jesus came and proved Himself worthy.

637. Who was "the Lamb" that "took the book out of the right hand of Him that sat upon the throne." (V. 7)?

Answer: It was Jesus Christ, for John the Baptist said of Him: "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."John 1:29.

638. Why did the Father let His Son "take the book and open the seals thereof" (V. 9)?

Answer: "For thou wast slain." (V.9.) That is to say, the Father held the mysteries of His plan in His right hand, in His own power, kept it all to Himself, kept it secret, until Jesus consecrated Himself at thirty years old to carry out the Father's plan even to the laying down of His own life. See Hebrews 2:9.

PENN AVENUE WORSHIP HOUSE 24 YEARS OLD

Rev. Mr. Cleberger Headed Church of Christ Movement.

Sunday School Rooms Recently Added to Building.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Christian church, also known as Tabernacle Church of Christ, came into existence 24 years ago when services were held in what is known as the Weaver building, now an apartment house, on First avenue, East End.

Rev. Mr. Cleberger headed the movement to organize the church, although Rev. J. H. Weaver had previously conducted a Sunday school. Rev. Mr. Pitman was the first pastor, serving from the time of its organization until 1906 when he was succeded by Rev. Oldham.

Rev. Mr. Oldham remained until 1910, when he resigned. At that time the membership had increased to about 250. The next pastor was Rev. Britain. It was during his pastorate that the congregation purchased the lot at 1302 Pennsylvania avenue and erected its first church building. The original building was about one-half the size of the present structure.

Rev. Mr. Britain was followed by Rev. James Ridgley, Irondale. Next came Rev. Mr. Beatty who is now in Tokio, Japan; Rev. Myers, Rev. Munson and then Rev. A. J. Travis, now pastor of the Island Avenue Christian church at McKees Rocks, Pa. Rev. C. Melvin McKay, who came to this city from Worthington, Ind., will complete his first year of service on May .

During a revival campaign early this year, conducted by the Fife brothers, known as the "Log Cabin Boys of Kentucky," a large addition was built to the church. Because of the style of the edifice it was given the name of the Tabernacle Church of Christ.

Some of the church activities during the past year include the organization of a Men's Booster club, ladies' council, increased Endeavor work and a general Gospel crusade.

The membership is approximately 200. Alonzo Sells is chairman of the official board.

Additional Sunday school rooms were recently added to the church and the choir loft and the pulpit enlarged.

Pastor of Pennsylvania Christian Church Tells of Two Books Which Reveal Almighty of Wisdom and Creator of Love.

Text:—"But men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit."

"I am, therefore God is, for no man ever made himself. I speak, therefor. God spake, for no man has ever spoken who was not first spoken to."

God has given to man two books—the book of nature and the book of revelations. The book of nature reveals a God of love, and this is the highest and best revelation. It reveals God as our Father.

The Book is here; if God did not write it, who did? Man could not have done it, and he would not if he could. It is a book that reveals man's defects and pronounces condemnation upon his head. All of the combined wisdom of all of the combined ages could never have written this Book. We are certain that the devil did not write, it for it is opposed to his kingdom, and to follow its teachings will mean the destruction of the devil and the kingdom. It is antagonistic to all that is devilish.

Let me give you only a few reasons for believing it came from God and that it is the product of inspiration. Men of God spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit, says the apostle. It cannot be destroyed, and therefore we argue that its indestructibility is a proof of its inspiration. When Moses saw the burning bush, the flames loomed and the fire burned, but the bush could not be consumed. God was in it. God is in the old Book and it cannot be destroyed. It has come to us through a river of blood. Every page is stained with the blood of the martyrs. Some one says: "It has been upset more times than any other book, and yet it is a solid cube right side up every time. "It is like the Irishman's fence which was five feet thick and three feet high, and some one said: "Pat, are you not afraid to keep fooling with that fence—afraid you will upset it?" Pat replied: "Faith, if I do, it will be two feet higher after I've completed the job!" It is this way with the Bible. Every time a destructive critic or an infidel makes an attack on it, it comes before the people with renewed power and strength. Those who oppose it and tried to destroy it in the past ages have been almost forgotten, and were it not for the fact that they linked themselves to its history, would not be thought of today. Voltaire predicted that within one hundred years there would be no Bibles, but the hundred years had rolled around, the Christian people were printing Bibles on the very printing press which had been used by the French infidel. Thomas Paine did his best to kill it in his day and generation, but today there are millions of men reading the Book, and never in the world's history have we had so many copies of the Bible, and in so many languages, as we have today. No book attracts attention as does this one. Can you picture the scene in New York when the new version came from the press; express wagons loaded with Bibles and the Bible houses unable to supply the demand? Think of it; 118,000 words sent by telegraph to Chicago in order that the people in that locality might be able to read the message at the same time they were reading it in New York!

The style of the Book is another reason for believing in its inspiration. When you translate a piece of literature into a foreign tongue it loses its personality and its individuality. "Shakespeare's magic could not copied be;
Within that circle none durst walk but me."

The moment you translate his writings, and put them into another tongue, they lose their power. Not so with the Bible; you can put it into every dialect, and you can create a language and then put it into the one you have created, and it is still the powerful, uplifting, soul-saving message. It is a universal Father speaking to his universal family. Its conciseness is characteristic. You write the history of the Johnstown flood and you will have a book of hundreds of pages, but when God wrote the history of the greatest flood the world has ever seen, he put it into a few sentences, and you cannot add to it. It is a perfect description. If you write the history of a man, you will use pages, but God can write the history of a nation and put it into a few paragraphs, and you are impressed with it as being finished.

Its Uniqueness.—Suppose the president should issue a proclamation calling upon men from every country under the "Stars and Stripes" to bring to the city of Washington, on a certain day, pieces of marble taken from the quarries of their own land, and these men, ignorant of each other's work, should come to the city on that day and place their pieces of marble, and when it was all done, without the use of a hammer or chisel, there would go up a beautiful and magnificent temple, perfect in form and in design. What would be your conclusion—that each man wrought under the direction of some master mechanic or that it was miraculous? Here we have sixty-six blocks of spiritual marble, and they have been quarred by fourty men and at different times and in different places, and when they are put into proper form we have the beautiful and magnificent spiritual temple of inspired wisdom and truth in which God is pleased to dwell. How do you account for it upon any other bases than that all of them wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit?

Its Influence.—Just as the desert is made to blossom because of the presence of teh spring of water, so society is blessed by the word of God. Wm. E. Gladsone said: "After fifty-eight years of public life—forty-seven in the English cabinet—having been associated with sixty master minds of the world, all but five were Christians."

Who would live in a community of infidels? The Bible in a community guarantees protection to property and to life. Two young men were traveling in what was then termed the "wild West." One night they stopped at a cabin and asked to be taken for the night. One of the young men was an infidel and the other was a devout Christian. The infidel said to his companion: "I am afraid to stay here all night. This old man would kill you for a quarter. I have determined to take my revolver to bed with me, and to cut a hole in the bed quilt and peep out with my hand on my pistol and be ready to shoot." When the time came to retire, the old man got his big family Bible and said: "Young men, it is our custom to read God's word and pray before going to bed. I hope you will join us." He then read the chapter, and they got down on their knees and he prayed: Father bless these young men, who are so far away from home. Keep them from danger, and from the power of the evil one. Bless their parents who are so anxious about them tonight. Comfort them with the thought that God will be unto them a Father and that He will care for and protect them, we beg in Jesus' name." The infidel was the first to get into his bed. The Christian noticed that he did not have his revolver and that he had not cut the hole in the bed-quilt, and he asked him why he had not made provision for his safety. He replied: "That old man wouldn't hurt you." The presence of that Bible and the fact that he was a man of prayer made the man feel he was safe. Suppose he had placed on his table a deck of cards and a bottle of moonshine and said, "Now, gentlemen, we want to have a good time before we retire, "what would have been the effect on the man, do you think?

Internal Proofs.—A discussion took place one day concerning miracles. A Jew was present and heard the discussion, and he said: "I am a Jew and I do not believe in miracles. I do not believe in the Virgin birth. I am from Missouri and you will have to show me. "This is the attitude of the Jew generally speaking toward Christianity. But the Jew himself is a good answer to the doubter. The prophet hundreds of years ago prophecied that the Jew would be a hissing and a byword without a dwelling place. The Jew is a miracle of the twentieth century. Jews everywhere in great numbers but without a nation. A hissing and a byword among the nations of the earth. Men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

Fulfilled prohpecy is the miracle of the age. Had we time, we could give a sermon on fulfilled prophecy. Take the 333 that relate to Christ, and all were fulfilled to the letter.

It Is Not a Scientific Book.—The Bible is not a Book of Science; it is a revelation of God and the way to Heaven. It does not contradict science, however. Many people try to find flaws in the Bible; try to find contradiction. In holding a meeting one time I was using a query box, giving the people a chance to ask questions on the Bible and an infidel would cram the box with hard questions, and then leave as soon as I had answered the questions, refusing to hear me preach. One night he became angry at the answers that I gave and arose and said that he did not believe the Bible because it contradicted science. I asked him to show one place where there was a contradiction, and he said: "Your Bible says that God in six days of 24 hours each made the heavens and the earth, and this would be an impossibility. It would have taken millions of years for the earth to have cooled off." I gave him the Bible and asked him to show me the statement, and he was a long time finding the chapter of Genesis. When he read it I did not see the statement. He read again: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." I stopped him and asked: "When was the beginning?" He could not tell. Then I said: "God created all this in the beginning, and we do not know how long that was, but we know that the evening and the morning were the first day. Now, there was no day until the earth revolved on its axis, and it did not revolve until it had been created and cooled off, and the evening and the morning made the first day. No contradiction." Then he said: "Your Bible says that Abraham was a man after God's own heart; but Abraham was an old liar, and I have no respect for a Bible that makes such a man a man after God's own heart. "I asked him that I was glad to hear it, but I wanted to know if he ever told a lie. He admitted that when in a tight place he might have prevaricated. I told him that Abraham was in a tight place and prevaricated, and that God told the truth on him. That, fortunately for him, God had not seen fit to write his history, and when he did the world would learn a lot of which it was then ignorant. The Bible tells both sides—the good and the bad.

It Is Its Own Interpreter.—A noted lawyer, who had been for many years an infidel, was told by his physician that he had organic trouble and could live only a short while. He went to his associate in law, a Presbyterian elder, and asked: "Have you a book that will prove the Bible?" His partner handed him the Bible and told him to read it. He said: "You do not understand. I want a book to prove the Bible." "Then," said the lawyer "go home and read your Bible." He noticed the emphasis on the command, and he went home and began to read it. One morning he came into the office and his partner asked him how he was getting on with his Bible. He said: "I wan to know where that man Cain got his wife." Men are continually asking this question. The Bible was not written to tell where every man got his wife. You do not know where I got mine, and it is none of your business, and yet it is just as necessary to know where I got a wife as to know where Cain got one. It is a bad business to be looking after some other man's wife. He was told to keep on reading his Bible. He came in one day, and again was asked how he was getting on. He said: "I am trying to find out if that flood was universal." He was told to just keep on reading his Bible. One day he came and was greatly excited. He said: "I am a lawyer and have been practicing law for many years, and I would like to know where that man Moses got that law. It would have taken a God to have given such a code. I am convinced and I am not a believed. "We read too much ABOUT the Bible and not enough OF it.

Not a Book of Theology.—The Bible is not a book of theology. God made some stars and hung them up in the Heavens, and then man made a telescope and began to study stars and then wrote out what he thought about stars and called that astronomy. God made the stars and man made the astronomy. God made the rocks and man began to dig and blast and analyze the rocks and called that geology. God made the rocks and man made the geology. God made the daisy to laugh on the hillside and man began to pick it to pieces, and then wrote what he thought about it and called it botany. God made the flowers and man made the botany. God made a Bible and man began to study it, and then wrote out his interpretations of it and called that theology. The world will go to sleep on theology, but it will sit up and listen when you give it the simple word of God. It is hungry for it.

One time a minister was visiting another minister, and he was taken into his cellar when he had a lot of dried leaves, broken sticks and roots and a smoky lamp. He said: "Here is where I study botany." The visitor started to pick up one of the dead sticks, and the man said: "Don't touch it; it will break." Then the visitor said: "Let me out into the fresh air when I can smell the fragrance of living flowers. I do not want to live among a lot of dead leaves and roots; they are musty and you dare not touch them for fear they will break." This is the way it is of the sermons that are composed of men's opinions and the old, musty, lifeless doctrines, the world will not stand for them.

The Bible is God's universal library. Do you want to study astronomy? Then, behold the Bright and Morning Star. Do you want to study geology? Then read about the Rock of Ages Do you want to study botany? Then take some lessons in the Rose of Sharon or the Lily of the Valley. Do you want to study biology? Then become acquainted with the one who is the Way, the Truth and the Life.

The Bible will do to live by and to die by. A noted infidel was called to the bedside of his daughter who was dying. Her mother was an earnest Christian, and had taught her to believe in the promises contained in the blessed old Book. The father had told her it was all a myth. She took the hand of her father and said: "Father, I am dying. Mother says the Bible is true, and that Jesus is my saviour and that he has gone to prepare a home for me, and that he will come and take me to be with him. You say it is all a lie. I am dying, and I want to know, must I believe you or must I believe mother?" The infidel, with the tears streaming down his cheeks, said: "My child you believe your mother." I am a poor, blind, helpless cripple, and the Bible is my only crutch. Will you be so cruel as to try to knock it from beneath me?

Syrians Fight French On Transfiguration Mountain

Present Rebellion In Holy Land Links Mount Hermon to Rendezvous of Bible's Three Greatest Prophets, Says Sunday School Lesson Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Ever since the World War there has been almost continuous fighting in some part of the Holy Land. The heaviest and longest sustained is that between the Syrians and the French, which has cost many thousands of lives, unmeasured suffering, the destruction of great areas of property, including the center of the City of Damascus, and many millions of dollars. In the course of all of this fighting, many familiar Biblical sites have been involved. The Druses, who have been in the forefront of the Syrian revolt against the French, have centered their activities in the Hauran, the romantic region of mountains and caves cities southeast of Mt. Hermon, merging into the ancient Bashan, of which Og was king. Mount Hermon itself has also been a Druse stronghold; for most of the villages are occupied, at least in part, by this mysterious and hardy people.

Despite the recurrence of the name of Mount Hermon in the meagre war news from Syria, the famous mountain is better known in connection with the Transfiguration of Jesus. Every traveller in Syria learns to love Hermon, the peak that far overtops all others in the land. The Arab name for it is "Jebel esh-Sheikh." or "white-haired mountain," because of the snow that crowns the summit almost all the year round. The older name for it, which appears in the Book of Deuteronomy, is "Shenir,"—"The Banner;" suggested by the way the peak is uplifted above all others as a beautiful standard. Mt. Hermon is slightly over nine thousand feet high, and from northeast to southwest it extends twenty miles.

Always this has been a holy mountain. Again and again the Old Testament alludes to it as a symbol. Existing ruins on the sides and top show that pagan temples were built there in earliest times. While Hermon is not named as the scene of the Transfiguration, it is indicated as the "high mountain;" and no other peak has ever been suggested as a rival site, except Tabor, which was crowned by a Roman citadel in our Lord's day, and so scarcely could have been available. Such a sublime event as the Transfiguration called for the greatest stage as its setting. Jesus, the Open Air Man, lover of the hills, turned naturally to the mountains in His hours of greatest spiritual experience.

One Man's Memories.

Really great experiences need the help of no note book to make them abide in memory. Because Peter shared the marvelous experience of Jesus on Hermon's height, it stayed with him vividly. He told Mark about it, for record in his Gospel; and, even when he was old, Peter himself wrote ecstatically of the event in his Second Letter. To have shared a great hour—that is life. We never get away from the influence of our profoundest experiences.

It was the urge to pray that took Jesus and His three intimates off to the "retreat" on the mountain eyrie. Prayer and apartness were more necessary to Him than bread. Luke records that it was "as He was praying" that the Transfiguration was wrought. Wonders befall as men pray. It was in these lonely times of separation and communion that Jesus tapped the Sources of Power that produced His wondrous words and life. Is there any more depressing symptom of our day than the eagerness of most people to shun aloneness, and to be ever with a crowd, and to have "something doing" all the while? Men seem afraid to keep company only with their own spirits. George Herbert's admonition was never more needed than now:

"By all means use some times to be alone.
Salute thyself; see what thy soul doth wear;
Dare to look within thy chest, for it is thine own,
And tumble up and down what thou findest there."

Companionship could go only part way with Jesus: it is one of the profound truths of human life that man's nearest and dearest cannot enter with him into his deepest spiritual experiences. The three friends were comrades with Christ for the long, hard climb up the slope of Hermon; but, as was the case with the same three later at Gethsemane, they were heavy with sleep outside the circle of their Master's uttermost hour. Nothing is more touching in all the narrative of the life of Jesus than His yearning for the fellowship of His friends. He craved their understanding and intimacy even more intensely than they felt their need of Him. Every life baffled in pursuit of true love finds sympathy in the affectionate nature of the Master whose friends could never fully understand Him; and could never go all the way with Him. Peter often had impulses to go the limit, but his flesh always failed him.

This mountain-top event was a logical consequence of what had gone be-

Because she wouldn't tell who came to the Montgomery County Humane Society, Dayton, O., saying that dogs owned by John G. Griggs were "mangy and neglected," Miss Irene Kehrer secretary of the organization passed a day in jail. When humane officials probed the report and found it erroneous, Griggs sued for $500 damages. Miss Kehrer was held in contempt of court when she refused to tell the source of her information during the trial.

SIX DIVORCES GRANTED HERE

Decrees Handed Down Yesterday by Judge W. F. Lones.

Six divorces have been granted by Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court. There was not a contested case in the list.

Wilson A. Ormes was granted a decree of divorce from his wife, Anaa Ormes, on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney G. Jay Clark, and the decree was obtained upon the payment of costs.

James Goforth, through his counsel, Ben L. Bennett, obtained a decree of divorce from his wife, Carrie Goforth, on the grounds of wilful absence for over a period of three years.

Chester Miller was represented by Attorney James E. Davis when his case against his wife, Elizabeth Miller, was called for trial. Wilful absence for over a period of three years was charged in this petition.

Richard R. Hulme has been absent from his wife, Nellie Lenora Hulme, for over three years, and she was granted a decree, upon the payment of costs. Mrs. Hulme was represented by Attorney Charles Boyd.

Extreme cruelty and habitual drunkenness was charged in the divorce petition filed by Attorney Davis in behalf of Garnet Fulton and against her husband, Andrew C. Fulton, and the decree was granted upon these grounds. The plaintiff has been restored to her maiden name, Garnet Scott.

Minnie Campell declared that her husband, Clyde Campbell, had been separated from her for over a period of three years, and she obtained her decree, also the custody of a minor child.

Three other divorce actions assigned for trial this week were not presented to the court, but will probably be heard during the early part of next week.

Property Transfers.

There was a decided lull experienced in the office of Recorder Paul Smith today, only two real estate transfers being filed for record. Not in many months was such a low record noted. The transfers are:

R. A. Bishop and others to Margaret Urmetz, lots 115-116, McKinley Heights addition, Perry township.

J. H. Hinchliffe and wife to George L. Kenty, lot 1 Connell's addition, Lisbon, $10. This deed to take the place of one not previously recorded.

LEETONIA ROAD WILL BE GRADED

Lisbon street, Leetonia, which is the unpaved section of the Lisbon-Leetonia road within the corporate limits of Leetonia, will be graded and surfaced before July, according to information received at the office of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. Plans and specifications for the improvement have been approved by the county commissioners, as the county is sharing in the cost because of the street being a part of an inter-county highway.

LEETONIA MAN IS SENTENCED

By the state accepting a plea of guilty to a lesser crime, James Miller, of Leetonia, indicted by the April grand jury for criminal assault, the defendant escaped a life sentence to the penitentiary. The court has sentenced the defendant, who is a young man, to from three to 20 years in the Mansfield reformatory. Miller will probably be taken to Mansfield next week by Sheriff George Wright.

Partition Action.

Through her counsel, C. C. Connell, of Lisbon, Anna Croft has filed an action in partition in common pleas court against her husband, Charles Croft, of Lisbon. The plaintiffs are joint owners of lot 41 in R. Arter's second addition to Lisbon, and she petitions the court to set off her dower interest in the property. The parties are now living apart, the petition relates.

Leave To Answer.

In the case of Frank Snauffer filed July 6, 1925, against Frank Kibler for the recovery of a claim for $145.43 and interest for labor and materials, the court has granted the plaintiff to file an answer to the petition of the defendant at once, this case having been carried to common pleas court on appeal from a lower court.

Judgment Sought.

The Ohio Public Service company, of Alliance, by its counsel, Hart & Koehler, has filed a petition in common pleas court against William H. Stewart and James Stewart, partners, doing business as Stewart Bros., at Homeworth, this county, to recover a judgment for $428 and interest at 6 per cent from July 12, 1926.

Commissioners Named.

J. M. Mehaffie, of Calcutta, Dr. J. J. Fitzsimmons and George Faulk, also of Calcutta, have been named commissioners in the partition action filed in common pleas court by Cochran and Crawford of East Liverpool in behalf of R. B. Grim against Maude L. Moore and others.

fore. Down by the foot of Mt. Hermon, at Caesarea Philippi, Jesus had opened his Heart to His friends. There Peter had made his great avowal that Jesus was none other than the Christ, the expected Messiah. The Lord tried to open the eyes of His closest disciples to the fate that awaited Him—the rejection, the death, the resurrection. This was too much for Peter, whose protest called for the Master's "Get thee behind me, Satan." Then the Way of the Cross was expounded by this "Gentleman Unafraid," who contemplated His own tragic fate only that He might hearten His followers. This season at the foot of Hermon has been called "The Passion of the North;" it was Christ's "De Profundis."

Out of the depths to the heights! Depression was followed by exhaltation. To fortify Jesus and His followers for the ordeal that lay ahead, He was granted the peak experience of the Transfiguration. Let us read Mark's report of it in the Weymouth Version:

"Six days later, Jesus took with Him Peter, James and John, and brought them alone, apart from the rest, up a high mountain; and in their presence His appearance underwent a change. His garments also became dazzling with brilliant whiteness — such whiteness as no bleaching on earth could give. Moreover there appeared to them Elijah accompanied by Moses; and the two were conversing with Jesus, when Peter said to Jesus,

"Rabbi, we are thankful to you that we are here. Let us put up three tents—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.

"For he knew not what to say: they were filled with such awe. Then there came a cloud spreading over them, and a voice issued from the cloud,

"This is my Son, dearly beloved: listen to Him.

"Instantly they looked around, and now they could no longer see any one, but themselves and Jesus.

"As they were coming down from the mountain, He very strictly forbade them to tell any one what they had seen "until after the Son of Man had risen from among the dead." So they kept the matter to themselves, although frequently asking one another what was meant by the rising from the dead.'

Three "failures" rendezvoused on Hermon's height that day—Moses, who never entered the Promised Land; Elijah, the harried prophet whose life was nearly all tragedy, and Jesus, the rejected and crucified. By ordinary standards they would be written down as "failures;" yet in heaven's view they were the three most congenial spirits of eternity, met in a common vindication of glory. How often do we need to be told that man's standards of success are not God's? No estimates of the real worth or achievement of an immortal human spirit are valid except those made in the light of eternity. The Transfiguaration gives God's views upon comparative success and failure.

We sometimes wonder what great men talk about when they meet privately. We are not left in doubt as to what was the subject of the conversation between these three comrade spirits, Moses, Elijah and Jesus; they "spake of His decease which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem." The most competent comforters that the realms of glory could send were emissaries to Christ to prepare Him for the climax of His mission. Some "advanced" thinkers disparage the death of Christ; yet it was the one theme important enough to engage the thought of the three greatest prophets and servants ever sent to earth by God. Paul followed in their train when he later cried, "Gor forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Heavenly Hours on Earth.

General Younghusband, the great soldier who entered Lhassa, has written a novel, "But in Our Lives," which is really the biography of a fine British officer. In it appears one character, a woman, whose experience of mystical religion is to beautifully portrayed as to warrant the permanence of the book as literature. This author saw clearly, what so many superficial scribblers miss, that the human soul may have its hours of transcendent experience—its tranfiguration—when only the spiritual is real.

Is not this a first meaning of the Transfiguration: that man is more than man; and that beneath all outward appearance shines the lustrous glory of Possibility? "It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." "Count your highest moments your truest," cried Phillip Brooks. Then, in our hearts we may hear the Voice that sounded in the disciples' ears on Hermon's crest, "This is my beloved Son," saying to us. "Now are ye the sons of God."

Poor, bewildered Peter, in the presence of the wonder of the Transfiguration, barely keeping awake despite his drowsiness, not knowing what he said, proposed that they make permanent this exaltation, and build three booths as lodging for the glorified. He did not understand that life is not static. No single mood or experience abides. Hours of ecstacy may not be maintained — indeed, should not be. Mountain tops are for inspiration; the plain is for service; and for service in the power of the vision. The great height of Hermon and its comfort went with Jesus to the little hill of Olivet and its Garden of Agony. All of us are meant to have our high hours; and then to prove them through the stress of life's everydayness.

Juniors Land Sweeping Victory In Interclass Track Meet

Third Year Star Captures Firsts in 220 Dash, 100 Yards, Broad and High Jumps and Second in 440; Seniors Held to Two Firsts.

Capturing firsts in four events and a second in another, "Elmo" English led his Junior class track squad to a sweeping victory over the three other rival teams in the annual high school interclass track and field meet yesterday afternoon at Columbian park.

Despite the extraordinary coldness, Coach George Kidder's athletes went through their paces in big league style, establishing good marks in a number of different events.

The Seniors pulled only two firsts out of the meet, with Swaney heading the field in the mile run and the fourth year relay team finishing ahead in the concluding event of the afternoon.

The final count gave the rival class teams the following scores: Juniors, 70; Seniors, 33; Sophores, 18; Freshmen, 14.

English stepped the distance in 11 flat to cop the century run, with Irwin finishing second. "Elmo" negotiated the 220 yards in 24 1-2 seconds and finished second to "Heimie" Davis in the quarter mile. Davis was clocked at 59 seconds even as he breasted the tape.

English covered 18 feet, 6 inches to win the running broad jump and topped the field in the high jump at an even five feet.

Kirkham contributed additional Junior points with first places in the javelin and discus throws. Kirkham heaved the javelin a distance of 134 feet and 11 inches which ought to finish in the running in the county meet on May 14 and his toss of 122 feet, 2 inches in the discus will make some of the boys also.

Deems, a Junior, also reeled off a pretty race in the half mile, the timers getting him at 2:17 at the finish. Under better weather conditions Deems should lower this mark.

The showing of the various squads, from among which will be selected the representative high school team, taken all in all, was excellent.

Akron U. Athlete Park Pool Manager

Jean Smith in Charge at Rock Springs Tank.

Jean Smith, University of Akron athlete, captain of this year's "Zipper" track squad, will be manager of the Rock Springs park swimming pool next summer.

Smith merits the reputation of an all around athlete, holding several state championships in the realm of track and also being a leading Buckeye gridder.

For a number of years he has been connected, during the summer months, with the Portage Lakes Life Saving association. Owing to the large number of swimmers in the lakes district, members of the association usually have their hands full, yet Smith's record has never been marred by the loss of any one in his care.

Thirteen students of Eton College, England, recently passed tests as firemen.

Tunney to Fight Regularly For Five Years, Then Retire

Will Use Mitts Periodically Even if he Has to Challenge the Challenger, he Declares.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 23—Take it from James Joseph Tunney, who thinks he is in a position to know, there will be a heavyweight championship fight held annually for the next four or five years, assuming, of course, that James continues to have the situation well in hand. He informed the writer today that, merely "as a measure of common sense," he planned to fight in defense of his title at least once a year for five years—regardless of purses and opponents—and then call it a career.

"Why, they couldn't have kept me out this year even if I had had to challenge the contender myself," he said, this morning, some hours before his scheduled conference with Tex Rickard. "I'm to make plenty of money out of my fight this summer but, even if the purse had been unsatisfactory, I would have signed anyhow. Money, I grant you, is important and Im frank to say that I want all I can get but the man who sits in idleness for several years, waiting for what he calls the 'break,' is cheating himself just as surely as though he failed to go to the cashier's window for his weekly salary."

Feels He Can Win.

"The blade," he added, warming to his rhetoric, "grows dull and rusted from disuse. It has been so with every heavyweight champion of the modern era but it won't be so with me. That is"—hastily— "assuming that I will be able to win from my opponents. However, no one can blame me for feeling that I will."

James, of course, may be pardoned for taking a philosophic view of finance in general, since his conversation with Rickard may have some slight reference to a sum of $100,000 the promoter will be in his debt on May 1. The further fact that it is only an item in the "nut" that Rickard must assume in lining up Tunney undoubtedly had a somewhat mellowing effect on the latter's outlook.

However, he insisted that his sincerity was above question in claiming that physical readiness was of greater importance than the size of the purse in considering any title defense.

Should Meet Best Man.

"There have been years when challengers were few and inadequate," he explained. "All right; why not meet the best man available, taking the best money offered? The champion is at least that far ahead on the financial situation and, from the physical side, he has done himself the best turn imaginable. Then, at a later date, when a real challenger turns up, the champion still can get the big purse he otherwise might have waited several years for, and naturally he would be a better man because of those intervening fights.

"It may be that I am thinking too far ahead. The man that Rickard selects may beat me and then all my plans would be knocked into a cocked hat. Yet I think the fact that I recognize danger in every opponent is in my favor; they, at least, won't be able to surprise me as so many champions have been surprised. In short, I am taking neither my opponents nor myself for granted.

How To Be Unpopular.

"Retire? I suppose I shall when and if I last five years or more as champion. By that time, I suppose I'll have enough of boxing and, for all I know, boxing may have enough of me. I've found that the surest way to attain unpopularity is to win the heavyweight championship."

Five Straight Wins Give Bucs Big Lead

WILL DECLINE LEAGUE JOB

Walker Won't Take Ban's Place, Say Mayor's Friends.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Friends of James J. Walker, mayor of New York City, today expressed the belief that he would decline the office of the presidency of the American League at a salary of $100,000 a year, reported to have been made by the league.

Although Mayor Walker insists that he has received no formal offer from the league, rumors persisted today that the league magnates at a secret meeting yesterday decided to offer him the post.

The mayor's reply to all questons was:

"I have had no formal offer from the American League. In any event, I could not discuss any offer until it had been made formally."

According to friends of the mayor, he will not entertain such an offer until his present term ends on Jan. 1, 1930. He is said to feel that his resignation at this time might result in the disruption of the political organization of Tammany hall.

Discussion of Mayor Walker in connection with the presidency of the league resulted from the return of Ban Johnson to his activities as head of the league, it was said. Following Johnson's controversy with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, the czar of baseball, the league owners had believed that Johnson would "gracefully retire."

Judge Landis was in Baltimore today, where he was expected to confer with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, president Griffith, of the Washington club, President Quinn, of the Red Sox, and perhaps President Shibe of the Athletics.

INDIAN RUNNERS SEEK NEW RECORD

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 23. — Three Tarahumara Indian endurance runners left Kansas city Athletic club at 7:25 o'clock this morning on their 32-mile marathon for Lawrence, Kan., where they expect to arrive at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The Indians, Tomas Zafiro, Jose Torres and Manuel Salido, who recently ran from San Antonio to Austin, Tex., as a prelude to the Texas relays hope to establish a new endurance record.

Burt Betah, a Navajo, and Purcell Kane, an Apache, both of Haskell Indian institute of Lawrence are running today with the natives of the Chihuahua mountains of Mexico.

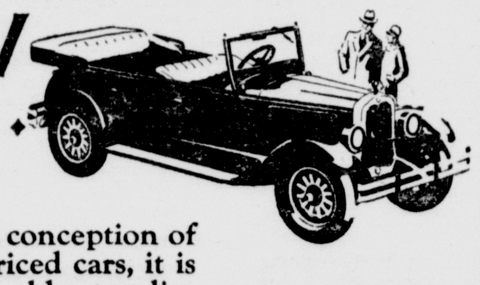
COMPARE ITS VALUE··CONSIDER ITS LOW PRICE



In the light of the usual conception of values in moderately priced cars, it is only natural that you should not realize what awaits you when you see and drive and know Oldsmobile.

But count the features emphasized by manufacturers of even far more costly cars; then check them, one by one, in the imposing array of Oldsmobile features.

And in detail after detail you find the explanation of Oldsmobile's widespread popularity and of its owners' praise.

See it, drive it, go over it point by point. Then .. and only then .. can you truly appreciate the fact that known factors of merit .. and not its price .. measure the value of Oldsmobile.

BOXING MEASURE KILLED IN HOUSE

CHARLESTON, April 23.—The boxing bill is dead, defeated by a vote of the house of delegates where American Legion sponsors had believed their revamped measure would be triumphant. The official roll call showed 50 of the delegates voting against the bill and 38 for it, while subsequent parliamentary moves in which the lines held fast, prevented any reconsideration during this legislature.

For the bill speakers headed by Dr. Crow of Marshall county, urged its adoption as granting the request of the men who fought for their country in the world war, pointed to the provisions for no-decision bouts to be held only under the auspices of bona fide military organizations as safeguarding it against commercializing the sport in the state, and pledged that if there were any abuse of the privileges granted the ex-soldiers themselves would be the first to ask future legislatures to repeal the measure.

Against the bill, in addition to the general scruples against prize fighting, it was urged that the bill as revised to meet the first objections still kept the machinery of the state athletic commission that had figured in the original bill, and Dr. L. M. Robinson, in explaining his adverse vote, summarized the viewpoint of many of the objectors that this measure was an "entering wedge" through amendment of which in future sessions it was hoped, they charged, that the state would be opened to all forms of bouts and promotion.

"SLIDE, KELLY, SLIDE," COMING

William Haines and Baseball Stars in American Picture.

The two most popular things in America—baseball and the moving picture—are combined in "Slide, Kelly, Slide," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest contribution to screen entertainment, which comes to the American theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

One can not only see a thrilling screen drama—but also the recent World Series, as the cameras invaded the grandstands at New York and St. Louis, and crucial plays of the nation's baseball classic from dramatic highlights for the new romance of baseball, which William Haines, star of "Brown of Harvard," Sally O'Neil, Harry Carey, Karl Dane and other famous players.

Besides the famous screen players, the cast includes some of the greatest figures in professional baseball. The "team" in the picture includes Bob Meusel, "Irish"' Meusel, Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees, all World Series heroes, Mike Donlin, for years idol of the New York Giants and now a picture player, and others recruited from the leagues of different parts of America.

The spectacular World Series contest is made teh center of a gripping romance of a "bush league" player, who wins fame in the New York team, a role enacted by Haines.

Others in the cast include Warner Richmond, of "Fire Brigade" fame, Eileen Sedgwick, the German girl of "Tin Hats," Junior Coglan, Paul Kelly, Guinn Williams, Dorothy Sebastin and others of special note.

Edward Sedgwick, director of "Tin Hats" and himself once famous as a baseball player, directed the new picture, and the screen play was by A. P. Younger, famous as scenarist of "Brown of Harvard."

Cast Rehearsing.

Rehearsals are being held for the playlet to be presented by the Senior class of the Chester high school in the Lincoln theatre on May 5 and 6.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors, including minister and singers, who contributed in any way to our comfort and consolation in our late bereavement of husband and brother.
